Labor Party Repudiates Wilson's Vietnam Policy

Break With U.S. Backed in Vote

SCARBOROUGH, England (CP) — The ruling Labor Party today over-rode its leaders and called on the British government to dissociate itself from American policy in Vietnam.

In a startling defeat for Prime Minister Wilson and Foreign Secretary George Brown, the annual party conference gave a left-wing resolution a slim majority of 119,000 votes out of a total vote of more than 5,000,000.

The resolution, passed by 2,752,000 to 2,633,000, also urged the government to try to persuade President Johnson to stop bombing North Vietnam "imn.ediately, permanently and unconditionally."

The vote is not binding on the government.

Delegates to the convention have blocks of votes. For example the delegates of labor unions can cast votes of the unions' entire memberships. This accounts for the high numbers of votes, although only 6,000 delegates are at the convention.

REBUFF FOR BROWN

The vote was seen as a major personal setback for Brown, who had vigorously defended the government's pro-American policy.

Reports before the voting indicated Brown, already under fire in the press for his personal conduct at a party Monday night, might offer to resign if the Labor leadership was defeated on Vietnam.

But there was no immediate indication whether he would do so.

He told delegates today he did not think there would be any value in condemning one side in Vietnam and not the other. He indicated any such move would only lessen British influence in Washington—where he talked with Johnson last week.

Angry shouts rose from the delegates when Brown said he was ready to reconvene the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina but that Russia, co-chairman with Britain of the conference, would not agree.

Brown blamed North Vietnam for failing to respond to repeated U.S. offers of negotiations, even after five separate bombing pauses.

To jeering hecklers Brown cried angrily:

"Ask the Russian co-chairman to reconvene the Geneva conference as I am ready to do.

On Vietnam the convention voted that the government should:

1. "Dissociate completely from the policy of the U.S. government in Vietnam."

2. Seek with other countries to persuade the Americans to quit bombing North Vietnam "immediately, permanently and unconditionally."

3. Aim at a settlement based on the 1954 Geneva accords which envisaged withdrawal of all foreign troops from a Vietnam reunited under a freely-elected government.

The convention also voted 3,-

DANIEL JOHNSON

JOHNSON:

No 'Wall' Wanted In Quebec

MONTREAL (CP)—La Presse, in a copyright story from Hawaii, quotes Premier Daniel Johnson as saying his Union Nationale government in Quebec has promised consistently "to work to obtain a new Canadian constitution made in Canada, by Canadians and for Canadians."

The newspaper's reporter, Martin Pronovost, located Mr. Johnson on "one of the Hawaiian islands" where he is recuperating from a bout of phlebitis and obtained a prepared statement from him.

The statement was issued in reply to a request for comment on the current debate in Canada on the possibility of Quebec becoming an independent state.

La Presse quotes him as saying that the "Union Nationale did not receive a mandate to build a Great Wall of China around Quebec" when it was elected to power. His statement added:

"We promised the people to exercise the rights recognized in the British North America Act and to put them to work to obtain a new Canadian constitution, made in Canada, by Canadians and for Canadians, by virtue of which every citizen, French-speaking or English-speaking, regardless of ethnic origin, would feel at home everywhere in Canada.

"This is the mandate that we

OTTAWA CONFERENCE ON HOUSING CALLED

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Invitations will go out in a few weeks from Labor Minister Nicholson to the provincial governments inviting them to a federal-provincial conference on housing, scheduled for the first week in December.

The minister was authorized to send out the invitations by a cabinet decision, it was learned today. He reports to Parliament for the Central Mortgage & Housing Corporation.

The decision was to summon the conference on housing and urban problems as soon as the current elections in three provinces are completed.

GRITS WIN VOTE

Absent 'Troops' Wreck Tories' Housing Attack

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Absenteeism was the undoing Tuesday night of the Opposition's determined drive to rock the government and shake it to its foundations — perhaps even toppling it.

The combined opposition looked "woefully weak" in its challenge of the Liberal minority government's right to stay in office, Conservative MPs conceded here today.

The Conservative caucus and New Democratic Party members were disturbed over the large number of absentee members when the vote was called Tuesday night. On paper the combined opposition has 130 members and the minority government has 130 members plus Mr. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

But when the opposition voted on its first motion of non-confidence in the administration Tuesday night, since the summer recess, it was only able to muster 98. The Liberal government was supported by 112 members.

Conservative MPs today were ruefully shaking their heads and agreeing that the new image of a "bold determined, aggressive opposition" under the new Conservative leader Robert Stanfield, has been "badly tarnished."

'Where Were They at Charge?'

As one unhappy Conservative put it today "Where were the troops when the charge was sounded?"

The Tories only were able to rally 71 of their 93 members to press home the attack on the administration. They were backed by 14 New Democrats. The NDP party has 22 members; its percentage of absenteeism was the greatest. Seven Creditistes also voted against the government along with two Social Credit members, three Independents and Steven Otto, the Liberal from York East who dislikes the government's housing policies. He broke ranks.

Even without Mr. Otto the Liberals had 110 of their 130 members in the House for the crucial vote. Some Grits had been arguing earlier in the day that it might be a good thing for the government if it was defeated and a general election precipitated by the opposition.

They contended that under such circumstances, Prime Minister L. B. Pearson leading the united Liberal forces into a quick fall election campaign would catch the Conservative and NDP groups off-balance and win easily. But their arguments did not carry the day—the government was determined to GREAT THROW from Boston leftfielder Carl Yastrezemski to catcher Russ Gibson caught Julian Javier of St. Louis trying to score from second on Lou Brock single in fourth inning. Brock had record-tying four straight singles to lead Cardinals to 2-1 victory in opening game of world series.

3,000 Join IWA Strike In Interior

VANCOUVER (CP) — Strike action at lumber operations throughout the southern British Columbia interior was endorsed today by the International Woodworkers of America.

Jack Moore, regional IWA president, said employees at "just about all" of the 44 operations where workers previously had voted to strike, now have walked off the job.

He said about 500 struck Tuesday night and another 2,500 today.

A meeting had been planned for later today to set a strike date.

Mr. Moore said the 1,500 IWA members who voted to strike at five northern operations remained on the job. He said strike action in the north has

Cardinals Win Series Opener

BOSTON (AP) — Lou Brock, the St. Louis Cardinals' speedy bullet, stroked a record-tying four hits, stole two bases and scored both runs in a 2-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox in today's opening world series game, while Bob Gibson struck out 10 in pitching a six-hitter.

Jose Santiago, first Latin American to pitch a series opener, walked on water for seven innings while the Cards banged out 10 hits and left eight on base.

Santiago did his best to win it alone with a 360-foot home run into the screen atop the left field wall at Fenway Park in the third inning.

Brock's fourth single, opening the seventh, finally started the National League champs on the way to the tie-breaking run.

The lithe outfielder, who led the league with 52 stolen bases, just barely beat Russ Gibsons's throw into second for a stolen base on Jose's first pitch to Curt Flood.

When Flood grounded out to first baseman George Scott, Brock sped to third. Roger Maris, the ex-New York Yankee who had driven in the first run with an infield out, did it again when he rapped sharply at second baseman Jerry Adair. Adair came up with the ball, looked at Brock nearing home plate and threw out Maris.

It was the same combination that produced the first Cardinal run in the third when Brock lined up his second single to centre, romped to third on Flood's double to the left field corner and scored when Maris bounced out to first baseman Scott.

Gibson, out of action with a broken right leg from July 15 to Sept. 6, came through with another gilt-edged performance as he had done in earning the star role in 1964 against the Yankees.

ELWORTHY

Elworthy Interim Bank President

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harold Elworthy of Victoria today was elected temporary president of the Bank of British Columbia, replacing Frank Trebell of Vancouver, whose resignation became effective Sept. 1.

Mr. Elworthy, one of the original provisional directors of the bank, will hold the office pending appointment of a permanent president.

A spokesman for the bank said applications are being taken for the position of the bank's chief executive officer.

Mr. Elworthy is chairman of the board of Island Tug and Barge Ltd., a director of Imperial Inn Ltd. and a member of the Victoria Advisory Board of the Royal Trust Co.

Mr. Elworthy said his appointment is effective immediately and will mean spending half his time in Vancouver. He did not know how long the interim would be.

Most of his energies will be devoted to final organization of the bank, enabling it to open for business early in the new year.

Rebel Capital Falls To Nigerian Troops

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI) — The Nigerian government said today its troops had captured Enugu, the stronghold capital of the eastern region which seceded and formed the "Republic of Biafra."

Fall of the city was announced by Radio Nigeria.

Enugu had been the target of a week long three-pronged advance by federal forces attempting to break the secessionist movement in which Lt. Col. Odumegwu Ojuku proclaimed independence for the region.

Sharp to Give Us Choice: Cut Back, or Hike Taxes

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Sharp in a major speech today was to lay it on the line for Canadians — either they go along with a billion-dollar cut in government spending or face a tax boost.

He will speak on the resumed debate on the budget. He will set out the government's financial policies and call for the support of the taxpayers.

There is mounting concern in Ottawa about the state of the economy.

The impact of the Vietnam war in the United States and the reluctance of the American administration to raise taxes to meet the costs of the war is having its fallout in Canada.

There are consequent higher costs and rising interest rates in Canada, forcing the government to cut back on spending.

The cabinet earlier this year agreed on a half-billion-dollar cut in government spending for the 1968-69 fiscal period. Involved are reductions in most departmental estimates for spending in the coming fiscal year.

This has led to the freezing of extra funds for housing, delays in CBC capital projects and a hold-up in the proposed $100 million Canadian equivalent of the American "pentagon".

The cutbacks however, while extensive, were not large enough. The reduced expenditures were expected to cut the anticipated deficit for 1968-69 from $1.25 billion to $750 million. More cuts will be needed.

But while spending is to be slashed, the proposed medicare program scheduled to start July 1, 1968, has not been touched, it is understood. Its start remains a decision for the provinces. The enabling legislation has been passed.

It now is up to the various provinces to announce whether they will agree to participate starting July 1, next year.

Jury Finds Neglect In Rectory Death

TORONTO (UPI) — A coroner's inquest jury declared today that it found "neglect" on the part of Canon G. Moore-Smith and his wife Violet in the death of 18-year-old Katherine Globe.

The jury recommended "further investigation" into the actions of the Smiths, and of assistant rector Rev. Douglas Tinsdall, as well as the activites of a faith-healing cult at St. Matthias Anglican Church and one of the cut's leading members, Mrs. Marjorie Rogers.

Gerald Soloway, an attorney for Canon Smith, said following the verdict that he did not expect any charges to be laid, since presiding coroner Dr. H. B. Cotnam had noted in summary remarks a lack of "intent" to do harm on the part of the Anglican rector.

Ontario supervising Coroner Dr. Cutnam had no immediate comment.

COSMONAUT MAKES HINT DURING SPUTNIK CELEBRATIONS

Orbiting Space Platform Next Feat for Russians?

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A Russian cosmonaut hinted strongly today that his country's next major space feat will be the launching of an orbiting space platform—a floating laboratory high above the earth.

Konstantin Foektistov, a member of the three-man crew of the Voskhod spaceship sent up in October, 1964, said in a newspaper article here that space stations now are in the realm o possibility.

But he indicated a human landing on the moon still is five to 10 years away.

Feoktistov was one of many Soviet cosmonauts and scientists who today filled the pages of newspapers with articles commemorating the 10th anniversary of the first Sputnik.

The articles contained predictions about the future direction of Soviet space exploration, as well as assessments of the first 10 years.

Feoktistov, in an article on the front page of the Young Communist League newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda, said construction of a space station is no longer a matter of new scientific discoveries, but of putting together various existing engineering achievements.

Feoktistov said a space station could be made of either metal or spun plastic, sprayed into the proper shape and allowed to harden.

Feoktistov said linkups could be done automatically, without human hands at the controls. A recent series of Cosmos satellites, all launched into closely similar orbits, may be part of such an attempt.

A space station, Feoktistov said, could be given artificial gravity by having it rotate around its axis. But he predicted the first platforms would have no gravity and their inhabitants would have to get used to weightlessness, he added.

'Paris to Far East' TV Satellite Put Up

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union Tuesday night marked the eve of the 10th birthday of the space age by launching a new type of communications satellite that will transmit television programs to the Soviet Far East and possibly Paris.

Western experts in Moscow speculated it might also be used to relay programs between the Soviet Union and France as part of the Franco-Soviet color television system that made its debut in both countries Sunday.

Non-Red Gov't Aim Of Viet Cong—Report

TOKYO (Reuters)—A Japanese correspondent today quoted an unnamed Viet Cong leader as saying the guerrillas aimed to set up a socialist-oriented but non-Communist government in South Vietnam.

The Japanese news agency Kyodo said its Bangkok correspondent got the interview, but that the Viet Cong leader wanted to keep his name and the site of the interview secret to protect himself.

He said the guerrillas wanted to establish a coalition government that would accept aid from both East and West.

Asked how long he thought the war would continue, he said the Viet Cong were ready to continue fighting, but also were looking for peace, like most of the people of South Vietnam, the correspondent said.

"We do not intend to establish a Communist government in South Vietnam," the unnamed leader was reported to have said.

He said that neither the Viet Cong nor Hanoi would hold direct talks with the present Saigon government, and that peace talks must bring together the United States, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

rally all its members and beat back the challenge to its continued existence.

Frank Howard, the NDP member from Skeena, supported the government. He has given his constituents a pledge not to bring on another election. Bert Leboe, Social Credit from Cariboo, also supported the administration.

The inscrutable Robert Stanfield, new leader of the Conservative Party, watched from his perch in the galleries as the opposition failed dismally to defeat the government. He was expected to have something to say about "absenteeism" when he spoke to his caucus today. It was "absenteeism" that plagued his predecessor John Diefenbaker whenever the Tories sought to defeat the government, before the leadership convention.

Mr. Diefenbaker has urged more than once that newspapers should publish the list of all those voting in Commons divisions along with those absent. He believes it would "encourage" MPs to attend.

received and we have not changed our attitude."

Mr. Johnson had been reported holidaying on the Pacific Coast after his office in Quebec City announced he had cancelled all engagements until mid-October to undergo a medical examination and take a rest.

La Presse quotes Mr. Johnson as saying in Hawaii that the "constitutional position of the party is clearly established in documents, all of which have been made public."

His statement continues:

"In our striving for equality for the French-Canadian nation, Quebec—the principal home of the nation—has a preponderant role to play, but each of the provinces and the federal government has its part to play.

"For some time, in several provinces, authorities have shown greater comprehension of this new dimension which must be given to the constitution.

"The conference called by the Ontario premier marks a real turning point in our history and could be the most fruitful initiative ever taken since the conferences at Charlottetown and Quebec City which gave birth to Confederation.

"However, the federal government must realize that federalism can only work in co-operation with the provinces and not without them.

"It is a disservice to the country to label as separatists all those who are looking for democratic and peaceful ways to achieve the emergence of the French-Canadian nation."

Mr. Johnson left Quebec City for his holiday Sept. 17.

been deferred pending a meeting with the Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association.

Workers at 12 other northern interior operations and 14 in the south rejected strike action in government-supervised votes and cannot legally walk off the job.

The walkouts began after employers rejected a union request for further negotiations on the grounds that IWA's demand for a 50-cent hourly increase is unreasonable.

The union wants a 50-cent hourly boost to give interior workers a base rate of $2.76 an hour and parity with coastal woodworkers.

The employers have refused to give more than the 44-cent hourly increase recommended in an industrial inquiry report by Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe of the B.C. Supreme Court.

44-CENT 'LIMIT'

Horace Simpson, chairman of the southern interior operators' negotiating committee, said Tuesday the union has been informed the 44-cent increase is a two-year contract is the limit.

"We obviously can't reach an agreement when the IWA leadership is determined to achieve unrealistic economic goals," he said.

Meanwhile, about 400 workers have been on strike against Celgar Ltd., Castlegar, for about two weeks. Celgar bargained independently with the IWA and did not ask for a government-supervised strike vote.

Bank Notes From Organ

There will be music with money in the Bank of Nova Scotia, Yates and Douglas, Friday afternoon.

. . . WILSON

167,000 to 2,898,000 for a resolution urging Wilson to seek the expulsion of Greece's military government from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. It also demanded a complete cut-off of all military aid and other contacts with the Greeks until a civilian government is restored.

It was the second year in a row that the left-wingers swung the conference against government policy on Vietnam.

Brown's defence of the government stand was his first speech from the conference platform since his political future was put in question by a dance-floor argument with photographers Monday night.

The conference turned down a left-wing demand for drastic cuts in defence spending and foreign military commitments.

DRAWS CHEERS

Before the voting, Wilson drew a standing ovation with a fighting speech in defence of his economic austerity program, evidently aimed at reasserting his personal authority in the party.

Observers regarded his hour-long survey of the government's record as the most important speech for his own standing since he became party chief four years ago.

He apparently succeeded, at least temporarily, in reviving support among delegates who met here in a mood of disillusionment with government economic policy.

But observers said it remained to be seen how far Wilson's claim that the economy was at a turning point for the better would boost the party's morale and standing in the country.

He told the party his government would "resist pressures to embark on irresponsible inflationary policies."

The government narrowly won a vote of confidence in its economic policies at the conference Tuesday.

Wilson drew cheers with a promise to free British industry from "American domination."

"Basically now there is an upturn in the economy," Wilson said.

He said national production and output a man are rising, the rate of unemployment increase is levelling off and Britain's overseas trade is balancing out.

"I believe more than ever now," Wilson said, "that if socialism had never existed the challenge and opportunities of the new scientific revolution would have brought it into being."

He emphasized some of his government's economic aims, including switching men and factories from military research to the fight on "our economic and social problems," and reducing "our humiliating inherited dependence on industry overseas" for supply of modern machinery.

Wilson spoke with feeling of Britain's nearly 600,000 unemployed, the highest number for 27 years, to the delegates. He argued that "there was no alternative" to the harsh measures his government had taken in deflating the economy in mid-1966.

A fighting speech by James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, Tuesday won a standing ovation and persuaded the convention to endorse Wilson's wage-price freeze and other stern economic measures.

United Appeal Total Hits $175,000 Cash, Pledges

By TED GASKELL

A buck in the hand is worth two on a promise, to paraphrase the old proverb.

And that's just about the ratio of cash and pledges to date in the United Red Feather Red Cross Appeal's drive.

This week divisions outside the residential canvass section reported more than $175,000 pledged and promised but only $81,084 has actually been received.

Closest to achieving the division goal is individual advance gifts. Chairman Frank Donegani reported he has received in cash $40,388 of the $42,255 pledged. Division goal is $58,000.

Eric L. Mallet, corporations division chairman whose goal is $130,700, has been pledged $94,574 of which $24,700 has been received at the appeal office.

The professional division has $6,218 pledged of its $49,600 goal but only $237 is in cash.

Corporations (employees) has all but $300 of its reported $6,367 in cash but this is far short of the $119,500 goal.

General firms division had all its reported $596 in cash. Goal is $41,900.

Business district figures show $861 of its reported $1,004 in cash with a goal of $11,400.

The federal service division reported $22,699 with $6,020 in cash. Goal is $39,300.

Public service group has all its reported $2,135 in cash out of an objective of $39,500.

Canvassers are now being urged to turn in all donations so that the money can be audited as soon as possible.

Graham McCall, president of the Community Chest board of directors, expressed some optimism with returns to date but warned that the business canvass must be completed before the residential drive starts Oct. 13.

Israel Rejects '49 Pact

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban, reacting sharply to earlier statements by Arab nations, said Tuesday night Isreael repudiates the Middle East armistice agreements of 1949.

He added, in fact, that Israel has "no valid contractual engagements" with its Arab neighbors apart from the UN-sponsored ceasefire accord of last June.

He said he had heard reports of a willingness on the party of the Arab countries to renounce the policies of non-recognition of Israel, hostility and belligerency which "had led to the present situation." But neither the foreign ministers of Egypt or Jordan, in their policy speeches to the General Assembly, recognized Israel's right to security and peace, Eban said.

The speech by Muhammad A. El-Aamiry of Jordan, generally considered one of the more moderate Arab states, was particularly suprprising to UN delegates because of its outspoken opposition to any direct negotiations with Israel.

Eban, who has given his policy speech earlier, spoke Tuesday under the right-of-reply rule and said Israel would not return to the "political and juridical anarchy or to the strategic vulnerability" from which it merged as a result of the recent war.

In other assembly speeches Tuesday, neutral Finland and Communist Poland asked the United States to stop bombing North Vietnam as a prelude to peace talks.

Full Slate In Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — A field of 365 candidates—record for an Ontario provincial contest—filed nomination papers before the official close of nominations Tuesday for the Oct. 17 election.

The previous high was 338 candidates in the last provincial election, Sept. 25, 1963. There are 117 seats at stake this year. A 1966 redistribution added 17 new seats, eliminated five and combined six into three for a net gain of nine.

The Progressive Conservative, Liberal and New Beomcratic parties entered candidates in all ridings, ruling out the prospect of any acclamations.

In addition, seven Social Credit candidates, two Communists and five independents filed papers.

New Book Tells Navy Base Story

FRANCE IGNORING OTTAWA

PARIS (CP)—President de Gaulle's government is ignoring the Canadian embassy in sending ministers to Quebec, a Canadian official said today.

The official said the French administration did not consult the embassy before Education Minister Alain Peyrefitte and Youth Minister Francois Missoffe made their trips to the provincial capital.

Canadian embassy officials found out about the trips by other means. The usual courtesy of one country informing another when its high officials plan visits appeared to be studiously avoided, the official said.

MARTIN
. . . 'an insult'

'Preposterous' Martin Remark Angers Formosa

TAIPEI (AP)—The newspaper Shin Sheng Pao, published by the Formosa provincial government, has condemned in an editorial an interview remark attributed to Paul Martin, Canadian external affairs minister.

It quotes Martin as having said that Canada's policy "is a one-Formosa and one-China policy" and says this remark is "even more preposterous" than Martin's policy statement before the United Nations General Assembly Sept. 27.

On that occasion Martin recalled the proposal he made last year to give China's seat in the Security Council and General Assembly to Communist China without depriving Formosa of representation in the assembly.

Shin Sheng Pao calls Martin's latest remark "an insult to our government and people, including our fellow countrymen on the mainland, and we consider it intolerable."

In Taipei, the Martin proposal is called a "two-China" policy. It was attacked editorially last week by a newspaper which reflects the views of the ruling party here.

8-DAY CANADA VISIT

Chiang Sends Deputy Instead

OTTAWA (CP)—Huang Shao-Kuo, deputy prime minister of Nationalist China is to begin an eight-day state visit to Canada Friday in Toronto, the Chinese embassy announced today.

Mr. Huang will be accompanied by his wife, Foreign Minister Wei Tao-ming and Economic Affairs Minister K. T. Li.

Mr. Huang is to receive an official welcome in Ottawa Sunday, have talks with Prime Minister Pearson the following day and travel to Expo 67 in Montreal Tuesday where he is to preside at China's national day ceremonies.

Original plans had called for a 10-day visit by C. K. Yen, vice-president and prime minister of Nationalist China but it was cancelled 18 hours before he was to leave.

The Chinese foreign office said Mr. Yen's cancellation was a result of "practical necessities" of government during the planned visit.

The Millstones

BRITAIN'S PRIME MINISTER Wilson barely scraped through on his Labor Party's convention vote yesterday, and the overall appearance was one of reluctant support. The basic disagreement of the party lies in the government's economic policy — the austerity program of controlled wages and prices designed to combat a ruinous inflationary spiral and protect the pound sterling. Labor's protest is that while the policy has held wages relatively stable, it has not kept prices in many instances from going up. In yesterday's results at the annual party convention at Scarborough, the government got grudging support because no one has come up with a better plan.

Mr. Wilson thus is caught between two millstones: the growing resentment, not only of his own supporters, but of the whole country, at the unsatisfactory trend of his economic policies; and the equally inescapable probability that any relinquishment of the controls he has established would result in a much more rapid collapse into national bankruptcy.

Finance Minister Callaghan warned the party — as he has warned the country — that abandonment of the wage-freeze and other unpopular policies would lead inevitably to inflation, increased unemployment (already at an unusually high level for Britain), and further problems in the national balance of payments. Dislike of the economy measures cannot entirely dispel the worry that Mr. Wilson may be right. Certainly the country's predicament before the controls were imposed appeared to call for drastic action. It is not the inconvenience or hardship of the controls that aggravate so much, perhaps, as the fact that they have not produced the hoped-for results. All that the public has is Mr. Callaghan's exhortation to hold on for a while longer.

There are other problems aside from the economy, as The New Statesman makes plain in a recent attack on the government. "Mr. Wilson's Rhodesian policy," the weekly says editorially, "is now a complete shambles, Aden one of the most shamefully mismanaged episodes in our entire colonial history." To these items may be added the increasingly unpopular support of the government for United States policy in Vietnam, and the continuing problem of Britain's unsuccessful attempts to enter the European Common Market.

These would constitute heavy millstones for any national leader. For Mr. Wilson, forced to abandon some of his socialist program in the face of harsh economic facts, they must be particularly weighty, exacerbated always by the knowledge that the problems which he is failing to solve would perhaps be insoluble by any man, but he alone as leader must bear the blame.

Support for the Sturdy?

WITH SOME VIGOR THE fourth annual review of the Canadian economy published by the Economic Council of Canada stressed that governments at all levels should not at this time take on any unnecessary expenditures. Specifically, the council warned against the government assuming further subsidy programs — the federal dairy subsidy was used as an illustration — because of their disruptive effect on the economy.

Ottawa nevertheless has introduced a new spending program — and an agricultural subsidy at that — in the form of minimum price supports for wheat based on $1.95½ per bushel for No. 1 Northern at the Lakehead, which corresponds to the price in the new International Wheat Agreement.

This guaranteed price — 20½ cents above the old IWA minimum — represents a handout to farmers which could be very expensive for Canadian taxpayers should the agreement not be ratified by Canada's major wheat customers. With improved agricultural conditions in most parts of the world and a buyers' market developing for wheat and other grains, this is a distinct possibility. The new IWA is not scheduled to come into force until next July and potential wheat customers can be expected to wait at least until near the deadline to appraise the situation.

While the new wheat subsidy was introduced by the government — in the person of Trade Minister Winters who had heretofore appeared to be a strong supporter of greater economy — it was supported by all political parties. No one, however, including Mr. Winters, had anything to say as to why the subsidy was necessary. At the old IWA price the farmers had found it profitable to expand their production by millions of acres and, while farmers' costs may have gone up like everything else in the past year, no evidence was introduced to show that the subsidy was necessary to continued profitable wheat growing.

During the Kennedy Round bargaining, Canada's representatives agreed that the old IWA price should not be extended from July, 1967, until next July when the new agreement is supposed to take effect. They were willing to let the price fluctuate on a free market. What none of the politicians is willing to do, it appears, is to chance alienating political support in the prairie provinces.

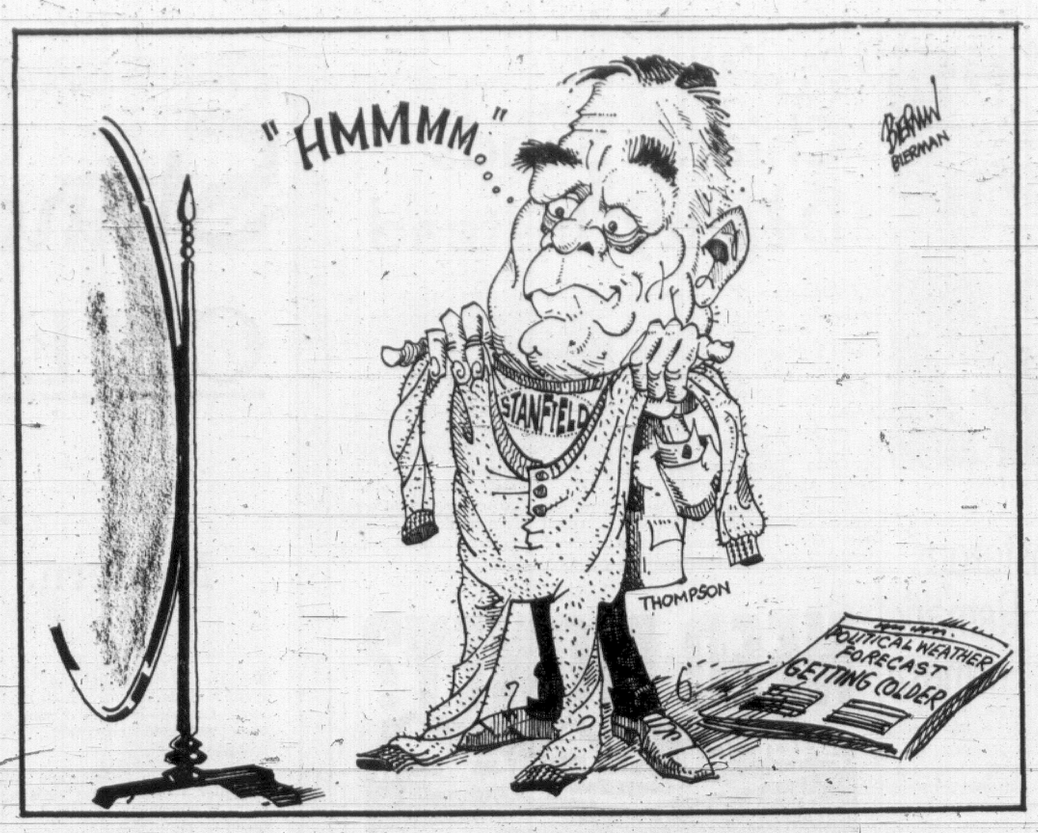
A Decade in Space

THE RAPID PROGRESS OF space exploration since the first launching of Russia's Sputnik I has been incredible. The feat itself, ten years ago today, was certainly that as it opened a new era in earth's history, a new door to man's scientific aspirations.

Although in the far distant reaches of time the advent of Sputnik I may be regarded somewhat as we now think of the first caveman to push a log into a stream and straddle it, still the almost unimaginable developments that will take place in space travel must ever be beholden to that first startling event.

Sputnik I was little more than a small metal ball, yet the scientific and technological achievements in putting it into the first orbit of a man-made, artificial satellite of our earth were the result of many years of effort. It is to the lasting fame of the Soviet Union that it was the first nation to achieve this triumph. The first effort was followed by other noteworthy events, both Russian and American, and today the prospect of putting men on the moon, while still a goal several years off, is so feasible, and indeed so inevitable, that people speak of it as though it would be announced almost any morning.

Already rocket probes have been launched to Mars and Venus. No one can put a limit to the imaginative possibilities of the future, but they must all go back to Sputnik I for their gravity-bursting genesis — an adventure which took place not yesterday but a decade ago. There are children in the fifth grade of school today who have never known a world without space vehicles.



FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

Melancholy Talk About Gold

THE House of Commons engaged on Friday in a somewhat melancholy debate which aroused minimal interest although it was of direct concern to considerable areas of the country and related to matters of immediate importance to the international community. At fairly regular intervals over the past two decades Parliament has extended what is quaintly described as the Emergency Gold Mining Assistance Act. This presently costs the taxpayers about $15 million annually although subsidies are expected to decline somwhat during the next three "emergency" years.

Western

Several members discerned an analogy between the subsidy to gold and that announced earlier in the week in respect to wheat. This is fanciful for a variety of reasons. In the first place, wheat normally requires no subsidy. Secondly, it is not dependent on a subsidy in the sense that, with or without special assistance, the wheat plains would have poured out their production in 1968. Thirdly, the wheat subsidy may or may not materialize depending on what happens to world prices. In the fourth place the wheat subsidy is genuinely intended to bridge a definite time gap; it will lapse with the ratification of the International Wheat Agreement.

Not one of these considerations applies to gold. It is beyond doubt that the industry has made a great contribution to Canada. In the three decades following 1920 (long after the Klondike rush) it was our most important metal; in 1941, a peak year, it accounted for about 37 per cent of our mineral production. But is is equally obvious that, since 1948, it has been a sick industry. Mr Pepin told the House that, without assistance, 28 of the 37 lode mines now being subsidized would cease their operations within a short time.

Costly to Canada

The reason is plain enough. The price of gold paid by the U.S. treasury is $35 a fine ounce (about $37.84 in our funds) and this has not changed since 1934. But the costs of production have steadily increased and continue to do so. As a result each ounce produced — except as a by-product of other mining operations — costs Canada about 6.63 dollars.

Although the Conservative government in 1958 increased subsidies by 25 per cent, the decline of gold has not been arrested. Since 1948 the number of mines has dropped by more than two-thirds. There has been some imporvement in efficiency as shown by the fact that production. But it is equally obvious employment but the companies are hard pressed to find labor since they cannot compete with wages paid elsewhere in the mining industry.

With members from mining communities (such as Mr. Nielsen, Mr. Orange, Mr. Martin of Timmins and Mr. Caouette), it is an article of faith that the price of gold should be increased. Various figures were mentioned, ranging from $75 to $100 an ounce. Mr. Martin, an NDP member, sounded in his remarks about the IMF rather like an old testament prophet denouncing latter day heresies.

Traditionalist View

"Let me remind the minister," he said, "that if we make a study of history we will find that for 5,000 years people have been looking for a substitute for gold but for 5,000 years have been unsuccessful in finding one with any lasting value, I predict without one shred of hesitation that their efforts will be as unsuccessful this time as they have been for the past 5,000 years."

After raking the minister of finance for attempting at Rio "to replace gold with some kind of funny money," Mr. Martin predicted that, "after great stress and strain and possibly another depression like we had in the 1930s, gold will come back into its own and we will start over again."

It will be interesting to see how this vision appeals to Mr. Colin Cameron who speaks for the party on matters of international liquidity.

The House had three Conservative views. Mr. Aiken, although sympathetic to the industry, saw no relief in sight. Referring to the IMF plan, he said: "There is the feeling that something interesting might come out of this proposal, but it is quite obvious that if that is the case, it will be superimposed upon the present use of gold and will be devoted almost entirely to International Monetary Fund transactions." He could find no indications of U.S. intention to increase the price of gold.

As for Dr. Kindt of Macleod, his concern was the exact opposite of Mr. Nielsen's. "Can the people of Canada be assured," he asked, "that there will be no tampering with the price of gold which will disturb the value of all other commodities?"

On Mr. Pepin's showing, and, indeed, on that of Mr. Aiken, there is no economic case for subsidizing gold. There is a social case because 20 communities, with a population in excess of 80,000 are primarily dependent on gold. (Mr. Orange put the number at 120,000 which perhaps indicates that there are varying degrees of dependence.) Some of them are in areas of particular vulnerability because the people, many of them Indians, Metis or Eskimos, are ill-equipped to adapt themselves to a rapidly changing economy.

But there is no reason why the country should sustain indefinitely a dependent industry which has no discernible future and which, according to Mr. Pepin, is a drag on the mining industry as a whole. Like coal in Cape Breton, it should be phased out. Perhaps the best hope is that the boom in other metals will reduce regional dependence on gold.

Attack on Carter

This may explain the fact that Liberal and Conservative (but not NDP) speakers, directed a good deal of their fire on the Carter report. It would be foolish, in present circumstances, to provide new incentives for the gold mining companies. But the plight of gold and the gold-mining communities is certainly a further argument against reducing the incentives to the mining industry generally, as proposed by the Carter commission.

The debate had one interesting sidelight. The provinces are extremely jealous of their powers and have recently demonstrated an intense interest in offshore mining rights. But they have shown remarkable generosity in leaving declining industries to federal jurisdiction. As Mr. Caouette put it: "If the Quebec government insists on taking charge of everything in the province, it should start by assuming its responsibility with regard to the miners, who are being displaced or are losing their jobs because the gold mines are closing their doors."

Mr. Pepin is willing and eager to accommodate the provinces in this regard. What for?

VOICE OF LE DEVOIR, MONTREAL — By EDITOR CLAUDE RYAN

Federalism: Preferred Way to Freedom

WE may criticize federalism. However, we must agree that it has given us in Quebec full use of the fundamental liberties that are the cornerstone of true democracy. Freedom of speech, freedom of movement, freedom of belief, freedom of association: what country in the world can boast in this respect of more advantages and positive accomplishments than Canada? The conquest of these liberties is the result of long and patient evolution. We doubt that the option of independence can achieve any improvement in this respect.

In the economic field, Mr. (Rene) Levesque himself recognizes that very close co-operation with English Canada would be necessary if Quebec became independent. To that we say that it would be difficult to find a means of co-operation that is more effective than what is possible within supple and intelligent federalism . . .

There is another capital aspect: cultural freedom. In this respect, Quebec already possesses in large measure the powers it needs to affirm itself and it could through intelligent negotiation and initiative add to these already-acquired powers those it will need to meet its increased tasks.

Furthermore, federalism can also, without diminishing in any way Quebec's liberty, ensure equitable protection to French-Canadians living in the rest of the country. In 1967, the climate is even better than ever for achievement of reforms that have become necessary.

Federalism evidently presumes that liberty will be shared among its various elements rather than be jealously kept by one only. That is a factor that will become more and more indispensable to good government of peoples. What individual peoples give up as regards unlimited and absolute self-affirmation they gain in discipline and respect for the rights of others. If the history of the last two centuries is to be useful, it must be to remind us that liberty of nations, when not complemented and tempered by more and more pronounced elements of federalism at the international level will inevitably lead humanity to new wars . . .

Quebec is better placed within Canadian federalism to negotiate with English Canada and even with the United States arrangements taking into account its true well-being, its real interests in all fields. In this respect, it has made considerable gains in the last few years. It can make new and very important ones in the years to come. Would it be wise to give up these positive prospects for a precipitate choice that would plunge us into complete uncertainty?

If the choice were a commitment only for an individual, we would gladly wish him good luck. But since the choice involves a whole people — a people whose existence, even under the assumption of independence, would remain precarious because of the geographical context — it is absolutely necessary to insist on a minute examination of the case before being persuaded by it.

Neither from the point of view of the liberty of French-Canadians, nor from the point of view of necessary collaboration with the other peoples of North America, have Mr. Levesque and the partisans of independence succeeded in convincing us of the validity of their stand.

For the moment, federalism seems to us to be the preferred way to freedom and collaboration for Quebec. Quebec would commit a serious error by discarding that form of government to precipitate itself without further consideration into an enterprise that would theoretically satisfy its profound and legitimate desire for liberty but would involve serious risk for all the progress accomplished up to now and that can still be accomplished by choosing federalism.

Liberty is indivisible. We do not want a national level of liberty that takes away our personal, social, economic and political liberties. Liberty too, alas, is relative. By temperament, we distrust those who promise absolute liberty to us. Since we have the advantage of somewhat more liberty than the great majority of peoples of the world, we should not lightly sacrifice what we have on the altar of theoretical liberty which by its absoluteness would quickly threaten to become terribly limited.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Looking Back

From the Times, Oct. 4, 1907.

The mines at Nanaimo are still idle pending a settlement of the drivers' and the pushers' demands for a 10 per cent increase.

At yesterday afternoon's meeting the company offered to arbitrate with the drivers citing the Lemieux Act and appealing to the government for a conciliation board. The drivers refused to accept the offer. Another meeting will be held this afternoon.

The way the situation stands now, all are willing to work with the exception of the drivers.

Why Not Dredge?

On Page 8 of the Sept. 28 Times I noted an article about the B.C. cabinet approving a $650,000 vote for a dyke-bolstering program used on the Fraser and Columbia rivers.

Having lived for eight years at Mission City and seen the disastrous flood of '48 and seen the river in late summer, various seasons, I often wondered that dredging down the centre of the river was not used. Evidence farther up the river from Mission showed soil deposits and young trees getting established through soil deposits. That rich black loam would be a valuable asset in areas where needed. — Harry Wyer, 234 Vancouver.

More Data Needed

I heartily agree with Mr. Ray Perrault, that more reliable data are needed in labor-wage negotiations. It is equally senseless for labor to demand "more" and management to resist the demands with nothing basic to go on. I have long thought we should have a well paid, impartial, permanent commission or board consisting of a representative from government, labor, management, and last, but prayerfully not least, the consumers, whose sole duty would be to bring out honest economic facts of life in our area. Thus all would share in necessary increases in income, including the forgotten retired people who have labored all their lives and are entitled to a decent standard of living — something for which in one way or another all have paid for. — M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra.

Cruel Picture

How cruelly the camera depicts Mr. Diefenbaker in the presentation of the fish plaque in your paper the other day.

Is it necessary to show such an unflattering picture? Surely others were taken which could have been less unflattering? Although I do not and never have supported him in his kind of politicking, still I feel that some modicum of restraint should be used in depicting people who, though set back, have still fought gallantly for what they believe in. — Ethel A. Hill (Mrs.), 109 St. Andrews.

Junk Mail

As an unfortunate taxpayer, I do not agree with the suggestion that there be yet another increase in the postal rate for personal letters.

Compare the volume of anyone's personal letters with the volume of advertising that the first-class mail has so long supported. There is not only the larger number of items, but the incredibly heavy materials of which these cardboard lumps are designed.

This large volume, which is simply an annoyance to the average taxpayer who has to smooth out his compressed first-class, could be useful on its trip from post office to wastebasket through one's mail box. How? By paying higher rates. This would be simple justice for all the years when it has been taxpayer supported.—R. Lawrence.

The Constitutional Crisis: False Tranquillity at an End

By MAXWELL COHEN

This is the first of two articles by Prof. Cohen, dean of the faculty of law at McGill University and a frequent contributor to the Times and other publications on problems of constitutional and international law.

It is now clear that we are in the midst of possibly the gravest threat to Canada and its federal unity that has appeared since Confederation. The Centennial celebrations now shift, ironically, from arts and games to sheer survival.

What has brought us so swiftly to this condition? It would be naive to pretend that the storm now in the making was not entirely predictable. Months ago it was evident that the rising demand in Quebec for some definition of the new relationship soon had to be faced.

The "quiet revolution" and its political thrust seemed for a year or two to have been stabilized, giving Quebec and Canada a more leisurely chance to evolve the new forms of a Canadian coexistence. But subtler students knew that only the surface was tranquil.

The McGill grants issue; the debate over the threat to English-speaking ("Protestant") educational independence; the uncomfortable claims to some unilingual expectations for the province; Daniel Johnson's mixed commitments to a weakened confederation or independence; the restiveness within the provincial Liberal party where contesting wings were vying for the capture of its image and its role; the continuing attractions of independence to the young fed by an adult leadership that often was confused or at least demanding the best of many worlds without counting the cost — all of these were present for the eye to see, to testify to a latent explosive force.

LESTER B. PEARSON
. . . his best not enough

Then came a series of stimulants that brought that potential force to its present strength — the RIN'S avowal of violence if necessary; the De Gaulle visit with all of its euphoria and political exploitation; Jean Noel Tremblay's new pressures toward and promises of a unilingual priority in the province; the death of Abbe Groulx and its evoking of a significant nationalist response; the adoption by the Conservatives of the "two-nation" theory in open convention; and, finally, the Levesque speech proclaiming his support for a sovereign state and his demand that the provincial Liberals stand for his program or face the threat of his deserting the party, with the possibility of a new political venture.

Canada and Quebec stand therefore today at some kind of final crossroad. Over the years the federal image, whatever the reality, has been weakened.

Mr. Pearson probably has done the best he can, given the varieties of advice and pressures that have pulled him in several directions, mixing strength and weakness, providing some leadership and much accommodation.

Crisis Might Have Been Worse

Had he not shown the flexibility, resilience and essential good will that has characterized his Quebec policies since 1963 the crisis would have come sooner and perhaps with an even more explosive atmosphere than that which now faces the country.

Yet the truth is that something has been wrong at the federal level during these years. There is today a very talented group of French language federal ministers, Marchand, Sauve, Trudeau, Chretien and Pepin are men of intellectual power and subtle sensitivities, certainly to their own Quebec environment.

Yet is is difficult to see what the value has been of their common efforts to stem or redirect the tide of these aspects of nationalist sentiment which are negative and destructive, radical and xenophobic; aspects which threaten to make a united Canada chronically unstable, if not impossible.

Nor can Mr. Pearson's recent constitutional policies be said to have shown strategic or tactical wisdom of that high order required for so grave a confrontation. The long silence between 1963 and 1967 was based upon the assumption that until the homework had been fully done and the issues fully defined, constitutional change was premature and unrealistic.

The appointment of a study group in 1967, the announcement of a Bill of Rights conference for early 1968 and the lukewarm federal response to the Robarts constitutional conference to be held in November 1967, were cumulatively again a reflection of this belief that constitutional change was the principal responsibility of federal leadership but that it could come only when serious preparations had made the issues ready for political and juridical definition.

PIERRE TRUDEAU
. . . marginal influence

Regrettably this assessment has now proven to be wrong in its political timing and in its substantive appreciation. It should have been clear to the prime minister's advisers that there was something more in the air than a dispute over the details of some new divisions of power.

It should have been evident that the cry for "particular status" or "two nations" whether well or ill-founded, somehow had to be met with more than technical arguments charging unworkability or irrelevance. A wiser assessment would have recognized the power of the new emotions and would have tried to find the symbols to capture the nationalist imagination without yielding essential Canadian substance.

For the truth is that almost every knowledgeable Canadian student of the constitution, and its administrative and financial operation, is persuaded that the actual division of powers between the federal and provincial governments probably is adequate to meet the needs of the new Quebec, or of any province, to fulfil their immensely growing role in the fields of education, welfare, rural and urban development, local transportation, etc.

What the constitution does not have, however, is language which dramatizes and symbolizes the "uniqueness" of the Quebec situation; or words which provide a new level of consultative machinery to dignify the role of Quebec and the other provinces in making felt their views in areas otherwise essentially under federal jurisdiction, such as fiscal and monetary policy as well as necessary coordination of federal and provincial budgets and programs.

No Effective Federal Response

Perhaps more significant is the neglect to somehow fashion in recent days an effective federal policy responsive to the appeal for some recognition of "two peoples" or "two nations" or of "particular status."

Indeed the irony is that the present government, wisely or not, when setting up the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism used the phrase "a partnership of the two founding peoples" thus stimulating high expectations, both legal and symbolical.

Yet in the present developing crisis over this very issue, the government has had nothing significant to say except to argue variously through Mr. Trudeau that "particular status" may or may not be derirable and it cannot adequately be discussed until the details of the demands are known.

But a deeper irony is reserved surely for the fact that federal leadership here may become in the end, less significant than whatever happens in Quebec itself, than the internal debate within French Canada and among French-Canadians — with or without the dialogue including their fellow Quebecers of the anglophonic community.

JEAN NOEL TREMBLAY
. . . new pressures

Indeed Mr. Pearson's and Mr. Trudeau's views, and those of their advisers, are likely to have only an increasingly marginal influence on the internal Quebec (francophonic) debate.

This may be partly their own fault but more probably it is a situation largely beyond their control. Had a stronger, more imaginative federal line been taken over the years on constitutional change, a certain tone might have been set by the federal Liberals that could have influenced the course of a debate within the Quebec French-speaking family.

Urgently Needed Vigor Lacking

Regrettably this was not done with the vigor, foresight and political awareness that urgently was needed to achieve this role.

Yet even if it had been done, even if Mr. Pearson and his colleagues had been more profoundly sensitive and imaginative, more creative, more tactically responsive about the constitution and its future, it is probable that the real debate still would have centred inside Quebec and within the French-speaking community with most of the one million non-French-speaking Canadians in the province only sideline spectators — to their chagrin, discredit and perhaps their peril.

ABM Programs May Encourage U.S., Soviet Missile Buildup

(Second of Two Articles)

By VICTOR ZORZA
The Manchester Guardian

I have been told by authoritative and official sources in Washington that the Soviet Union is on the point of catching up with the United States in land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM's).

During a previous visit, earlier this summer, I was told merely that the Russians are on the point of reaching parity, without any further details.

During my present visit to Washington, however, actual figures have been mentioned — though I was quickly asked not to reveal them. The information may appear to be colored, since it slipped out in the course of a discussion with officials who are convinced that the Soviet Union is mounting a determined drive for military superiority, and that the U.S. should take immediate and massive action to counter this.

Although the detailed figures the officials mentioned may not be used, enough is known on the public record to work out an approximate picture.

Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara, who does not believe that the Soviet Union is in a position to attain nuclear superiority, has himself revealed in his speech announcing the antiballistic missile prgram that in "recent years" the Russians have "substantially increased" their missile force.

Now Up to 340

What makes a "substantial" increase? In 1962, the Soviet force consisted of 75 land-based ICBM's. By the middle of last year, according to McNamara's own testimony to Congress, the figure had risen to 340.

Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has since added that the Russians "have greatly accelerated" the construction of hardened ICBM sites. He warned that the Russians "are increasing their numbers quite dramatically." Their capability to inflict damage on the U.S. was much greater today than it was in 1962, "and it will be much greater again next year than it is today."

This kind of language, taken together with a growth from 75 missiles in 1962 to 340 in the middle of last year, suggests an extremely rapid rate of construction in the "recent years" of which McNamara had spoken.

Indeed, a figure of 450 ICBM's has been mentioned in a report in the New York Times, quoting government "analysts," who also said that the Russians were providing more missiles at the rate of 150 to 200 a year.

Fast Growth

I have reason to believe that the figure of 450 mentioned in this report represented not the present number, but the total as it stood in the early part of this year. This would therefore suggest a growth of about 110 from the 340 at the middle of last year, as given by McNamara, to the 450 at the beginning of this year as given by other sources.

When this increase of 110 in little more than half a year is doubled, it comes near enough to the growth rate of 200 a year. This figure, added to the 450 at the beginning of this year, would increase the total to 650 in early 1968. The construction of a hardened missile site takes about 15 to 18 months before the weapon becomes operational.

Therefore, if the Russians are to maintian their recent rate of construction — and they may, indeed, be increasing it — they would have begun by now to dig another 200 holes in the ground, and the work would be easily spotted by U.S. reconnaissance satellites.

This would add up to something like 950 ICBM sites, actual and potential, which is not far from parity with the 1,000 Minutemen which constitute the main U.S. land-based ICBM force — with the addition of about 50 of the obsolete Titan II missiles, which are being phased out.

This is the equation which Harold Brown, the air force secretary, must have had in mind when the secret of parity almost slipped out during his testimony to a Congress subcommittee earlier this year.

Move Now

"I think that as of this moment we probably have more total missiles," he said. "I think that ratio won't be true in another year or two."

Why not? Evidently because at that time, the U.S. was maintaining its intention to stick at 1,000 Minutemen, in spite of what Brown himself described as a "very fast" Russian build-up. "Our plans are that five years from now we will have just as many missiles as we have right now," he said. "Now we can afford to let them build for a while, if they feel they want to catch up."

It would therefore appear that at that time the administration was prepared to allow the Russians to reach parity — though in land-based missiles only. The United States also has 656 missile launchers on Polaris submarines, but because of modifications and visits to base only about half this number will be operational in the years immediately ahead. And the Russians are building up their own submarine missile force at a spanking pace.

Catching Up?

In these circumstances, and particularly in view of what is believed to be the increasing rate of the Russian build-up, is the U.S. still prepared to allow the Russians to "catch up."

The evidence is not clear. McNamara declared in his San Francisco speech Sept. 18 that the U.S. is determined to maintain "a superiority" over Russia, but at the same time insisted that "the number of aviailable missile launchers" was not "a meaningful and realisitic measurement of nuclear capability."

What was important, in his view, was the number of separate warheads — and "the fact is that many of our launchers will carry multiple warheads." And in terms of warheads, the U.S. now had "a superiority over the Soviet Union of at least three or four to one," and intended to maintain it.

It was not so long ago that he used to talk of the U.S. superiority of 3 to 1 in terms of actual missiles. This shows how greatly — and quickly — the relationship is changing.

McNamara indicated in San Francisco that, given certain conditions, the United States might be prepared to allow the Russians to catch up — but only under "a properly safeguarded agreement first to limit, and then to reduce, both our offensive and defensive strategic forces."

He believes that the nuclear arsenals of both Russian and the United States are excessive when measured against their real security requirements. If the United States had had more accurate information in 1961 about the planned Soviet strategic forces, "we simply would not have needed to build as large a nuclear arsenal as we have today."

McNamara concedes that this excessive buildup then caused the Russians to bring up their own force to excessive levels — because they too were ignorant of American intentions," and if the talks he has proposed to the Kremlin should fail, both countries would be forced to continue on "a foolish and reckless course."

Parity Offer

These disjointed phrases, scattered with seeming abandon throughout the San Francisco speech, were clearly meant to be picked up by the Russians and joined together so that they would read to them like an offer of parity — provided that mutual assurances and information are first traded by the two sides in secret talks.

McNamara had to offer parity to the Russians, because he now evidently believes that this is what they are after and that they will not settle for less than that. But he could not say this in so many words, because of the storm of opposition which would be provoked at this stage by and formal proposal to allow Russia to attain parity.

McNamara has got to contend not only with opposition from his own chiefs of staff in the Pentagon and politicians on Capitol Hill, but also with the opposition from the Russian military leaders and civilian hawks in the Kremlin to those Soviet politicians who might want to negotiate. The Kremlin hawks will shut their eyes to the hints, and will point instead to his claim that the U.S. now has three or four "warheads" for every Russian warhead, and that McNamara is determined to maintain "a superiority" into the indefinite future.

They have evidently been saying it since last March to some effect, because the Soviet government has failed to follow up its acceptance of the U.S. invitation to talks on offensive and defensive missiles, announced by President Johnson at that time.

Look to Future

They will point to his announcement that the U.S. has already initiated offensive weapons programs costing several billion dollars to offset "the small present Soviet ABM deployment," as well as "the possibly more extensive" future deployments.

McNamara's announcement that the proposed U.S. ABM system, while being intended against China, will add "a further defense of our Minuteman sites against Soviet attack," will be read by them as a tacit admission that the U.S. deployment is anti-Soviet in intent, and that "China" is little more than a figleaf.

They will be aware of the "building block" concept of the ABM system, which will enable the U.S. to expand the "anti-China" deployment very rapidly, and to overtake quickly the relatively puny Soviet effort. This is because the main cost and foundation of the ABM system is laid down at the beginning, in the form of radar and computer networks.

This can then be expanded comparatively easily and cheaply through the addition of defensive missiles.

McNamara did not actually threaten the Russians with this prospect, any more than he had actually offered them parity. But both ideas were implicit in his speech.

If he wants the Kremlin doves to bring the hawks to the table, he will have to make it clear that he is not threatening — only asking.

The Bridge That Belonged To Buck, Billy and Lawrie

By ART STOTT

The new Gorge Bridge has been formally opened and, in news pictures, its sponsors, the reeves of Saanich and Esquimalt and the minister of highways, smile their appreciation of a good job well done.

Stott

This isn't a particularly heroic picture of three men on a bridge. It isn't going to rank with another triumvirate, centred by a man called Horatius, who stood on another bridge in another era and provided a theme for a Macaulay epic. But it should become part of the memorabilia entwined around a span that is sentimentally important to a lot of old-timers here.

In an old snapshot album at home we have a picture of three young men on an earlier Gorge bridge — or perhaps not on it, rather in flight just above the handrail. Printed in white crayon on the black paper mounting are their names: "Buck, Lawrie and Billy." The camera has caught them at the top of their dives — a flight of swans — and records a form of excellence recognized by Victorians when I was a boy.

To me, and perhaps to hundreds of others who were youngsters with me, the old Gorge bridge will remain in memory as the particular altar of Buck Calder, Lawrie Bidlake and Billy Muir. We conducted an unconscious form of pagan worship there and looked with reverence on the three as high priests.

Diving from the span took on the character of an adolescent courage rite for us. We came to it in fear. It wasn't awesomely high — perhaps about 20 feet, depending on the tide. But gazing down at the water swirling through the narrow gut below, a boy could think that clouds were drifting about his head.

Those of us who were young spent hours working ourselves into the frame of mind for the first attempt. We sat, silent in the sun on the bench of the old "Free," the city bathinghouse downstream from the bridge, steeling ourselves to decision. Then we'd plunge in, swim to the landing below the tow path, climb the hill to the bridge deck and find resolution draining from us with each step upward.

A small body held a lot of anguish, standing on the planking, arms hooked back over the handrail, clinging like limpets to its security. Murmurs of encouragement came from friends, jeers from those who had taken the plunge. A boy held on, crying inside, afraid to take off, afraid to show cowardice. Desperation finally pushed him. He was in the air, his stomach left behind somewhere, and then the water, seeming to rush up, clubbed him as he struck. When he rose to the surface, life held a new, overwhelming if inarticulate exultation. He had dived from the bridge and had joined the elect. He could call Billy, Buck or Lawrie by their first names — and sometimes they would remember his.

If I were a well-heeled patron of the arts — and no matter how you regard that phrase, I'm not — I'd commission a sculptor to do a bronze of Billy, Buck and Lawrie to adorn the new bridge. The figures would be fresh, clean, with the smooth lines of youth, held in vibrant flight in a group that showed motion, and perhaps carrying intimations of a spirit freed from earth's fetters.

The concept is just a pipe dream. Yet I wonder if the ritual of the dive from the bridge isn't a relatively honest piece of our folklore. Is it pure sentimentality? Or is there in the idea a genuine recognition of a Victoria era when the Gorge was an integral part of our community living and Billy, Buck and Lawrie represented its essence?

The story of the Gorge bridge runs back to Indian times. I've heard tell of logs that originally spanned the chasm. I remember, as a cub reporter covering Esquimalt council, debates on the need to strengthen the bridge that preceded the one just completed. I've been a sleepy kid, huddled in the bottom of a canoe, being paddled back to the Inner Harbor under its eyebrow of electric lights after holiday outings upstream. I have trodden its footpath countless times from the old Gorge streetcar turn-around to the VASC clubhouse at the foot of Inez Drive. I've seen the slope below the bridge crowded as an ant-hill with Victorians watching Indian canoe races and regattas. There are probably thousands who have shared the experience.

A bridge, I guess, is just a practical means of getting from one side of a cut in the earth and native rock to another. It would be a dead soul, though, who, having lived through its golden age, could see the Gorge bridge as that and nothing more.

Uvic Council Asks Marijuana Study

'Many People' Using Drug in City; The Law, Funds Could Block Study

Uvic's student council wants a research program launched on "the uses and abuses of marijuana."

They want the study made at the university.

The 13-man council, elected by the student body, all voted in favor of the motion at their last meeting.

The idea originated with fourth-year arts student Tom Paul who said he thought the drug should be carefully studied because it was evident a number of people on campus were using it.

"There are also many other people using it in Victoria and eventually this usage will become so large it will cause quite a problem to the government," he predicted.

BAD PUBLICITY

Objective information should be collected about the drug" for the sake of the rationalists in our society," said Paul.

"Marijuana has been getting bad publicity for the last 30 years."

Council president David McLean said he was worried no action would follow the motion.

Paul suggested the first step would be an approach to the psychology department to look into the legal difficulties and the question of government support.

University president Malcolm Taylor touched on the same point when asked his initial reaction to the idea Tuesday.

"It does appear that the use of marijuana is becoming an increasingly serious problem in our society and certainly more knowledge of its effects should be gained.

MANY FACTORS

"Whether such research might be done at this university depends upon a number of factors including research interests of faculty, other priorities and financial support," he said.

"Apart from all these considerations my understanding is that it is illegal to possess marijuana for any purpose, including research."

Student council members have said they will approach potential supporters of the project to discuss way and means of implementation.

"After receiving ideas from other students, faculty and the administration, we can sit down and decide more specifically how we can go about this worthwhile task," said McLean.

RESERVATIONS

Reservations on the project were expressed by Dr. Charles Gregory, a psychiatrist and a member of the university's board of governors.

He said he did not want to sound as though he were not in favor of finding out more about anything but he questioned the motivation behind the idea.

Different people take marijuana for different reasons. There is no common answer and the problem with the law is it lumps the curious, the regular users and the criminal element together, he said.

A local study might not be practical because research takes so much time and money, he said. The project might better be undertaken by the narcotics foundation in Vancouver.

Mrs. Robertson Celebrates 97th Birthday

Mrs. Bertha Robertson — one of the oldest white Victorians still living — celebrated her 97th birthday Tuesday.

She is a member of the pioneer Wolfenden family and was born in a house on Oswego Street next door to Emily Carr's home.

Among her birthday gifts were two cartons of cigarettes and a new great-grandchild — her 19th. Three years ago, another great-grandchild was born on her birthday. Both girls, they are granddaughters of Mrs. Maidie Hewitt, her youngest daughter.

ENJOYS SMOKING

Mrs. Robertson admitted that she enjoys smoking cigarettes — but never in bed.

"If I want to smoke during the night, I get up," she said.

One of eight children, Mrs. Robertson attended Angela School, James Bay, and the Girls' Central School.

"At that time James Bay was the only residential district in Victoria," she said.

Mrs. Robertson had a birthday luncheon with her daughter, Maidie, and a birthday dinner at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Love, 2681 Macdonald Dr.

She takes at least one walk a day and enjoys sewing, reading and playing rummy.

Why Are You Outspoken?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports a simple, easy technique of conversation which can pay dividends in social and business advancement and works magic to give you poise, confidence and popularity.

According to this publisher, many do not realize how they could influence others by what they say and how they say it. In business, social functions and conversations, you can make a good impression every time you talk.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in conversation, the publishers printed full details of their interesting self-training method in a new booklet, "Adventures in Conversation," mailed free to anyone who requests it. Stokes and Wife All Smiles

ON DEMOCRATIC TICKET

Negro in Cleveland Mayoralty Race

CLEVELAND (AP) — Negro lawyer Carl B. Stokes won the Democratic nomination for mayor of Cleveland in the biggest political upset this city has seen in 26 years.

The 40-year-old member of the state House of Representatives will face Seth Taft, grandson of President William Howard Taft, in the Nov. 7 election.

A victory over Taft would make Stokes the first Negro to be elected mayor of one of the 10 largest cities in the United States.

Stokes had heavy support from the Negro community but also got help from white votes to score his impressive victory in Tuesday's primary to pick party candidates. Taft was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

With all but one of the 901 voting districts reported, Stokes had 110,354 votes to 92,029 for incumbent Mayor Ralph S. Locher and 8,543 for Frank P. Celeste.

Voters in this industrial city with a population of 900,000—eighth largest in the U.S. and singled out by civil rights leaders in early summer as a major racial powder keg—have not chosen a Republican mayor since the late Harold Burton in 1938.

Stokes won by adding a surprisingly strong white vote to massive support from the Negro community. There are 110,000 registered Negro voters in Cleveland.

30,000 NAMES ON LIST FOR VOTING IN SAANICH

Almost 30,000 Saanich residents and property owners will be eligible to vote in the December municipal elections.

Voluntary registrations of resident electors (non-property owners) were up 143 over last year to a total of 385.

Final figures for property owners, who are automatically included on the voting list, will not be available for some time. But this number increases by between 700 to 800 a year.

Total eligible voters last year was 28,241. Adding 700 to 800 property owners plus a net gain of 143 resident electors brings the total to just under 30,000.

How many of these will actually vote is another matter. Last December only 18 per cent (5,093) went to the polls.

DON'T RESIGN YOURSELF
This internationally famous expert urges that you do not resign yourself to BALDNESS unless you are already bald. Your only obligation is to yourself — to free yourself of worries or other scalp disorders.

WHO CAN BE HELPED?
Will this treatment cure BALDNESS? No. We cannot help men or women who are slick BALD after years of gradual hair loss. BUT where your scalp still grows hair, Imperial can save and improve what you have.

THE IMPORTANT THING IS:
Don't wait until it is too late. Learn how BALDNESS can be stopped, and NEW HAIR grown on your scalp, in the privacy of your own home.

DELAY INCREASES PROBLEM
Remember that even on smooth bald heads, hair roots may still be alive and capable of growing hair again after proper stimulation and home treatment care. Increased hair production can only be achieved by initiating activity in quiescent — follicles — preventing them from going into the "permanent" resting state.

GET THE FACTS
If your condition is "hopeless" he'll tell you so frankly. About 5 per cent of those he examines are hopeless.

SEE IMPERIAL TODAY
I want to make it clear to you that you incur no charge or obligation by coming in for an examination.

REMEMBER

SEE Mr. Noble at the Strathcona Hotel on Thursday, October 5, between the hours of 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Ask the desk clerk for Mr. Noble's suite number. All examinations are given in private. No obligation.

HOME GARDEN

No Praise Too High For the Cyclamens

By. JACK BEASTALL

A well drained spot beneath a large deciduous tree; or a border where ferns thrive in half shade, can be changed to a place of constant beauty and interest.

Jack

The soil needs to be real humusy, like a woods soil, but not acid. In fact old lime rubble is a good addition since it aids drainage as well as reducing acidity.

If you have the tree and can make a suitable soil you have the ideal setting for hardy cyclamens.

Most gardeners are familiar with the potted florists' cyclamen, with their large flowers and leaves, but comparatively few know of the small cousins which spend their entire life outdoors.

No description is too glowing for the species cyclamens, their flowers having all the grace of hovering butterflies and their leaves fascinating designs in various shades of green.

Two-year-old corms are usually of flowering size, and while the best planting time is considered as September, it would not be too late to do it now — if you can find a source with a stock.

Those most commonly seen here, two out of a dozen species, are Cyclamen coum and C. neapolitanum. You may be lucky enough to find others, if so, they will all give you pleasure.

There is one thing to remember about planting, that is one species, C. neapolitanum, roots from the top, sides, and bottom of the corm, therefore the corms must be well covered. C. coum is base rooting and need not be deeply planted.

And don't forget lime in the soil, it's important.

Crash Victims' Funeral Friday

Bodies of two Victorians killed in an air crash will be cremated following a funeral service here Friday afternoon.

Charles Watts, 46, and his wife Jean, 43, died when their light plane crashed on a mountain near Port Angeles last Friday.

Rev. Marvin Fowler will conduct the service at 3:15 in McCall Bros.' Floral Chapel.

"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says trichologist M. D. Harrison to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. He is sending a specialist here to advise men how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here Thursday and Friday

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness—and growing thicker hair — will be demonstrated in Victoria this Thursday and Friday, October 5 and 6.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison named staff trichologist Ian Edgar to conduct the Victoria clinic. Mr. Edgar will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday at the Executive House Motor Hotel.

Leonard A. Floyd before and after scalp treatment. Unretouched photographs made four months apart.

Examine You Free

"I want to make it clear that you incur no charge or obligation by seeing Mr. Edgar", director Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself — to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless'."

Offers no Cure-All

Harrison emphasized that his new home treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure-all".

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause baldness."

Harrison said that sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks to get best results. "For this reason, you mail regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver."

"Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals."

Who Can Be Helped?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely. "We cannot help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth behind it. Harrison and his staff trichologists do extension work in more than 100 other cities.

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. "We satisfy more than 95 per cent of our clients, and have records to prove it."

"But to over-come the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate — and baldish — by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's 'tried everything.' So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair:

That baldness is hereditary; that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss — and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today."

Free Scalp Examination

See Mr. Edgar in person. Learn how baldness can be stopped, and new hair grown on your own scalp. The new Harrison method permits you to actually stop your baldness and regrow hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Executive House Motor Hotel Thursday or Friday between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Edgar's suite number.

You don't need an appointment. You won't be embarrassed or obligated in any way. Examinations are given in private.

Potash Worker Gains Through Firm Incentives

By AB KENT
Business Editor

The use of incentive as a stabilizer for the labor force is a proven method but one which seems rarely used in this province.

To the contrary, B.C. has become from time to time a field for pitched battle between labor and management, where unions in major and vital industries reach stalemate in negotiations with companies.

Kent

But where a union member can see no other way of improving himself than by going for a wage increase, it can be seen that relations may become strained.

Alternatively, a company may make it attractive for an employee to climb to a higher wage bracket based on his improved capacity to help the firm in its business of making money.

Something along this line is being done with great success in Saskatchewan with the advent of the mushrooming potash mining and refining industry.

★ ★ ★

Victoria-based G. B. McGillivray, B.C. representative of the Canadian Petroleum Association, returned recently from a visit to International Minerals and Chemical Corp. (Canada) operation at Esterhazy.

He said he was amazed by the scope and methods used to produce the raw potash, basic ingredient for phosphate and nitrogen fertilizers.

But he was also impressed with the ease of operation and the apparent lack of effort by employees working underground or in the surface mill.

It is a highly automated development, requiring few employees, although the educational level is high and includes technical or mechanical inclination.

Starting pay for a young man with some technical background is $2.25 an hour. Immediately he can begin studying on his own for promotion, and even if there is no opening for him when he passes his tests, he is eligible for a higher rate of pay.

The result is a labor force interested in what it is doing, with clear incentive to do better. And according to Mr. McGillivray there is no labor problem.

In four or five more years, some of the young men who started with International when Saskatchewan potash began developing about four years ago will be in line for executive jobs, having worked their way up on the strength of incentive.

Can the pulp and paper industry, for example, learn a lesson from this?

★ ★ ★

Mr. McGillivray found his trip underground fascinating. It started with a 3,300-foot descent in the mine's main shaft a few miles outside Esterhazy.

So smooth is the operation of the skip there was little sensation of dropping into the bowels of the earth.

At bottom, in the 300 miles of tunnels that lace the fabulous 100-year deposit, potash crystals glitter on walls and roof like the Emerald City in Wizard of Oz.

There is nothing else to be seen — just miles of solid potash without waste rock or other ore.

Machinery is driven by electric motors, achieving a degree of quietness never encountered in the type of rock mining known in B.C.

The air is clean, fresh and a year-round comfort, providing a better working environment than the miners could have toiling on the surface in summer dust and heat or winter's blizzard.

Haulage is by conveyor belts and up the main shaft in skips to a 20-storey mill where all the machines are painted bright colors, again improving the atmosphere.

Miners get about underground by means of jeep-like vehicles rather than afoot or in narrow gauge cars as in conventional mines.

The tunnels link up with International's second Esterhazy mine-mill operation, but the two function independently under separate control.

Total outlay was $120 million, almost dirt cheap considering the 100-year potential of reserves.

GM Sales Up 61,000 Over September, '66

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., the biggest U.S. auto-maker, reported Tuesday its sales in September were 61,000 above those in the same month a year earlier.

The totals for September's last 10 days were 206,532 cars and 22,872 trucks, compared with 118,753 cars and 20,151 trucks sold in the last 10 days of September, 1966, GM said.

GM's top marketing executive, H E. Crawford, said that the two periods were not comparable however.

"This year all General Motors car divisions introduced 1968 models on Sept. 21, giving us nine selling days with new models," he said. "Last year, Chevrolet, Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac introduced 1967 models on Sept. 29, giving us only two days with new models in September, 1966."

Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler have not yet reported their sales figures.

Oil Reserves 'Will Begin To Decline'

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A California oil consultant said Tuesday that U.S. petroleum reserves will start a gradual decline within the next several years.

E. C. Babson of South Pasadena, Calif., told the annual meeting of the Society of Petroleum Engineers that projecting such trends is a hazardous business because "the unexpected happens with great frequency."

Babson said his studies indicate not only that U.S. reserves are likely to begin a gradual decline but that Western Hemisphere reserves probably will reach a plateau shortly after 1975.

He added that no slackening of reserves growth is indicated for the Soviet Union, Africa and the Middle East.

Babson said the Eastern Hemisphere now holds 63 per cent of the world's crude oil reserves but the United States is retaining its important position as a primary world oil producer.

Although the trend of U.S. reserves is likely to be downward, he said, the U.S. can increase production for some years due to present excess capacity.

High Arrow Coffer Dam Dynamited

CASTLEGAR (CP) — The dynamiting of a 4,000-foot coffer dam Tuesday marked an important stage in the construction of the High Arrow Dam near this eastern British Columbia community.

The coffer dam was dynamited following completion of a 12,000-foot-long discharge works.

The explosion was designed to crack the coffer dam, which will now be removed by draglines and scrapers.

The next stage in the building of the dam is a 1,650-foot earth fill dam across the Columbia River, expected next February.

The High Arrow Dam is one of three in the Columbia River Power Project. The Duncan Dam is already finished, and the majority of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority work force is now concentrating on the huge Mica Creek Dam.

SERIOUS CONVERSATION is held between St. Louis manager Red Schoendienst (left) and pitcher Bob Gibson, prior to start of today's opening game in world series at Boston.

Series Start Like a Dream To Bosox Duo

BOSTON (AP)—A journeyman minor league catcher and a fuzzy-cheeked kid had dreams come true today as they took the field with Boston Red Sox for the world series opener against St. Louis Cardinals.

Catcher Russ Gibson, who spent 10 years kicking around the Boston farm system before getting a shot last spring, started behind the plate while southpaw Ken Brett went to the bullpen as the Red Sox' only left-handed hurler.

"Things are happening so fast I can't believe it," said Gibson, a 28-year-old life-long resident of Fall River, Mass. "This is terrific—really great. Imagine it. Playing at home in the World Series after all those years in the minors."

Brett, who turned 19 on Sept. 18, was recalled after a spectacular finish at Pittsfield in the Eastern League. The Red Sox planned to just let him enjoy a little major league atmosphere, but he was pressed into action for two innings in a loss to Cleveland last week.

Now the youngster from El Segundo, Calif., finds himself in a World Series.

Gibson and Brett each had to get approval of commissioner William D. Eckert to become eligible for the Series. Russ was farmed out as the Red Sox juggled their roster in late August and wasn't recalled until the 25-player limit was lifted Sept. 1. Brett was called up the first week in September.

Hard-Thrower With Good Control

Eckert granted the Boston request to substitute Brett for Al "Sparky" Lyle for the Series late Tuesday. Lyle suffered strained ligaments in his left elbow two weeks ago.

Brett started the season with Winston-Salem before being promoted to Pittsfield.

Appearing in 18 games, he posted a 10-7 record with a 1.80 ERA at Pittsfield. He struck out 142 batters in 125 innings.

"The kid is going to be a real fine pitcher," said Boston catcher Elston Howard, a veteran of nine World Series with New York Yankees. "He throws as hard as anyone I've ever caught—and he has good control."

Over in the St. Louis dugout, today's opener was also like a dream for some of the Cardinals.

"This year made up for beating around the minors all those years," said Dick Hughes, who will pitch Thursday's second game.

The right-hander, a rookie at 29, played with three minor league teams and, briefly, with the Cardinals in 1966. But this year was a different story. He stuck with the Redbirds from the start and ended the season the team's top winner—16-6—with a 2.68 earned run average.

When asked if he thought six months ago he would be pitching the second game of the World Series against Boston, Hughes smiled and said: "I didn't even know what team I'd be with by the end of the season."

Hughes said he knew a little about some of the Red Sox players. "I faced some of them last year in the minors. I remember Reggie Smith, Mike Andrews and Russ Gibson as good, sound ball players."

In a minor league career dating back to 1958 and including stops in 11 towns, Hughes never had a won-lost record to match his first year in the National League.

Minor Parks Also Have Short Walls

As for the Red Sox, Hughes said the close left field fence in Fenway Park doesn't worry him.

"I've pitched in some parks in the minors with pretty short walls," he explained. "They didn't worry me, and this won't be much different."

While most of the Cardinals took the Series in stride, young Bobby Tolan was awed at the whole thing.

"This is the greatest feeling in the world," he said, "just to play professional baseball is wonderful . . . but the World Series!"

Tolan, who hit .253 in 110 games for the Cardinals in his first full season in the majors, said he played on the same sandlot team with Reggie Smith of the Red Sox in Los Angeles.

Following Santiago to the mound for Boston will be Jim Lonborg (22-9), in Thursday's second game and Gary Bell (13-13), in the Saturday contest at St. Louis.

Red Schoendienst says he will follow Hughes with either Nelson Briles (14-5), or Steve Carlton (14-9), Saturday, depending on whether he needs Briles for relief in the first two games.

WORLD SERIES NOTES

Ducats for Boston Fan Arrive From St. Louis

EAST STROUDSBURG, Pa. (AP)—A 10-year-old boy who wrote a letter to the owner of Boston Red Sox requesting tickets for the World Series is getting them—from the owner of St. Louis Cardinals.

The boy, Ted Williams Long, a devoted Red Sox fan, was told Tuesday that the Anheuser-Busch Co. of St. Louis would provide him and his father with tickets to the first two games in Boston today and Thursday. The owner of Anheuser-Busch, a beer firm, also owns controlling interest in the Cardinals.

The company had heard of the boy's request through a newspaper story, and a representative of the St. Louis-based firm called young Ted Tuesday.

DEVOTED TO SOX

The boy had written Tom Yawkey, the Red Sox owner, explaining that he and his father, John Long, were devoted Boston fans. He said his father even named him after Ted Williams, the great Red Sox slugger.

"Mommy is going to have another baby. If it is a boy, dad wants to name it Carl Yastrzemski Long. Mommy got mad," the boy wrote.

He got no reply, however.

When asked how he felt about the Cardinals supplying the World Series tickets, the boy replied:

"I just can't root for the Cardinals . . . but I'll always be grateful to them."

Four managers' jobs still are open in the major leagues as the second guessing and "it was learned" season opens with the gathering of the clan for the World Series.

Not only is the Kansas City job open but the franchise is floating. Charley Finley is expected to ask for permission to move the Athletics—probably to Oakland or Seattle—at a special American League meeting later this month. He probably will get enough votes to make it stick. Only then will he have time to think about a successor to interim manager Luke Appling.

★ ★ ★

Pittsburgh Pirates have given Danny Murtaugh a new job, thus eliminating the veteran from any thoughts of the job he didn't want. Dick Groat, retired short-stop, and Bill Virdon, a manager in the New York Mets' chain and a former Pirate centre fielder, are high in the rumor league, along with Mickey Vernon.

The Pirates probably would like to get Al Lopez out of retirement.

Paul Richards' bombshell at Atlanta just might be Paul Richards to manage the Braves. Lum Harris still is the leader in the rumor league.

New York Mets are due to pick the successor to Wes Westrum before too many days have passed. Yogi Berra has to be a possibility if he wants to give up a nice safe job as a coach for the perils of managing a 10th place team.

If Gil Hodges didn't have a year to go on his Washington contract he would be the favorite. Some people think the Mets still may lure Hodges to Shea.

★ ★ ★

Lefty Gomez was watching St. Louis Cardinals attack the friendly left field wall at Fenway Park Tuesday afternoon when a sports writer asked him how the wall had affected him in his pitching days.

"The wall didn't bother me," quipped Lefty. "It was the hitters."

★ ★ ★

Tony Conigliaro will play the same role that Dick Williams played for Brooklyn in the 1952 World Series with the Yankees. Although Conigliaro, out of action with double vision due to a beaning, is not on the active list he will be permitted to sit on the Red Sox bench in uniform. Williams, a utility man with the Dodgers, also was given the same courtesy in '52 when he had a shoulder separation and was reduced to the role of a "yeller."

★ ★ ★

The last time the Cards and Red Sox met in a World Series in 1946, Dick Williams was a senior in high school. Schoendienst, of course, was the Cardinals' second baseman, and Stan Musial, now the general manager, was the Cards' first baseman.

Brodie? Golf? No, Football —And Good

By WILLIAM GILDEA
The Washington Post

John Brodie is the wealthiest of all pro-football quarterbacks, well on his way to becoming a millionaire, yet, strangely, he is not well known, and is practically a stranger outside San Francisco.

Everyone knows that Tarkenton is a scrambler; that Unitas has a pain in his arm; that Namath had bad knees; that Meredith is injury prone; that Jurgensen owns a quick release.

But Brodie? Stanford, wasn't it? Wrapped his car around a tree and was lucky he didn't kill himself. Good golfer. Tans nicely—held out on Oahu, Hawaii, for $1 million last summer.

Oh, yes. He has logged 10 years with the 49ers. Some were outstanding. But San Franciscans, sophisticated in their appreciation of quarterbacks, have never embraced him unanimously nor spread his gospel.

Rather, they compare him to Frankie Albert and Y. A. Tittle, his predecessors, and he does not create the fan fervor Albert did nor convey the masterful cool of Tittle, calmly aiming his pass amid the crash of linemen.

Brodie has always enjoyed life. For two years, he tried to pursue two careers, those of quarterback and touring golfer. He also enjoys playing cards.

On the practice field, says 49ers' official, "he did what he had to do but no more. You hear so much about Unitas and Berry working on pass patterns. John wasn't like that."

Subtle Changes in His Personality

The reference to Brodie was in past tense because, as he begins his second decade with the 49ers, changes are being perceived in his personality. "He is beginning to exercise the leadership that has long been expected of him," the 49ers' man said.

The best evidence of this was Brodie's idea last winter for a group of San Francisco players to meet in Washington to persuade back Ken Willard to withdraw his demand to be traded to the Redskins or Baltimore to be near his Richmond business interests.

Brodie led the delegation and, in his keynote address, informed Willard this could finally be the year for a San Francisco title, at least in the coastal division, and that Willard's services were vital.

Given this opportunity, Willard tactfully withdrew his ultimatum. Now, it is said, Willard is contemplating a permanent move to the west coast, thus completing his double reverse.

Pact Made Moonlighting Obsolete

Further evidence that Brodie is now viewing football as a year-round occupation was his off-season presence at the 49ers' headquarters, often four days a week. He viewed films to discover what went wrong in 1966 and planned strategy for 1967 with coach Jack Christiansen.

Brodie has also been seen more often making appearances around San Francisco on behalf of the 49ers. He has curtailed his golf and has given up a time-consuming insurance business and a radio show.

He hardly needs the money after the windfall contract he signed last year. It made moonlighting obsolete.

The terms of the contract call for Brodie to receive nearly $1 million over a number of years. Brodie had reportedly agreed verbally to a long-term contract with the Houston Oilers for $750,000 shortly before the pro football merger. Following the merger he made his demand and it was met rather than have him file suit and threaten the sport's structure.

Half the Fans Await Road Returns

After his holdout last year, Brodie failed to reach his 1965 form, when he led the league in touchdown passes, percentage, yardage and completions. Now, he and the rest of the 49ers have looked good enough for Tittle, the backfield coach, to predict the coastal division title.

Tittle's view is not widely shared. Only 30,207 showed up at Kezar Stadium last Sunday, leaving the place half empty. The others are awaiting the returns from future games on the road.

The curious who saw the 49ers in a rare gesture stood and cheered Brodie when, once, he elected to run the ball himself. In San Francisco, earthquakes outnumber the times Brodie carries, and he has been criticized for not being flexible.

Some was mock applause. Some wasn't. It added up to one of Brodie's biggest ovations.

Bookies Pick Roughies Despite Averages' Law

MONTREAL (CP)—The law of averages should be with Montreal Alouettes tonight when they tangle with Saskatchewan Roughriders in a Canadian Football League game, but the oddsmakers are against the Montrealers.

The Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference have never beaten the defending Grey Cup champions from the Western Conference in six seasons of interlocking competition, but that fact isn't bothering the oddsmakers who have established the Roughriders as 7½-point favorites.

The Roughriders, tied for the WFC lead with Calgary Stampeders, have a great deal to support the bookmakers' contention as Saskatchewan's club bears a remarkable resemblance to the one that whipped Ottawa Rough Riders 29-14 in the Grey Cup last year.

Only three changes have been made, but all on the offensive line, reducing its strength considerably.

Gone are Reg Whitehouse, who retired, and Al Benecick and Jim Worden, two all-Canadians who suffered knee injuries.

Tom Beynon, a Queen's University product, has replaced Whitehouse. Benecick has been replaced by John Atamian, a former Toronto Argonaut and Hamilton player, and Jason Franci, a former member of Denver Broncos of the American Football League, has replace Worden at tackle.

Saskatchewan's explosive backfield includes a healthy Ed Buchanan and Allan Ford at halfback, George Reed at fullback and Hugh Campbell at flanker.

The Roughriders boast the same defence that stifled Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson in the Grey Cup game last year, including lineman Ron Atchison, now in his 16th year.

Quebec May Get Grand Prix Race

MONTREAL (CP)—The Grand Prix of Canada world championship Formula One auto race may be held in Quebec next year.

Gilles Vincent of Montreal, regional director of the Canadian Automobile Sport Club, says chances are "80 per cent in favor" of the event being held at Le Circuit Mont Tremblant in St. Jovite, north of Montreal.

Only one race per country counts toward the world championship for drivers and constructors.

Seals Upset by Bisons; Injuries Strike Rangers

By The Canadian Press

California Seals, touted to win the Western Division title of the expanded National Hockey League this season, took a minor-league beating Tuesday night.

Buffalo Bisons, given standout goaltending from Ed Chadwick, defeated the Seals 4-3 at Port Huron, Mich., in one of four exhibition games involving NHL clubs.

In other games, Detroit Red Wings rapped Montreal Canadiens 4-1, Boston Bruins edged New York Rangers 2-1 and Philadelphia Flyers tied Minnesota North Stars 4-4.

Greg Pilling, with two goals, Gerry Ouellette and Guy Trotter tallied against Charie Hodge, former Montreal netminder making his debut with the Seals.

Ron Harris scored twice and Alain Caron once for California. The Seals forced Chadwick to make 37 saves while Hodge turned aside 28 shots.

Ken Hodge connected with seven seconds remaining in Boston for the Bruins' victory but the Rangers were more concerned over injuries to key players. Winger Larry Jeffrey was cut on the left eyelid and taken to hospital for treatment of an abrasion of the eyeball, defenceman Harry Howell injured his back and forward Rod Gilbert apparently injured his wrist.

There was no information immediately on the condition of the players.

Tom Williams of Boston and Orland Kurtenbach matched goals in the third period before Phil Esposito set up Hodge in front of goaltender Gilles Villemure for the winning goal.

Detroit's goals were scored by Gordie Howe, Gary Bergman, Floyd Smith and Paul Henderson. Bruce MacGregor contributed four assists.

A power-play goal by Ed Hoekstra with 41 seconds remaining boosted Philadelphia into its tie with Minnesota before 1,339 fans at Kingston, Ont. Bill Sutherland scored two Philadelphia goals and Leon Rochefort one.

Bill Goldsworthy paced Minnesota with two goals while Len Lunde and Mike McMahon added one each.

ENGLISH SIDE RAPS ONTARIO

TORONTO (CP)—The touring English rugby team continued Tuesday to crush Canadian opponents rapping an Ontario all-star side 34-3 for their fourth straight win of the tour.

The taller, heavier English side kept possession through most of the game and led 25-0 at half time.

Ontario scored its only points on a penalty kick.

Victoria Duo Produced Win For Canucks

GLASGOW — Canada's national women's field hockey team won its second straight game in a European exhibition series by defeating West Scotland 3-2 here Tuesday in a hard-fought match.

Nancy Hill of Victoria gave the Canadians a 2-1 lead shortly before half time but West Scotland knotted the score 15 minutes before the game's end.

Another Victoria player, Suzanne Bradford, scored the winning goal with eight minutes remaining.

The Canadians meet the Scottish Reserves in Dundee Thursday, play Scotland's North District team in Aberdeen two days later and then move to Northern Ireland for matches on Oct. 9 and 11.

ESQUIMALT HOCKEY

All-Star Battle Launches Season

Another season in the Esquimalt Hockey League starts Friday night.

Launching the circuit on its seventh campaign will be the annual all-star game between the defending champions and a team selected from the other three clubs.

Doug Anderson, who toils as coach of Stockers in the Esquimalt loop and guides Victoria Cougars, who are entered in the new B.C. Junior Hockey League, has been assigned the task of coaching the all-stars.

Doug will send his stars out against the champion Esquimalt Tudors at 8:15.

Stockers, University Vikings and Queen's Own Rifles, the other three teams in the league, will each contribute a goalie, two defencemen and a forward line to the stars.

SCORING LEADER

Anderson expects to assemble a strong lineup. From Vikings he will have forwards Bill Rudyk, Glyn Harper and Ted Sarkissian, the league scoring leader last season; defencemen Mike Woodley and Brian Whitten and rookie goalie Wayne Hodgson, who is stepping up from city minor hockey ranks.

From Stockers come goalkeeper Bud Swanson, defencemen Don Lancaster and John Merrifield and forwards Larry Meyers, Nick Nicoletti and Jim Shyworak. From the Rifles will come goalkeeper Red Horner, defencemen Dave Parkins and Duke Hurford and forwards Dave Stones, John Zeller and Des Desjardins.

A pre-game banquet honoring members of both clubs will start at 6 p.m.

LEAGUE OPENERS

League play will start Friday Oct. 13, and from there the league will be known as the Vancouver Island Hockey League.

It will play inter-league games with Nanaimo, Powell River and Port Alberni, who play in the Pacific Coast League. In addition, all home games Vikings play against other university teams will count for the Uvic team in the standings.

The league opener will be at 7:15 between Tudors and Vikings. Stockers and Queen's Own Rifles complete the doubleheader starting at 9:15.

Danes Collect Six-Day Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Denmark's twosome of Palle Lykke and Freddie Eugen are making a habit of winning international six-day bike races.

Eugen and Lykke picked up their second victory in 16 days Tuesday night with a come-from-behind triumph in Montreal's semi-annual six-day bike race.

Eugen and Lykke, winners of the London six-day event last month, took the Montreal race by a lap over Leandro Faggin and Fritx Pfenninger of Switzerland and the Belgium A team of Emile Severyns and Patrick Sercu, who won the event last May.

Canada's entry of Deiter Reinhold and Dutchman Norbert Seeuws and Italy's B team of Sergio Bianchetto and Vincent Rancati were forced to withdraw during the last hour of Tuesday's action.

VISIT EUROPEAN COUNTRIES — PLAY SIX TOURNAMENTS

Canuck Puck Teams to Travel

WINNIPEG (CP — Four Canadian hockey teams will visit six European countries to play in five international tournaments in the next few months.

Canada's national team, Winnipeg section, has a mid-October date in Grenoble, France, where the 1968 Winter Olympics open Feb. 6. An Oct. 12-15 round-robin tournament with Russia, Czechoslovakia and the United States inaugurates the Grenoble Olympic Arena. The Canadians depart Oct. 10.

The Ottawa section of Canada's national team will fly to a Dec. 1-10 tournament in Moscow, preceded by exhibition contests in Stockholm, Nov. 22; Gavle, Sweden, Nov. 24; and East Germany Nov. 26-28. The makeup of the Moscow tournament is not known. The Ottawa group leaves Nov. 20 and returns Dec. 11.

Kingston Aces, Ontario Hockey Association senior champions head for Europe Dec. 20. Their schedule includes four games in the Spangler Cup tournament Dec. 26-30 in Davos, Switzerland, and five appearances in the Star Cup tournament Jan. 1-7 in Goteberg, Sweden. The Aces return Jan. 8.

Drummondville Eagles, Allan Cup champions, have a 10-game itinerary including six or seven games in the Ahearne Cup tournament in Sweden Dec. 27-Jan. 8. The Eagles also will play in Tampere, Finland, Jan. 9; Helsinki Jan. 10; Duesseldorf, West Germany, Jan. 12 and Frankfurt, Jan. 13. They return home Jan. 15.

Russia and Czechoslovakia will come to Winnipeg for a round-robin tournament with Canada's nationals Jan. 1-6.

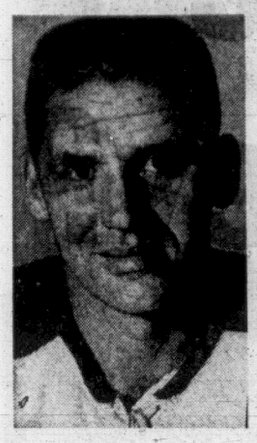
Barber's Boomers Help Runners Trim Canucks



DICK LAMOUREUX
. . . sparks runners

By ERNIE FEDORUK

If Dick Lamoureux can keep cutting it as he has on the exhibition circuit, this could be the year for hockey's part-time barber to whip up some important lather for Phoenix Roadrunners.

A pair of goaltenders shared in the shutout, but Lamoureux also was an eye-catcher Tuesday as Phoenix rumbled to its third straight Western Hockey League victory. This time, Vancouver Canucks took it on the chin, 3-0, at Memorial Arena.

Alf Pike's Runners wrap up their exhibition schedule with a two-game series against San Diego Gulls. The teams meet in Chilliwack tonight then stage a rematch in Victoria's Memorial Arena on Thursday.

Lamoureux, linemate Brian Smith and veteran Lou Jankowski scored the Phoenix goals Tuesday. Centre Bob Kabel drew assists on the goals by Lamoureux and Smith as the line provided one of the few highlights in an otherwise-tame exhibition before about 900 fans.

Lamoureux, the club's hair-cutter who managed only five goals while with Victoria Maple Leafs last season, skated and shot in his best style Tuesday. With luck, he could have added at least two more goals.

Put in the clear by Kabel for a breakaway run, Lamoureux was victimized by Vancouver goalie Jean-Guy Morrisette in the first period.

SPARKLING SAVE

Morisette also pulled off a sparkling stop in the second to take away another goal from Lamoureux.

"Anyone who can shoot like Lamoureux can," said coach Pike, "shouldn't have trouble scoring 20 goals. I know he had some hard luck last season, but he also didn't have a centre.

"Kabel will give Lamoureux the puck. If Dick uses that shot of his, I'll guarantee that he'll more than double last year's goals-total before Christmas."

STEADY DEFENCE

The threat of Lamoureux's booming shot seemed to excite Pike more than Tuesday's shut-out. That, probably, because Pike is "quite satisfied" with a defence that has been consistently strong and steady.

Rick Charron stopped eight shots in the first period and 11 in the second. Claude Cyr turned away seven in his third-period stay. Their combined effort means Phoenix hasn't given up a goal in a stretch covering 73 minutes, 45 seconds.

Charron hasn't given up a goal in his last two outings, including a period against Seattle Totems last week.

USUAL LUCK QUOTA

Both received the usual quota of the good luck that is required in scoring a shutout. But each also had to come up with several big saves.

Charron was particularly outstanding in stopping Vancouver veterans Ray Cyr (twice), Gord Vejprava and Larry Popien. Cyr (Claude, the goalie) preserved the shutout by blocking Larry McNabb, Vejprava and Stan Gilbertson, all of whom were "in cold" on scoring chances.

Billy Loves British Golf Style

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (UPI) — Favord Billy Casper criticized U.S. golf tournaments as "too stereotyped" as he and 18 other top pros prepared to participate in the fun and hoopla preceding the $129,000 Alcan Tournament.

In traditional ceremonies dating back 118 years, according to local legend, Casper led the Alcan entries through this ancient town to the accompaniment of drums, flutes and clarinets to hit one ball each off the first tee for various small prizes and points toward larger ones.

"I love it all," laughed Casper. "Golf is getting too stereotyped in the United States. There is not enough natural terrain for courses and the pressure is too great on the players. For $5,000,000 I'd spend the rest of my life playing golf in the British Isles."

Casper, who tabbed Doug Sanders as the best bet in the Alcan "because he hits low, accurate drives," shot a two-over-par 74 Tuesday on a rain-soaked St. Andrews course. He has been established as a 9-2 favorite in the tournament which starts Thursday.

The high winds and heavy rains which hampered the golfers Tuesday were expected to continue through the week.

Clancy's Corner Capers Could Reduce Cash Load

NEW YORK (UPI)—It's likely that Gil Clancy won't carry as much money as he expected to the bank for Emile Griffith's successful bid to regain the world middleweight crown.

Clancy, the manager of Griffith, is expected to be fined for his conduct during Griffith's 15-round decision over Nino Benvenuti.

Clancy was ordered to appear before the state athletic commission Oct. 11 and explain his behavior.

TOO NOISY

"Clancy will be directed to show why he should not be fined for his flagrant violation of coaching from Griffith's corner during the rounds," said commission chairman Edwin B. Dooley. "Such a violation can bring a fine or a suspension or both."

The commentators of the telecasts of the bout were almost drowned out by Clancy's yells.

Dooley said he would also approve a third Griffith-Benvenuti fight. Since the series between the two is starting to threaten to go on indefinitely — especially if Benvenuti's bruised or broken rib really was a factor in the defeat and he comes back to win the third battle — the World Boxing Association stated the winner of the second fight should face Don Fullmer.

The third Griffith-Benvenuti fight probably will take place in the New Madison Square Garden — whenever it gets finished since construction is now behind schedule—sometime during the winter.

Nanaimo Shooter League Champion

Former pistol-shooting ace Alfred Ettinger is the new centre-fire rifle champion of the Vancouver Island Shooting League.

Competing in the league's annual championship shoot at Parksville, the Nanaimo Fish and Game Club sniper, who rates in the expert class as a rifleman, upset 12 master class shooters on his way to the grand aggregate crown.

Ettinger posted a 279-10X aggregate to finish ahead of Powell River's Dal Langham, who paced the master class with 277-5X.

Topping other individual aggregates were three other shooters from the Barnet Rifle Club of Burnaby — sharpshooter, Roy McQuitty (262-2X); marksman, Mrs. Gladys Ball (249-3X); tyro, M. Westergaard (207-3X)

Members of the Barnet Club retained team trophies.

In the "A" competition the Barnet boys bested Victoria's four-man squad of Garry Williams, Ray McDougall, Ernie Foulser and Colin Wyatt 1,074-21X to 1,069-20X. The Barnet "B" team topped Nanaimo 976-9X to 954-18X.

Wayne Zaccarelli of Victoria was the leading junior.

RIFLE SHOOTING

Island Squad Takes Trophy

NORTH VANCOUVER — Marksmen from Vancouver Island regained possession of the Butchart Shield as they defeated Mainland snipers in annual rifle-shooting competition at Blair Range.

Shooting for the shield, which was donated for annual competition in 1924, consists of 10 shots from each of the 300, 500 and 600-yard firing points.

The Island team, which last won the trophy in 1965, came from behind with fine shooting at 600 yards to defeat the Mainlanders 1,086-1,067.

Members of the winning team were Gordon Fraser (coach and captain), Walter Burch, Mary Robinson, Eric Andrews, Phil Watt, Bob Walker, John Dolman, Ron Morrison and Clive Cross.

BUT THEY KILLED CHARMER

Uvic Man Survives Armful of Snakes

Do snake charmers really charm their snakes?

Terry Cox of Victoria thinks they do.

He recalls attending a wake (funeral) in Nigeria at which a snake charmer handed him six wriggling snakes and said they would do him no harm.

They didn't but—two weeks later — they killed their proprietor.

"I think that man had some strange power over snakes," Mr. Cox said, "but the moment his mind was relaxed — or interfered with — the snakes destroyed him.

"That is the kind of phenomena you have to grapple with in Nigeria — and you cannot shut your mind to it, because it is part of the culture of the land."

Mr. Cox, a native of Victoria, went to Nigeria two years ago with CUSO—Canadian University Service Overseas.

At the University of Victoria he had graduated with a bachelor of science degree in mathematics and chemistry. In Nigeria he taught mathematics and physics.

"All my students were black and they all wanted to migrate to Canada or America. To the people of Nigeria there is no difference between Canada and the United States. They are all one."

In October, 1960, Nigeria — the most populated country in Africa and the United Kingdom's largest dependency — became an independent state and full member of the British Commonwealth.

TERRY COX
. . . whew!

"There have been many upsets since then," Mr. Cox said, "and no one knows what the outcome will be."

Mr. Cox attended Sir James Douglas elementary and Victoria High before going to Uvic.

He plans to enter the Canadian government external affairs department.

This means writing an exam at Uvic and then, if accepted, taking a year's course in Ottawa.

"I would like to work in under-developed countries because I think my experience in Nigeria would help me in that field," he said.

FERRIES TO RUN; TALKS SET

A ferry strike set for Thanksgiving Day weekend has been called off, a union spokesman said today.

The action follows word from the B.C. government that a cabinet committee will meet representatives of the unlicensed B.C. Ferries workers Tuesday at 10 a.m.

A statement on behalf of B.C. Ferry Employees Union, an autonomous affiliate of the B.C. Government Employees' Association, said the executive has considered the government's proposal, "therefore there will be no work stoppage on the ferries by the unlicensed personnel this weekend."

"The union, in its endeavors to find a solution to their problems particularly those of recognition and dues checkoff, will do everything possible to avoid inconvenience to the travelling public.

"The union is hopeful that talks scheduled for next week will bring about an amicable settlement and thus avoid any economic action which would bring about a shutdown of the ferry service which would be detrimental to the public as a whole."

BY CITY HOME BUILDERS

New Housing Moves Urged

The Victoria Home Builders Association has recommended five steps to "combat this rising trend" in the costs of housing.

A statement issued after a directors meeting called for:

- Immediate removal of the 11 per cent sales tax on building materials;
- Income tax exemptions on house mortgage payments;
- Implementation of a subsidy to lower-income people;
- Mortgage payments to be amortized over 40 years;
- Increase the maximum NHA mortgage to $21,000 from $18,000.

"In the past year, the Canadian house building industry has been seriously curtailed by the lack of mortgage funds available to satisfy the critical housing situation," the association said.

"The recent action the federal government has taken by increasing NHA interest rate to 8¼ per cent becomes a regrettable necessity to attract necessary funds to meet the market requirements now and for the future.

"Some degree of inflation is inevitable as the nation's economy continues to build. Land, labor and material costs have increased but the builder's profit has decreased to a national average of less than three per cent.

"To expect a reversal of this trend is wishful thinking. Housing will cost more in the future and so will the mortgage."

FRANCE SELLS ARMS TO LATINS

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Latin American nations, overriding objections by the United States, are moving to buy modern arms from France, the New York Times says.

The most significant sale is for 12 Mirage-V fighter-bombers to Peru and the other involves the sale of 50 AMX-30 tanks to Argentina, the newspaper says in a dispatch from Washington.

U.S. diplomats have been applying strenuous pressure on Peru not to buy the supersonic jets out of fear that it might trigger a Latin American arms race, The Times says.

The report quotes U.S. state department sources as saying conversations still are going on between the U.S. and Peru but adds that Peru already has signed a contract to purchase the planes.

Cost of the planes is estimated at $20 million and deliveries are expected to begin within six months to a year.

The sale of the French tanks to Argentina will amount to more than $10 million, the Times says. Although no contract has been signed, The Times says the Argentine government decided last month to carry out the transaction.

ONLY FORESTS LAGGED

B.C. Economic Pace Brisk

The lengthy forest closure brought on by drought and fires during July and August has put a dint in an otherwise bright economic picture in this province.

In Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Loffmark's business activity bulletin for the current period he looks to improvement over 1966 record levels by year's end.

But the report notes a 3 million cubic feet decline in timber scaled during July, a total of 122 million cubic feet.

"It is expected August figures will show a further drop because of extensive fire closures," the report said.

A 25 per cent decline in the value of fish landings in the first seven months of the year is blamed on both smaller catches and labor disputes, but early indications for September show unexpectedly large salmon runs which could bring totals closer to what they were last year.

The value of landings to the end of July was $25.4 million.

Mining is strong in most sectors although zinc production fell 18 per cent in the first half, notwithstanding a 17 per cent improvement in June.

Copper sshipments were up 98 per cent, molybdenum increased 17 per cent and lead improved by 9 per cent in the first six months. Crude oil and natural gas production were 17 and 22 per cent better, respectively.

Coal shipments were 6 per cent higher at 473,000 tons; silver, nickel and asbestos shipments each increased.

But iron concentrates fell off by 5 per cent in the period.

Paper production is up one per cent, pulp up 9 per cent and plywood up 4 per cent. Retail sales are up 6 per cent for the first half of the year, and trade through B.C. ports in the first five months of 1967 show exports up 18 per cent, imports up 10 per cent over the like period of last year.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Highway Safety Council and the National Safety League agreed Monday to unite. The new body will be known as the Canada Safety Council.

Boy, 4, Imprisoned In Home-Made Cage

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The parents of a 15-pound four-year-old boy who was discovered imprisoned in a home-made cage were ordered arrested Tuesday by the state attorney's office.

Warrants were issued charging Dimitrio and Kathleen Puente with child neglect, a felony in Florida.

The Puentes' son, Kelly, was ordered into the custody of juvenile court after officers told of finding the skeleton-like child in a makeshift cage of a playpen covered by steel bedsprings. He was naked and had shoulder-length hair, they said.

The boy weighed 14 pounds, 11 ounces Sunday when juvenile officers took him to the pediatrics ward of Jackson Memorial Hospital. He weighed 15 pounds, six ounces Tuesday, the weight of a normal six-month-old infant, hospital officials said.

"I've seen a lot of children like this," one doctor said. "Not here, but in Vietnam."

'WALKING SKELETON'

The Puentes, in their mid-20s, sat silently during a hearing in juvenile court Monday when an officer described Kelly as looking like "one of the walking skeletons" from a Nazi concentration camp.

Doctors said the child showed no signs of beatings but that they discovered an arm fracture several months old.

Juvenile authorities said they found Kelly after receiving a call from relatives who visited the Puente home Saturday night.

The Puentes have one other child, a five-year-old boy.

Colwood Pool Opening Late

The opening date of the Centennial swimming pool on the Island Highway near Colwood has been set back from Saturday to October 28.

John S. Williams, chairman of the centennial committee, said the postponement is due to a delay in delivery of tile for the pool.

A GOOD NAME IN WINE

Many of the world's greatest grape strains thrive under the kind Okanagan sun. But it takes time for these costly imported slips to mature – time and great care. Our casabello vineyard is being patiently nurtured to yield a selection of fine domestic wines capable of ranking alongside the better imported varieties. For the present our output is limited. Our quality however, is not. We're rather proud of it.

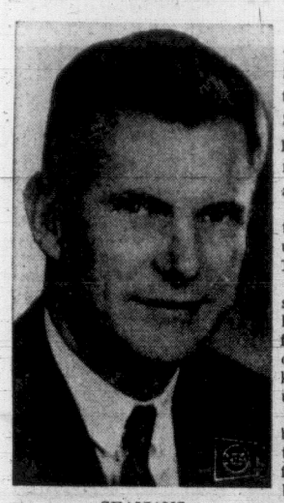
MAN-ON-MOON PROGRAM LAGGING

Troubled NASA to Lose No. 2 Man



SEAMANS
. . . bails out

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Last week Dr. Robert C. Seamans Jr., the No. 2 man in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said the possibility of landing U.S. astronauts on the moon in this decade is decreasing rapidly.

Monday, NASA announced that Seamans resigned as deputy administrator effective Jan. 1.

The reason given was "personal reasons," the same that has been put forth many times for personnel shifts that have occurred since the Apollo 1 fire killed three astronauts last January.

In some cases, a man has been replaced because NASA or the contractor employing him felt the job could be done better by someone else. In other cases, the men felt it was time to get out of the Apollo program. One or more of these reasons were cited:

1. The program is lagging far behind schedule, leaving, as Seamans noted, only a slim chance to reach the moon by the 1969 goal.

2. Pressure has been heavy on NASA and contractor officials because of the fire.

3. Congress cut heavily into the NASA budget request for this fiscal year, forcing cancellation of some programs and jeopardizing others. As a result, wholesale layoffs are occurring in the aerospace industry.

Seamans, with a reputation as a capable official since joining NASA in 1960, has fought hard beside Administrator James E. Webb to build a sound base for exploring space beyond the Apollo moon landing. Now, because of the Apollo fire and the deep budget paring, many of their dreams have been dashed or delayed.

Since the fire, NASA has made numerous high level personnel changes. The agency has been criticized by some congressmen. Some suggest Webb should resign. A board of review that investigated the Apollo 1 fire criticized NASA and Contractor North American Rockwell for poor management, negligence and sloppy work on the capsule in which the astronauts died.

NASA and North American initiated a $75,000,000 effort to improve the spacecraft. The first craft scheduled to be manned was to have been delivered to Cape Kennedy next February.

Last week NASA said it was discussing with the company a revision of the delivery date, possibly until May. That's 19 months after the first manned Apollo flight was to have flown.

NOVA SCOTIA TO START 'PHARMACARE'

HALIFAX (CP) — Canada's first provincewide, pre-paid drug insurance plan is expected to start in Nova Scotia next spring.

The Nova Scotia Pharmaceutic Society reviewed its plans at a meeting here Monday.

A spokesman said "plans are progressing favorably."

"We hope to beat medicare which is due in June '68. It will be the first of its kind in Canada."

Special legislation has already been brought in for "pharmacare." Actuaries now are working on statistics.

The spokesman said no scale of charges has been decided.

College Idea Vetoed Again

PENTICTON (CP) — Penticton school board officials said Monday the board has refused to meet officials of the Okanagan Regional College to discuss plans for a plebiscite asking Pentiction voters if they want to rejoin the college region.

Penticton voters opted out of the college region two years ago when they objected to a method of cost-sharing among Okanagan Valley communities which would have financed the regional college at Westbank near Kelowna.

Norman Hyslop, Penticton school board secretary-treasurer, said a letter written to the college council said there was no value in discussing the college issue further as no new proposals on the issue had been brought forward.

Under present legislation, Okanagan Valley communities would have to raise $3,000,000 of the $8,000,000 capital costs.

NEED PROVED

Why Not Kindergarten In All Areas?

By ELIZABETH FORBES

To round out my last two columns on kindergarten classes, I visited Frank Hobbs School.

I sat on a child-size chair in a bright airy room and for the best part of an hour I watched a group of five-year-olds explore and experiment and learn by doing.

Forbes

I saw their teacher, Mrs. C. Hoyte, maintain an easy informality based on friendly control. And I came away with a great respect for kindergarten teachers in general and a confirmed belief that classes of this nature should be acknowledged as a must in every public school.

Also that the provincial government should give them the same support as regular school classes. (Right now the government only gives a share of half of approved kindergarten costs.)

Principal J. Hayes who sat with me, gave full marks not only for the success of his kindergarten class but for any class of this nature, to the person in charge.

"It's the kindergarten teacher who has the responsibility of getting these youngsters off the ground," he told me. "She must foster their curiosity, help them solve problems they meet from day to day and launch them into successful orbit.

"If you had been here on the first day of school you would know what I mean," he said. "The little ones who attended kindergarten last year were prepared and ready for Grade 1. They knew what school was about. They were eager to discover what was ahead.

"Those who were attending classes for the first time were not nearly so assured. Everything was new and different and, for them, particularly hard to understand."

To substantiate these remarks we moved from the kindergarten class to Grade 1 where Mrs. H. R. Whitmore was working with six-year-olds.

Difference between the words more, greater and fewer, was being discussed with the help of visual aids.

We watched while the youngsters participated. And it was easy to find the ones who had kindergarten training and to see those who had only been at school a few weeks.

On the one hand there was self assurance, a lack of timidity, and an easy grasp of examples presented. On the other there was diffidence, shyness and a very evident struggle to understand and to become articulate.

Mr. Hayes explained that by Grade 3 these differences have presumably disappeared and it is no longer possible to distinguish either kindergarten or non-kindergarten children.

This is the big reason gigven by those who say there is no agreement that kindergartens should be an essential portion of the public school foundation program.

However, Mr. Hayes believes that while the visual evidence may rub off "who knows how many youngsters have been saved and set on the road to good learning habits by the understanding and knowledge they acquired in a kindergarten class."

Frank Hobbs School kindergarten, opened a little over a year ago, is one of two in the Greater Victoria School district that functions full time, with one class in the morning and another in the afternoon.

Classes in other areas where the need perhaps is even greater, work on the shift system with one group of children attending a half day for a full week and another group on the same schedule, the next week.

Right now there are 21 kindergarten classes in operation in public schools here. There is need for such classes in every school.

★ ★ ★

The five-year-old is becoming increasingly aware of people and things around him. He is seeking an understanding of the many oddities in his environment.

In the kindergarten the teacher sets the stage where the child can learn by providing materials and experiences that introduce him to procedures for more formal learning.

Failure to provide this setting at an early age of development can make the task of correction more difficult at a later period. It's a terrific responsibility!

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1967--PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

On Tuesday I started to tell you about our beach book, which we set out as a passport for young ones who wished to go through our property to the cove below. We had bargained on perhaps half a dozen signers-in a day; but before summer vacation was far advanced, the names under each date were overflowing on to the next page.

The invasion would begin soon after daybreak with a clatter of bikes out back as the early-bird fishermen arrived. It peaked just past noon and tapered off with dusk when a somewhat elastic curfew went into effect.

One shimmering Sunday, the beach book registered 60 signatures.

Nor, once arrived at the beach did the kids necessarily stay there. We realized early in the game that we had been dragooned into the unsought role of playground supervisors, arbiters, and parent substitutes for the younger children.

Here's Joe, who yesterday let the air out of Bill's tires, beating on the screen door. He is bug-eyed and sputtering with righteous indignation:

"Oh boy . . . that rat Bill! What he did to my bike! Please can I borrow your tire pump?"

★

Between May and late September, Win applied at least 100 band-aids, dispensed countless tissues and drinks of water, mopped up tears, and laid down the law when necessary. We also operated a paging service for parents in search of their young, admired captured rock cod on demand, and supplied plastic bags in which to lug them home.

From the approximate 200 boys and girls who inscribed those 1,200 signatures in the beach book, we also got some new slants on child motivation and behavior.

As I pointed out earlier, we had laid down such rules as we felt were necessary. The signing in was one. We reserved the right to know who came and went on our property; and this, with only the occasional token argument or mischievous attempt to beat the system, the kids readily accepted.

Then one evening we looked at the day's page and discovered that something new had been added.

One of the boys, not content with merely signing, had marked his departure by placing a tick after his name. Several others had followed his example.

This checking out as well as in was an expansion we had never suggested or, indeed, so much as thought of. Amused and puzzled, we later saw that a number of our juvenile passers-through were also noting their check-out times . . . usually after peeking through the kitchen window at the wall clock.

★

Why this voluntary stiffening of requirements? All we got for our questions were shrugs and slightly embarrassed grins.

A hangover from school regimentation, perhaps; but we have wondered since if the young boy and girl is actually happier with reasonable guidelines and directives, and feels the lack when they are not applied.

Rough stuff? Theft? Vandalism?

Well, leaving litter-bugging out of the picture, the score when we took the beach book in consisted of one slashed bike tire and one broken bench, neither the work of the kids we came to regard as our 'regulars'.

It was quite a summer, rugged at times but rewarding, and even though we've taken the beach book in, now, we still get the occasional wave and grin from one of 'our' kids as we drive on our errands in October's rainy weather.

A final note before I return the battered orange-covered scribbler to its drawer.

Across the blank space under the last name, some young hand has scribbled a message that makes all the bother worthwhile.

It reads, "Thanks for everything."

GETTING THEM UP was fun, but how do you get them down? Kilted Chief Scout of Commonwealth, Sir Charles MacLean, and Rover mate Mike Hawkes, left, pause to ponder moose-ical hat rack at Fairfield Rover den Tuesday where Sir Charles was a dinner guest. He is starting a Canadian tour. At right are Doug Harrison, John Halsall and Cedric Zala. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

'Bring Back the Bobbies, Smarten Up Liquor Clerks'

Bringing the "bobbie" uniform back to Victoria police is one of six suggestions made by a Vancouver hotel operator to promote tourists in B.C.

"Visitors want to go where the action is," said William B. Pattison, president of Delta Properties Ltd., addressing the Provincial Tourist Advisory Council at a Prince George conference Tuesday.

In the winter, tourist promoters could take a leaf from Swinging London with its backdrop of rain and smog, he said.

Listing six "simple things" that could be done, he suggested:

Reinstatement of bobbie uniforms for Victoria police;

Knowledgeable liquor store attendants who care;

A reasonably proud pier for visiting P&O liners;

Customs officials who appear to be glad to see visitors;

A free port in British Columbia;

Lakes set aside for fly fishermen only, with gang trolls and motor boats prohibited.

'UNDERNOURISHED'

After a world-girdling junket, Mr. Pattison was able to compare B.C. tourist promotion to "an undernourished goose that is laying golden eggs."

The province can no longer rely on scenic attractions alone to bring visitors, he said.

Places with comparable scenery, such as New Zealand, Japan, India and Bolivia are becoming more accessible to tourists for as little as one cent a mile via jumbo jets.

COMPETITIVE

The world is a competitive market place for tourists.

"The day when Grey Owl was our best tourist ambassador is gone forever," Mr. Pattison said.

The department of travel industry sponsors two conferences per year to help business, community and government representatives exchange ideas.

Reacting to the suggestion of bobbie-type uniforms, Victoria deputy police chief Ray Maitland felt the idea had some merit as a tourist attraction, but he pointed to specific disadvantages.

"I don't think it should be foisted on the men. They shoud have a say in it and the police union has gone against it each time it has come up."

He said the police commission has not wished to force the uniform on policemen, and pointed out there would be "terrific cost" to fitting the men out.

The deputy said the bobbie uniform, with its choker collar, is uncomfortable, especially in hot weather.

The traditional helmet is too high to be worn in patrol cars and would lie on the seat most of the time, he said.

Victoria police "fight the same kind of crime found across Canada and the present uniform is an acceptable one used universally across the country," the deputy noted.

City Mill Struck By IWA

'Conditions Unbearable' Says Picket's Placard

A sudden walkout this morning halted operations at the B.C. Forest Products plywood mill on Gorge Road.

The company, in a statement, called the walkout illegal and "wholly unjustified."

Outside the main gate, a picket carried a sign reading: "Working conditions unbearable in this plant."

He declined any elaboration except to say "it is something that's been brewing for a long time."

There was no word from the International Woodworkers of America, the union which represents the 400 mill workers.

Mill manager T. D. R. Humphreys said the work stoppage "is an illegal strike in direct contravention of both the Labour Relations Act and the master agreement. It is not only illegal but wholly unjustified. There has been no suggestion at any time that the company has breached the collective agreement in any way.

"The company has been seeking to achieve reasonable levels of efficiency in the operation in accordance with their right to do so, as provided by the master agreement.

400 AFFECTED

"The illegal strike, which will affect some 400 men, is evidently an attempt by union officials to interfere with the proper exercise of those rights.

"There are orderly procedures in the agreement for resolving legitimate grievance without the need for costly work stoppages and these procedures should be used.

"It is particularly regrettable coming at a time when the spokesmen from both labor and management have called for higher levels of responsibility in living up to the obligations of collective agreements."

Two weeks ago, the Victoria Labour Council was told that the plywood mill has hired efficiency experts and the move was "creating quite a havoc."

Union president Murray Drew said then "they are doing away with jobs and piling the rest. The crew in that operation has decided to ban overtime."

He said the efficiency experts "sneak around log piles and at the end of the day make a report on the employee."

Doctor Ban To Continue Says Haddock

The chairman of Royal Jubilee Hospital says the appointment of doctors to the hospital board is still a question for the future.

"I don't think the government is ready yet to change (the hospital's private act). The minister isn't opposed to it. But the matter is still under study," said J. Courtney Haddock.

He was referring to unofficial reports from the annual meeting of B.C. Hospitals' Association currently underway at Penticton.

The question of medical representation with voting rights on the board has caused inflamed discussion at the last two annual meetings of the hospital association.

NEVER OPPOSED

The board was blamed by some doctors for procrastinating on the issue, but Mr. Haddock said the board never opposed permitting doctors to serve as full board members.

Former health minister Eric Martin was thought to have opposed the step. The present health minister, W. D. Black does not.

Charges were heard at hospital annual meetings suggesting that doctors on a board might be in a position to gain from publicity or engage in empire building.

Dr. Scott Wallace led the fight for doctor representation, claiming that such charges were baseless.

He was incensed because he felt the present regulation against doctors and clergymen serving on the board was discrimination which abrograted their rights as citizens.

NOT INVOLVED

Mr. Haddock said it all boils down to a dispute between the medical fraternity and the government and the board has no involvement.

The hospital annual meeting asked the board to urge the government to relax the rules and the request had been made.

Mr. Haddock doubted that a busy doctor could spare the time required of board members.

Mr. Haddock also commented on a BCHA convention proposal by W. A. Street, past chairman of Vancouver General Hospital.

Mr. Street urged that all hospital board meetings be open to the public.

HARMFUL

At present all but annual meetings are closed and even minutes of board meetings are restricted from view by hospital association members in most hospitals.

Mr. Haddock said he thought open discussion at board meetings could be harmful to patients. Of necessity, discussions are forthright and life and death is discussed in a statistical manner which could upset sick people.

"It could do a great amount of harm," he added.

Chief Scout Loses His Hat, Wins Host Of New Friends

By ALAN WHITE

A dinner of moose soup, elk, venison and salmon greeted Commonwealth Chief Scout Sir Charles MacLean when he arrived in Victoria Tuesday night to begin a five-week Canadian tour.

A two-hour delay in Sir Charles' flight from Vancouver held the dinner up but failed to dampen the chief Scout's spirits. He smiled broadly as he was piped into the den of the Fairfield Rover Crew, below the Gonzales Observatory.

There the kilted chief Scout was met by members of the Rover crews and Scout leaders of the Greater Victoria area.

The meal of wild game was prepared by members of the crew and carried from their homes to the den, an old wartime radio shack. Members of the seventh and eighth Fort Victoria Scout troops acted as waiters.

After meeting the Rovers and leaders, Sir Charles studied the various trophies amassed by the crew over the years, including Scout and national flags and a massive moose head used as a hat rack.

ANOTHER HAT

Crew members had prepared for an addition to their hat collection — they discreetly placed Sir Charles' hat in a special showcase and hung it on the wall.

They had a replacement for him — a Mounted Police stetson obtained from the RCMP by special permission from Ottawa headquarters.

This switching of hats is a tradition with the crew which began when they obtained one from former Chief Scout Lord Rowallan on his 1958 visit to the den.

Sir Charles flew directly from London, England, for his visit and will have a busy round of activities before he returns Thursday afternoon.

Today he had an afternoon fishing trip and at the Bay St. Armoury at 7:30 p.m. a rally of 4,000 Greater Victoria Cubs and Scouts is scheduled. The rally will be followed by a reception at the Canadian Scottish Officers Mess for 400 adult Scout leaders.

SOLARIUM VISIT

On Thursday morning he will visit the Solarium Cub pack and then tour city hall. Following a luncheon hosted by the Saltire Society at Holyrood House Sir Charles will depart by plane for Vancouver.

Born at London, England, in 1916, Sir Charles first became associated with the Scout movement as a Wolf Cub in London in 1924. He was elected a member of the council of the Boy Scouts Association in 1953. He succeeded Lord Rowallan as Chief Scout of the Commonwealth in 1959.

Man Jailed 20 Months For Fraud

Tim Glover, 24, was sentenced to 20 months when he appeared in magistrate's court today after pleading guilty to 14 offences.

He had earlier pleaded guilty to 10 charges of obtaining food and lodgings by fraud and three charges of forgery.

The offences took place in Victoria, Prince George and Terrace over the summer.

Today he pleaded guilty to a fourth charge of forgery. Police reported on Aug. 18 he cashed a forged cheque in Vanderhoof.

The accused read a long statement to the court in which he said his activities were the product of "rational ambition."

OBSESSED

Magistrate Ostler told Glover "you became so obsessed with ambition you stopped at nothing.

"You looked upon this as a calculated risk and now see it as something that didn't work out.

"But had you secceeded, you never could have wiped out this record."

The magistrate said he would not send the accused to the penitentiary because of his past good record, but he warned "if you continue this conduct, you may find yourself there."

The sentence will be served at Oakalla Prison Farm in Burnaby.

Youngster Fair After Car Mishap

A three-year-old girl was hit by a car when she wandered on to Fernwood Road Tuesday afternoon.

Theresa Garcia, 2533 Fernwood, was struck by a southbound car driven by Oliver Brunner, 2829-B Cedar Hill Road, city police said.

Her condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital is fair. She is suffering from possible concusion.

Police said no charges will be laid.

Man Fined $100 For Shoplifting

Joseph Heral, 52, of 123 Bushby Street, today was fined $100 in magistrate's court for shoplifting.

Court was told Heral took three can openers from the Hudson's Bay Co. Tuesday. He was carrying $96 at the time.

Heral pleaded guilty.

Ma'ah Still Stirring Up Local Waters

Ma'ah, the 35-foot California grey whale, is still here.

Since Provincial Museum director Dr. Clifford Carl requested information on his movements and whereabouts, he has been spotted off Shoal Bay, Trial Island and around the Gulf Islands.

Lieut. Cmdr. A. E. Shirley, 1416 Beatty, reported the big mammal having a rollicking time in a kelp bed off the south end of Discovery Island.

Major Cuthbert Holmes spotted him from his 677 Beach Drive home.

RARE ONE

Dr. Carl is keeping a tab on Ma'ah because he is a rare specie and has never before been seen here.

The whale, protected by law, was first identified early in September near Smuggler's Cove but his disappearance Saturday concerns biologists who are studying his habits.

Ma'ah is the Indian name for the grey whale—once common off the Pacific Coast but nearly exterminated by hunters at the turn of the century.

$400 Fine Imposed On Impaired Driver

A Port Alberni man was fined $400 in magistrate's court today for impaired driving.

Dennis Hill, 27, was charged after police observed him driving erratically east on Bay Street early this morning.

OAK BAY DETAILS PROGRAM

$130,000 in Winter Works

Oak Bay public works department is preparing a $130,000 winter program which should bring in $13,200 in federal winter work aid.

The total is only $4,000 short of last winter's costs but then winter work money was available for a six-month period and this winter the grant period ends a month earlier on March 31.

The federal government pays 50 per cent of payroll costs for all extra help hired and the provincial government will provide 50 per cent of payroll costs of employing of people on welfare.

SMALLER GRANT

"We don't seem to have employable men on welfare in Oak Bay," said G. O. White, municipal engineer. "Consequently we don't get provincial aid and the grant portion of the labor costs is small."

Biggest item on the Oak Bay program is a $100,000 improvement to Windsor Road which includes surfacing and curbing. But only about two-thirds of this work can be done within the winter work period and the anticipated grant is $6,000.

The work covers about three-quarters of a mile from Victoria to Beach Drive.

SPRINKLERS

The department will spend $20,000 of municipal money and $3,000 from Ottawa to put in a boulevard sprinkler system on parts of St. David, St. Patrick and Monterey, south of Oak Bay Avenue.

Waterworks will take $24,000 for replacement of mains on McLaren, Uplands Road to the pumphouse, Bartlett and Lafayette and new mains on Dorset to improve pressure in that area.

Sewer work will cost $11,400 with $1,400 expected in grants. Storm sewers on Windsor will cost $4,400 with another $5,000 going for manholes. The Somass line will be replaced at a cost of $2,000.

Work on these projects will start sometime after Nov. 1.

OAK BAY FIREMEN lift Barry Goult, 64, of 3961 Smuggler's Cove, to a stretcher after an accident at Monterey and Windsor in heavy rain at 5 p.m. Tuesday. Goult was rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital with head lacerations and possible concussion. His car collided with the Hydro bus in the background and then hit the tree. The bus also struck a parked car. Goult is in good condition in hospital. (Robin Clarke photo.)

Drivers Suffer Head Injuries

Saanich police were called to Grange Road early Tuesday evening by a resident who reported a car had rolled into her yard.

Police found a car and a truck attempting to avoid colliding skidded off the road in opposite directions.

Drivers Spooran Dhanowa, 970 Market, and Alexander McDonald, 1071 Trans-Canada Highway, were both taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with head injuries. Ther condition is fairly good today.

Ask The Times

Q. What purpose is served by the two flashing lights in the box on a power pole at Blanshard and Johnson Street?

C.S.B.

A. They are signal lights for the fire department's benefit. The route to Victoria West or the industrial reserve is down Johnson Street and when these lights are flashing the crews know that the Johnson Street Bridge is up and the alternative Bay Street route is used.

Q. Is there an International Friendship Club and if so where can I get information on it? M.B.

A. There is an International Friendship League at 3 Creswick Road, London W, 3, England.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Do Conditioning Exercises

Was it ex-President Harry Truman who said, "If you can't stand the heat get out of the kitchen?"

Lowman

Many women suffer from the self-consciousness and awkwardness and damage to their appearance which overweight brings them but do nothing about remedying the situation. They stay right in that kitchen of discontent rather than getting out with self-discipline and self-improvement.

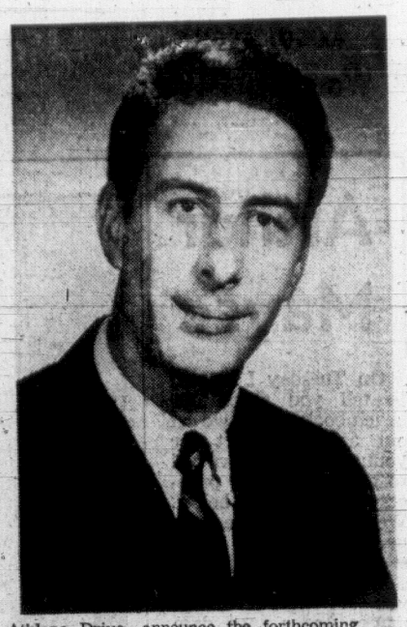
However, not all figure defects are due to overweight. Many are caused by the unattractive distribution of weight even when there are no extra pounds. Then, of course, flabbiness is a major foe we must fight constantly.

The following exercise is a good general conditioner and is insurance against flabbiness. It is also slimming to the abdomen, thighs, hips and waist. What more can you ask?

Lie on your back, legs straight and arms extending straight out from the shoulders, resting on the floor. Bend both knees up close to the abdomen as you roll over onto the left side of your hips. As you roll back onto your back straighten your legs. This time bend your knees as you roll onto the right side of the hips. Keep your hands on the floor as you roll from side to side, straightening your legs as you roll onto your back.

Here is a workout for your legs. Sit on the floor with your legs straight and lean back on your hands. Bend the left knee up close to your abdomen. Thrust the left leg forward until the knee is straight. Point the toe. As you do this bend the right knee up close to the abdomen. Straighten right knee and bend the left. In other words, one knee bends as the other straightens. Do this exercise briskly.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Why Not Take Steps Toward Beauty?" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. This covers all of the most usual defects in leg contour. Address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.



Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. C. Smith, 1567 Athlone Drive, announce the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter, Julia Dell Lawrance, to Mr. Fred Wirth Fieldhouse, Jr., younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Fieldhouse, of Scottsburg, Indiana. The wedding will take place on Saturday, October 14, at 8 p.m., in First United Church. Rev. R. J. D. Morris will officiate. SHOPPING GUIDE

Last-Minute Rushes Need a Mending Help

By PENNY SAVER

Darning socks is not my favorite task at any time. I usually try to avoid it as long as possible. What happens is that I find myself faced with an enormous pile of socks all needing mending. My New Year's resolution this year was to once a week sit down and do a little mending before it piled up. Sometimes I have kept this promise to myself but most of the time the socks have mounted up as they always have. I had just started on the pile the other day when a neighbor phoned. She was going downtown for lunch and would I like to come with her? I needed no other excuse to leave the perpetual chore.

For somebody who has to darn socks in a hurry the little kit I found is the perfect solution. For bachelors and students it would be a large saving in time. I found it very good for those last-minute rushes in the morning when Junior finds his sock has a hole in it and the school bus leaves in one half hour. To repair a hole is very easy. Put the darning knob under the spot where the hole is, draw the edges of the hole together then place a patch over the drawn-in edges. Press down firmly with a hot iron and wait 10 or 15 minutes until everything is cool before handling the sock. The cost is only 29 cents.

My cosmetic bag was becoming very worn and the need of a new one was urgent. I was lucky to be able to find exactly what I wanted. The one I finally selected was vivid gold, green and blue plastic with a zipper opening. These bags come in a variety of sizes and shapes with both flower and checked designs. Some of the bags are like small clutch purses with snap openings instead of zippers. They're priced from 39 cents to 77 cents.

If you have ever had the experience I had of going to show my identification card and having the case practically fall apart you will like my newest find. By slipping the old case out of your wallet and replacing it with a fold-over plastic case that comes in two sections the problem is solved without the expense of buying a new wallet. It's a bargain at 29 cents.

If you would like to know where I found these items, give me a call at 382-3131.

A New You

WEDDING DILEMMA

My future daughter-in-law informs me that since her mother will be wearing a long dress to the wedding, which is to take place at 11 o'clock in the morning, she wishes me to wear one as well. Inasmuch as my relatives and friends are simple people of middle class background, I would not like to look overdressed. Is it a MUST that I buy a long dress?—Mrs. J. H.

Since your daugher-in-law is planning a formal wedding, it would be best if you conform with her wishes. You will make her happy and 'match' her mother as well.

It is considered proper for both mothers to be similarly attired. Compromise by selecting a gown that you can successfully shorten after the affair.

BOTHERSOME BLACKHEADS

I'm so enthused over your column, and know you can help me.

What can I do about small blackheads which accumulate on my upper cheeks? I have even gone so far as to squeeze them, but even that doesn't help.—Carlyn S.

Start with a facial scrub. Ask your druggist for a MILD grain and use as directed. Never scrub too hard as this area is rather sensitive.

In addition, wash your face twice daily with hot water and a medicated soap (such as PHisohex). Rinse with hot water at least 30 times (rubber gloves will protect your hands). Follow with a clear cool rinse and finally pat with chilled witch hazel.

Dab calamine lotion or milk of magnesia on the blackhead areas at bedtime.

Never, and I mean NEVER, attempt to squeeze blackheads. You will not only encourage more but permanently destroy the delicate surface of the skin. Incidentally, steer clear of using a creamy type makeup base.

PEACHY BLEACHY

I have read about skin conditioners that lighten the skin. Are these products effective?—Mrs. G.W.

There are many preparations on the market claiming to do wonders. The results, however, depend primarily upon your individual skin chemistry. You can always play it safe by using a freshly cut cucumber or lemon for a mild skin bleach.

Emily Wilkens welcomes letters, but cannot undertake to answer each one. She will use questions in her column of general interest. Address your letters to Emily Wilkens, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY . . .

So, Everyone Had Good Time

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Here's the situation: A woman, her daughter and her daughter's boy friend went to Expo 67. They travelled and lived together in a one-bedroom trailer for the entire week that they were at the fair.

The woman is separated from her husband. The daughter and her boy friend are both over 21, but they are not officially engaged. They are just going together. No marriage plans have been mentioned. What do you think?

EAST LAKE, O.

DEAR EAST LAKE: I think they probably had a wonderful time. Now what's YOUR problem?

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it's all right for a little boy, say around four or five years old, to see his mother undressed? I have a friend who thinks it's perfectly all right to let her little boy hang around and watch her dress, from the skin out. And she thinks nothing of letting him come into the bathroom while she is in the tub. He comes in to ask her questions or to just sit and visit while he gets his eyes full.

Maybe I am wrong, but I don't approve of this. My friend says it is better to let the boy KNOW than to have him curious. What is your opinion?

DAILY READER

DEAR READER: Maybe I'm old-fashioned, but I still believe in modesty. A mother shouldn't make a federal case out of it if her four-year-old son were to accidentally catch a glimpse of her in the altogether, but the bathroom door should be LOCKED while Mother is bathing.

Laverne Christensen Becomes Bride of James Beesley

VOWS EXCHANGED IN CATHEDRAL

Baskets of autumn-toned chrysanthemums were at the altar of Christ Church Cathedral when Laverne Karen Christensen and James Thomas Beesley exchanged rings and vows. Rev. R. A. Hoult and Dean Brian Whitlow officiated at the service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a slim gown of crystal charm fashioned with a lace bodice and sleeves ending in lily points. Her scalloped train swept back from two small bows at the shoulders and a petalled seed pearl headpiece held her chapel-length veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow rosebuds, white stephanotis and ivy.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. P. Christensen of Port Alberni and Mr. and Mrs. J. Beesley, 1147 Pandora Avenue. Mr. Christensen gave his daughter in marriage.

The choir boys sang "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" as the register was signed in the presence of the congregation.

The bride's attendants wore matching gowns of lime green crystal charm styled on empire lines and fashioned with lace bodices. They wore self-fabric rosettes with tulle as headpieces and carried crescent bouquets of white gladioli.

Mrs. Bev Peverelle was matron of honor, Mrs. Pearl Cozens was bridesmatron and Miss Karen Smith, bridesmaid.

Patrick Whalen acted as best man and Gale Sullivan and Barney Spaven ushered the guests.

At the reception following in the Cathedral parish hall a three-tier wedding cake which was made by Mrs. R. A. Hoult and Miss Shirley Humphries centred the head table. It was topped with yellow roses and flanked by bowls of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums. Wes Hunter, Alberni, proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon to the provincial interior, the new Mrs. Beesley chose a pale green wool suit which she accented with brown accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Brilliant Style Show Ushers in New Season

An instant psychedelic trip into fall "Fashion Nouveau" was on stage at MacPherson Playhouse Tuesday evening, complete with bowers of op art flowers, a mind-spinning light and sound show, and the most "turned-on" fashion parade in town.

The exciting liveliness of this fall's color tones were found in a mix-and-match wardrobe of electric shades of cerise and purple, green and blue. Spice and camel came into their own when black was the accent.

Setting the theme for autumn was a pumpkin-toned three-piece suit with a broad salt-and-pepper lynx collar extending down the lapels. The jacket was long, cut off below the hipline—a design that is setting the pace for the new season. This ensemble was worn with an Australian roller-brim hat that fastened with a tiny strap under the chin.

ENGLISH IMPORT

But fashion doesn't go always to the sophisticate. For the young tripper with a yen for color and stand-out-in-a-crowd mode, there was an English import of purple bodiced dress with a dazzling cerise, purple and pink plaid midget of a skirt attached at the low-slung waistline. Worn with toning pink hose and an over-the-eye purple tam-o-shanter, this was a show-stopper.

The high style, go-anywhere pant suit comes into its own this season with a black and white checkerboard look. One shown on Tuesday had a jacket that was long and slightly flared and nipped in at the waist. The pant legs were straight and slim.

A black and camel rain or shine coat seemed a "must" for Victoria weather. One with a softly tailored collar and bracelet sleeves could be worn about-town or for travelling in Europe. The serviceable beauty was worn with a black fedora hat set over the forehead.

CERISE TWEED

Shades of cerise are for every age and, for the young at heart, there was a dream of a cerise tweed suit, worn with a toning chiffon shell, and a flare of cerise and vermillion in a wrap-around velvet turban.

At-home wear promises to be the most elegant in years. One eye-catcher in Paris pink nylon tricot was styled with a pair of full-sweeping culottes, topped with a skimmer of nylon overdress, slit at the side to the waist. Deep bands of lace flattered the hemline and side opening of the skirt.

You'll be a one-woman light show in the black and white harlequin print djellaba which proved to be a dazzling optical illusion of chiffon over taffeta.

For evening after-five wear one of the most versatile was a taupe and slate toned brocade cocktail suit. Styled with a short-cropped jacket that ended just below the waist, it was trimmed with a circlet of pastel mink at the collar, matched by a stunning mink toque.

'FABULOUS FAKES'

Furs are the "fabulous fakes" for fall, and a show-stopping pelt of ocelot, or a make-believe black and white calf jacket had all heads turning.

For evening formal occasions the look is definitely "San Francisco" with formal gowns a kaleidoscope of color and design. Once again, cerise is "in the know". A long floating tent of chiffon was dazzling with jewel-encrusted bands across the shoulder.

Or in contrast, there was a dress of black chiffon styled with shift-like simplicity but highlighted by two chiffon capelet layers draped over one shoulder to give the hint of a sleeve.

The show was opened by Mrs. B. Stuart, president of St. Louis College Parent-Teacher Organization, the show's sponsors. Mrs. Joan Fraser was commentator, representing Woodward Stores, who supplied the fashions.

NINE MODELS

Modelling were Rosalie Essihos, Charlotte Biggs, Michaelle Green, Joan Thompson, Robin Pettit, Kip Wallis, Verniece Bevis, Maude Parks and Lorraine Haslam.

The Teen and Twenty Fashion Council performed at the intermission breaks, staging a "salute to vaudeville," and "a trip" rounded out with the singing of Roy Silver, accompanied by Ken Peaker. Proceeds of $800 were realized. Conveners were Mrs. C. Baier and Mrs. William Finley.

Another show will be staged this evening at 8 p.m. under the sponsorship of Omicron Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

AWAITING OFFICIAL NOTICE

Speaker Promises Byelection Speed

Speaker William Murray told the Times Tuesday he had not yet received any official notification of a vacancy in the legislature but will act promptly when it comes.

He was commenting, in a telephone interview from Prince Rupert, on a Monday announcement in Vancouver by the Liberal Party that it had sent him official notification in order to start the wheels rolling for a byelection.

The unusual action will put an eight-month deadline on the government for holding a by-election in Vancouver South where Social Credit MLA Tom Bate died two weeks ago.

Liberal Leader Ray Perrault, in his announcement, said his party wants a byelection before the next session which is expected to start Jan. 25.

But Attorney-General Robert Bonner, who has been acting as government spokesman during Premier Bennett's Scandinavian trip, was not available for comment.

ELECTION WRIT

Under the Constitution Act, official notification to Mr. Murray of the vacancy means an election writ must be issued within six months and balloting within two months of that time limit.

This means a June byelection vote at the latest but actual timing is in the hands of the government.

The liberals claimed they have a strong candidate to reveal.

A Social Credit spokesman said about a dozen persons have indicated tentatively they might seek that party's nomination.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said that his party will have to consider calling an early nomination meeting and urged all Liberals to support the NDP choice in order to defeat the government.

RETIRING Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes receives Variety Club's Heart and Humanitarian Award from Harry Howard (centre), founder of the Variety Club of Western Canada. Mayor Hugh Stephen (right) joined in tribute to Mr. Pearkes at luncheon given in his honor Tuesday at Union Club. Mr. Pearkes is an ardent supporter of Canada's Variety Club, which last year raised $70,000 for retarded children. He appealed for public support of Telethon TV show to be broadcast from Queen Elizabeth Theatre Saturday and Sunday.

Doctor Provokes U.K. Storm By Saying Drug Use Essential

LEEDS, England (AP)—A medical storm broke today over a doctor who told British university students that drug-taking is "an essential and not necessarily blameworthy activity."

Dr. Ronald Still, medical officer at Leeds University, gave his views in an address to 2,300 new students Tuesday.

"Besides considering the legality of their actions," Dr. Still said, "students should assure themselves that whatever drugs they use they would be a valuable addition to their total well-being, without entailing the risks of crippling addiction."

In London, a spokesman of the British Medical Association told reporters:

"This is a most extraordinary thing for a medical officer to say. It goes against medical advice and could be exceedingly dangerous."

In an interview after addressing the students, Dr. Still said: "I certainly would not want to encourage people to experiment in an unthoughtful way. The point is, if the drugs are to be used at all, they should be used with judgment."

Complexion Beauty
The secret of beautifying the complexion is said to lie in the saturation of the skin with a new type of tropical moist oil. The skin takes on an immediate healthy bloom as the tiny lines and blemishes are gently smoothed away. This saturation treatment with the moist oil of Olay is recommended by skin care consultants, who advise its daily use as a powder base to give the complexion day-long beauty. Your druggist will help you to obtain a supply for your personal needs.

SHORT-CUT FOR POLICE

Open, Shut Cases For Door-Dashers?

City police will get their door-on-the-square, aldermen decided in committee meeting Tuesday.

Public works committee agreed to punch a passage through a section of wall on the north side of Centennial Square leading into a police station courtyard to allow police easy access to the square.

There had been complaints that police summoned quickly to the square could not reach it without going part way around the block or through a parking building next to the police station.

The door will be located in a wall partly screened by foliage, and it will be secured so that only police may use it.

On the suggestion of chairman Ald. Cecil Parrott, committee asked for a tightening of the city bylaw dealing with demolition of buildings.

He said the law needed "teeth in it" to enforce the complete levelling pf property. As it stands, an owner may tear down a building, leaving the foundation and debris on the site.

★ ★ ★

An application by Airwest Airlines Ltd., to sublet an Inner Harbor wharf for charter air service was rejected by the committee.

It was pointed out that Victoria harbor master feels there is already considerable congestion of harbor waters with marine traffic and aircraft that use a float plane landing below Belleville Street.

The Vancouver-based air service wanted to lease space vacated when Yukon Queen Tours Ltd. gave up its sightseeing vessel service, which operated from floats adjacent to city-owned accommodation below the Causeway.

Steps will be taken to pull the rungs from under youngsters who climb atop the Centennial parking garage elevator shaft to damage an automatic control device.

Engineer James Garnett said vandalism to date had cost $700.

Youngsters use open-work cement blocks for foot and hand holds in climbing to the roof from the upper deck of the garage. A wind-sensitive instrument is mounted there to control the water flow in Centennial Fountain.

When it is damaged the resulting short circuit damages other electrical components in the system, it has been found.

Committee members felt the problem could be solved by filling in the latticed face of the cement blocks.

★ ★ ★

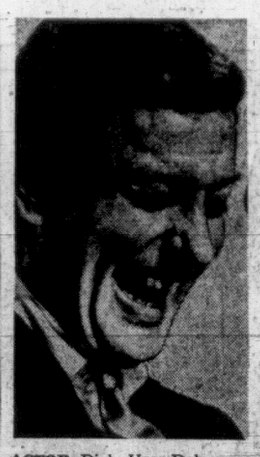
A serpentine hill favored by sports car drivers will be made a one-way street for most of its length.

Lotbiniere Ave., next to Government House, will be closed to northbound traffic from a point 325 feet north of Richardson.

The committee left the narrow-walled way open to southbound traffic descending from Rockland.

Also banned were left turns for northbound traffic on Douglas between Hillside and Garbally.

Signs, signals or road markings will be placed to indicate the restriction, which covers a heavily travelled part of Douglas just north of Humber Green.



ACTOR Dick Van Dyke was reported today to be in line for the role of John F. Kennedy in a film based on Pierre Salinger's book "With Kennedy." Van Dyke was reported to be the choice of Salinger, who was Kennedy's press secretary.

Press Vote For Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Editorial, advertising, business office and maintenance employees of Pacific Press Ltd. voted 511 to 121 in favor of strike action, it was announced Tuesday.

Pacific Press owns the city's two daily newspapers, the evening Sun and the morning Province.

The government - supervised strike vote was conducted by mail.

New Wage Proposal

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice Francois Chevalier, mediator in Montreal's 10-day-old transit strike, today placed fresh wage recommendations before the Montreal Transportation Commission and the Montreal Transportation Employees' Union.

'Keep Local Autonomy' School Trustees Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Frank Beinder of Trail, president of the B.C. School Trustees Association, called today for preservation of autonomy on a local level for education.

Mr. Beinder told about 500 delegates from the province's 83 school districts at the association's annual convention that school boards are aware of increasing financial pressures on municipalities, "but there must be some consideration for maintenance of a local contribution to education."

He said the provincial government holds the key to financial relief for municipalities through increased grants "but there are many ways in which relief can be accorded the municipalities without elimination of local contribution to education."

Mr. Beinder said tax contributions by property owners instil a sense of ownership of education into the populace and result in local support for policies.

Preservation of school boards also ensued that inovations in school design, curriculum or other aspects could be evaluated to suit local needs.

He cautioned trustees that education spending must fit into the total economic picture of the province.

"There is a multitude of demands upon the public purse," he said. "There is a great diversity of opinion with regard to priority in public spending.

"The need is patient devotion to the cause of better education, and intelligent understanding of the fact that education . . . is still part of the total picture."

Jailed for Disobeying

SALONIKA, Greece (AP) — Police Maj. Nicholas Katsaounis was sentenced by a special military court Monday to five years imprisonment for disobeying a military order. Katsounis, who was a comptroller in Salonika's gendarmerie headquarters, was also alleged to have insulted the military authorities.

9 IN MEMORIAM

CARD—In loving memory of our Mother and Grandmother, Elvira Mae, who passed away Oct. 4, 1966.

In our home she is fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to her name.
Those who loved her in life
sincerely
Still love her in death just the same.

—Sadly missed by Del, Connie, Darlene, Thomas, Barbara and Patricia.

LINDSAY—In loving memory of our mother and grandmother Helen Frances (Neil) Lindsay who passed away October 4, 1966.

At twilight when twilight hour draws near,
And sunset flames the sky,
We think of you, dear mother,
And the happy days gone by.
Thoughts of you come drifting back
Within our dreams to stay.
To know that you are resting
When the twilight ends the day.

—Remembered by her son, William and family.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Slip an animal into the plot and you've got a built-in audience. Make the lead man in the story a former child television star who captivated the young and old fry in the past and you've got a winner.

Stephen

The animal is the elephant "Maya" in the production of the same name. The fry, now 16 years old, is Jay North who captivated audiences with shenanigans surrounding Mr. Wilson.

The Saturday evening hour-long production has managed to gain quite a few fans. First of all, it is shot in India. The color scenery is out of this world, or beyond the border of the ordinary run-of-the-mill Hollywood product. Secondly, it revolves around two boys and an elephant.

The second boy is Sajid Khan of India. He doesn't add much to the plot except to steer young North out of language difficulties and keep things interesting by referring to the elephant as his "mother."

The explanation of that line is that both his parents died in a flood and the elephant reared him.

Don't snigger. Romulus and Remus were the mythical founders of Rome, and they were reared by a wolf. Anything is possible in this world of television and mythology.

But even the producers are in doubt for North and entourage, minus elephant, are esconced in Hollywood waiting word on whether to go back to India for more episodes of Maya.

The network went along with a number of episodes, but like all others involved in high finance want to wait to see if ratings warrant any follow-ups.

TIDBITS: Bing Crosby will help Shirley Temple Black in her congressional campaign as a member of her finance committee ... Mala Powers has signed to co-star with Roger Smith in "Rogues' Gallery" ... Joyce Jillson will replace Leigh Taylor-Young in television's Peyton Place.

NEW HOUSE

Custom built for his own use in beautiful Broadmead the builder has given this house the best of finish with smooth plaster walls throughout, heavy duty carpet in LR, DR, and halls, expensive Crestwood cabinets in kitchen, top quality vinyl floor coverings in kitchen and bathrooms. A well-proportioned plan provides such features as a spacious eating area in kitchen, separate dining room, large master bedroom with separate closets for husband and wife and its own bathroom with tiled shower, two other bedrooms and second bathroom. Downstairs (at ground level) could be easily finished to provide a huge rec. room, 4th bedroom or den, utility room and still have space left over. A sundeck of almost 600 sq. ft. is placed over the double carport. This house is located on Edgewood Place, a cul-de-sac of attractive homes more easily accessible from town than Ten Mile Point or Gordon Head. See it and make an offer on asking price of $34,500. Y's Men Gather For Regional Weekend Meet

Y's Men from as far away as Montana will meet this weekend in Victoria for the Pacific Northwest regional convention.

More than 100 delegates are expected to attend the conference to study leadership and elect new regional officers.

Keynote speaker is Y's Men's International President Urban Johnson of Wisconsin who will tell delegates about the recent international conference.

LEADERSHIP

The convention gets under way with a Saturday luncheon with Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis speaking on leadership.

A Centennial theme has been chosen for the Saturday banquet at the Purple Onion, with several members of the Victoria club wearing Centennial dress.

Sunday has been set aside for the regional business session and election of new officers.

The Pacific Northwest region includes British Columbia, Alaska, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and part of Montana.

Labor History Book Becomes A Best-Seller

A new book written by a former Victoria resident has become a bestseller.

Sales of No Power Greater: A Century of Labour in B.C. have passed 1,000 copies in the four weeks since it was released.

The book, a history of trade unionism in this province, is written by Dr. Paul Phillips, research director for the B.C. Federation of Labour and former economics teacher at the University of Victoria.

The federation had 5,000 copies printed and will be ordering a second printing, said secretary Ray Haynes today.

"It's bogged down our office," he said. "It's really quite phenomenal."

Biggest sales so far have been to two Vancouver book stores, followed by the carpenters' union and the Victoria Labour Council.

TOO FEW JOIN University Reserve Plan Dropped

OTTAWA (CP)—Acting Defence Minister Hellyer said Tuesday the three university reserve training plans for the armed forces will be discontinued by the end of next year. The regular officer training plan, primary source of career officers in the regular forces, is not affected.

The three plans being discontinued are the Canadian Officers Training Corps, established in 1912, the University Naval Training Division, established in 1943, and the University Reserve Training Plan, in existence since 1946.

The COTC obtained officers for the militia, the UNTD for the naval reserve and the URTP for the air force reserve. Together they cost $1,400,000 annually.

Hellyer said about 1,000 university students will be affected.

Interested university students may continue to be trained off campus at local reserve units.

A number of chairs of military studies will be established at some universities.

Hellyer said not enough students were joining the reserve forces after graduation to make the plans worthwhile any longer.

Outside the Commons, officials said the size and scope of the regular officer training plan will not be changed.

★ ★ ★

The forces obtain some 1,200 officers a year from the three service colleges and another 600 from civilian universities through subsidization.

Students in COTC, UNTD and URTP will continue their present courses but there will be no new enrolment from now on.

The new plan for establishing chairs of military studies and training students at reserve units will cost about $500,000 annually.

Canada Buys 'Copters

OTTAWA (CP) — Ten U.S.-built helicopters have been ordered by the Canadian Forces to provide support for ground operations, it was announced Tuesday. The CUH-1D Iroquois helicopters, manufactured by Bell Helicopter Co. of Fort Worth, Texas, will cost about $7,000,000, including spare parts, tools and training for pilots and mechanics.

PLANNERS SUGGEST:

'Hippies Symbol Of Wider Revolt'

WASHINGTON (AP) — There wasn't a hippie in sight as 2,500 planners gathered this week to discuss the next 50 years of U.S. life. But the hippie movement was much in evidence.

Speaker after speaker from the list of 65 conference participants dwelt in their talks on the hippies—their meaning and their likely effect on the future of the United States.

Some saw in the withdrawal of the hippies from conventional U.S. culture the first seeds of a massive revolt against a technology explosion the speakers felt threatens to strangle individuality.

Others saw in the jobless, responsibility-rejecting hippies the spectre of millions of Americans in a future where computer science will have replaced workers with machines.

That the hippies were mentioned at all at the American Institute of Planners' The Next 50 Years conference indicates the impact the movement already has had on U.S. life.

Few speakers who talked to the hippies indicated they felt the movement was anywhere near its peak.

August Heckscher, commissioner of New York City's recreation and cultural affairs administration said the hippies may "represent the beginning of a withdrawal from the values and concepts which have dominated the Western world for more than five centuries."

"They may be the beginning of an anti-technological movement which will slow down the mindless pursuit of technological change carried out for its own sake, without concern for the human values it supposedly concerns."

Carl Oglesby, a self-styled radical activist who lectures at Antioch College, also saw the hippie movement as a revolt against a civilization dominated by technology.

AVOIDS CONFORMITY

Oglesby gave this description of the average, middle-class product of the "American dream come true" that he said the hippie is determined to avoid becoming:

"He has everything the country can offer. He knows how to be educated and how to hold a professional job, how much money he will earn, what kind of house and neighborhood he can expect to live in.

"He will never be hungry or disgraced. Certain tables of social statistics even allow him to predict with impressive accuracy how long he will live, when he will suffer from his first ulcer or heart attack, and when his wife will be unfaithful to him for the first time."

Oglesby added: "In brief, his situation is desperate. He will produce the highest suicide rate the west has seen."

Harold Taylor, an educationist, philosopher and author, suggested the hippies might indicate the course of a leisure-oriented society made possible by still further technological advances. He noted the hippies have dropped out of the economic system without apparent concern for their loss of personal income and buying power.

HIPPIES UN-CANADIAN SAYS JUDY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh said Tuesday hippies have no place in Canadian culture—in fact, they're downright un-Canadian.

Miss LaMarsh, whose cabinet portfolio covers the arts and culture, said that as far as she is concerned, "one hippie is as dirty as another."

"The trouble with hippies is that they don't fit in anywhere," she said in an interview. "If you're having trouble with them in Vancouver, it matches the trouble Ottawa has had with them, and many other places.

"It is time to do something about them;" the state secretary said. "They're a curious bunch of grasshoppers who play around until they need something, and then think the world owes them a living."

Busy Month For Hospital Emergencies

More than 4,000 emergency patients received treatment from Victoria's two major hospitals during September.

Monthly statistics from St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee hospitals show that more than 500 of these were admitted to hospital for further treatment.

St. Joseph's handled 1,746 persons, compared with 1,692 the previous September and 2,035 during August. In the same period Jubilee received 2,589 emergency patients — up from the 2,347 in September, 1966 and less than the 2,749 treated during August.

Of the persons taken into St. Joseph's, 1,182 required surgery and 564 were medical cases, including 48 fractures. Some 59 of these were treated as a result of traffic accidents — two more than the previous September but 30 fewer than August.

Jubilee treated 77 persons for injuries from traffic accidents — 33 more than September, 1966, and 13 more than August.

Of the number treated at St. Joseph's 223 were admitted for further treatment in September. Jubilee admitted 300.

Cadets Presented To SFU's Shrum

Seventeen senior term cadets who have won honors for academic achievements were presented Tuesday to Dr. Gordon Shrum, chancellor of Simon Fraser University, at a honor's day ceremony at Canadian Services College, Royal Roads.

The cadets on graduation day next May, will leave Royal Roads for Royal Military College, Kingston, to continue their studies for another two years before receiving their commissions.

Dr. Shrum will be a guest of senior staff members at a mess dinner this evening.

Juvenile Delinquents Act Upheld by Court

OTTAWA (CP)—A Supreme Court of Canada decision Tuesday upheld the validity of the Juvenile Delinquents Act.

The unanimous judgment of the high court rejected arguments by attorneys-general of British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec that Parliament exceeded its powers by enacting the legislation.

The court made the decision in quashing a conviction of speeding against David Lorne Smith of Prince Rupert, B.C. In its judgment, the court said Smith at the time of his offence was a juvenile and should have appeared in a juvenile court.

Provincial attorneys-general argued that the Juvenile Delinquents Act was legislation in respect to welfare and protection of children which was a provincial responsibility.

They also argued that the act was not uniformly enforced in the provinces.

Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux, who wrote the court judgment, said Parliament under the British North America Act had the power to legislate in relation to criminal law.

This included the power to stipulate what are crimes as well as enact legislation to prevent crime.

It was the function of Parliament, and not the courts, to decide what legislation was needed for the efficient exercise of the power. Though such legislation might incidentally affect provincial legislative jurisdiction, it was not beyond Parliament's powers if the main purpose or object was legislation genuinely enacted in relation to criminal law.

Fauteux said he also agreed with the majority decision of the B.C. appeal court that the magistrate exceeded his jurisdiction in hearing the case of Smith.

Smith had been fined $400 for the offence.

Thanksgiving Horse Show Date Changed to Sunday

Thanksgiving horse show planned by Victoria Riding Academy has been changed from Monday to Sunday, it was announced today by manager Don Carley.

He said the show is attracting wide interest and he expects a big entry.

The show will start at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Cedar Hill Cross Road grounds of the academy, and will continue through the afternoon after a luncheon break.

Judge is Geroge Petty, of Vancouver, who will have 12 events to work.

They will include two equitation classes, a junior and a senior; road hack, thoroughbred under saddle, hunter hack, conformation hunter, show hack, maiden jumping class, saddle pairs, green hunter, show hunter and fault and out jumping.

Enrolment Soars at Uvic

University of Victoria's student population has climbed past 4,000 a year ahead of schedule.

Figures prepared by the registrar's office and released by president Malcolm Taylor show enrolment of full-time students in all faculties is now 4,075.

The 4,000-mark has been passed five years ahead of projection figures prepared in 1962 and is a full year ahead of predictions made this past summer.

19 PER CENT

The new enrolment total represents an increase of 19 per cent over last year's total of 3,423.

First year students number 1,555 in contrast to 1,360 a year ago.

By faculties, arts and science showed a 15 per cent increase to 2,765 with men outnumbering women two-to-one.

The ratio in sexes is reversed in the education faculty which showed a 22 per cent increase to 1,130 students.

Enrolment has doubled in the two academic wings opened a year ago with the school of fine arts going from 37 to 88 and the faculty of graduate studies from 49 to 92.

U.K. WOOING DOCTORS BACK

VANCOUVER (CP)—A British government delegation that aims to woo back British doctors who have emigrated to Canada is due here next week.

A British government information officer said Monday the six-man ministry of health party will arrive Oct. 10 for three days of interviewing British doctors who wish to return home.

The delegation will also explain opportunities available to the doctors in Britain.

Lawyer Urges End of 'Unfair' Bail

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver lawyer Tuesday said bail does not operate in a person's favor and should be abolished.

W. O. Forbes, chairman of the B.C. division of the Civil Liberties section of the Canadian Bar Association, said in many cases a person can't afford bail and the result is a long wait in jail until his case comes up again.

Mr. Forbes was speaking in a panel discussion sponsored by the University of British Columbia's extension department.

"Very often bail has to be a friend's house or cash which is impossible for some people," he said. "Many lawyers now think that the courts need not worry about accused persons coming back, even if they are released on their own signature.

"County courts have been inundated with many cases where people have jumped bail most of them involving petty cases. A great deal of legel procedure is involved in estreating bail and the amount recovered is very small."

Stuart McMorran, Vancouver city prosecutor, said recent figures indicated that while approximately $60,000 in bail was estreated by the courts in 1965, only $300 was actually recovered.

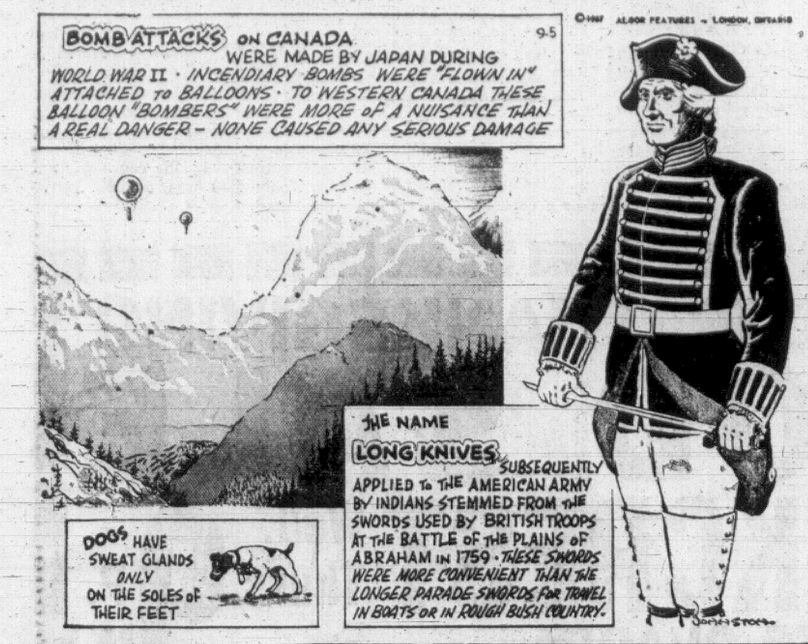
IT HAPPENED IN CANADA . . .



YOUR HEALTH

Twiggy Diet Dangerous

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Any physicain with a large practice will, in the course of years, see a number of patients—nearly always young women—who have starved themselves until they are down to about 80 pounds in weight.

Alvarez

Sometimes, perhaps, a girl became stout and when she found it hard to get a beau, she started reducing.

But when she got down to a normal weight she couldn't stop — and on down she went until she was skin and bones a

Only rarely does one see this sort of starvation in a man. I had one man, about 40, who starved himself until he died.

A while ago Mrs. E. L. Bliss and C. Hardin Branch, able psychiatrists, reported in a book a series of cases of nervous refusal to eat and said that in practically every case the person was on the edge of a psychosis.

I remember two girls whose self-starvation came with an unhappy situation if life.

One of them was a nun who very much wanted to get out of the convent. I cured her by getting the Mother Superior to let her go.

The other girl had been shut up in a lonely home with a half-crazy mother. I cured her by getting her father to set her free to go out and marry her beau.

Another girl I cured was trying to commit suicide by starvation because with her quick temper she had lost three beaus in succession.

When I talked her into giving herself another try, she called for her clothes, got up and went back to her job as a secretary. She started then to eat and to gain back her weight.

★ ★ ★

I just read a paper by Drs. O. Lundberg and J. Walinder of Sweden, who found that four out of five young women who were starving themselves had an epileptic type of electroencephalogram. Sometimes such a person can be much helped with drugs like Dilantin, Deaner or Phenobarbital.

Usually, if a physician is kind and puts one of these girls in a hopital, he can induce her to eat, and can fatten her up. Unfortunately, some of these girls will later go back to starving themselves again.

★ ★ ★

In the Journal of the American Medical Association Dr. Doris H. Milman reported the case of a five-year-old girl who, one morning, ate a sugar tablet she found in the refrigerator. Unfortunately, it belonged to her 18-year-old uncle, and had 100 micrograms of LSD in it.

Shortly after eating this, the girl began to scream, and soon she was actually psychotic.

She was in a panic and did not know where she was. She felt she had lost her personality; she was mentally slowed up, and she showed signs of injury to her brain; she had trouble with vision, and her electroencephalograms (records of the tiny electric currents which are constantly running through the brain) had become abnormal.

After some days the worst of the disturbances had quieted down, but the disorders in thinking, the distortion of the body image, and the depression of intelligence persisted for several months.

At the end of five months the only remainders were the abnormal electric records and the difficulties with sight. At the end of nine months only the visual functions remained somewhat impaired.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Paul Gilchrist, age 12, of Smith Falls, Ont., for his question.

What is an antiproton?

The proton was one of the first atomic particles to introduce itself to the world of science. It is a nucleon, one of the major particles in the nucleus of every atom. The atomic number of a chemical element is defined to be the number of protons in the nucleus of its atom. With one proton more or less an atom becomes another element. We now know of 35 other subatomic particles. But the proton remains the key particle in the structure of the atom.

And this key particle is very identifiable. As subatomic particles go, it is massive — 1,836 times more massive than an electron. It carried a positive electrical charge equal to the negative charge carried by the electron. These atomic charges have some interesting properties. The positive and negative charges attract each other, as you would expect. And positive and negative atomic particles can be swerved in opposite directions by a magnetic field.

In the 1930s physicists were probing the secrets of subatomic particles and their thoughts ran ahead of their actual discoveries. If their theories of relativity and quantum energy were correct, then there must be equal and opposite particles for all the known particles of matter. Though still undiscovered, they were named antiparticles. Some expected to find an antielectron with a positive charge and antinucleons to match the particles of the atomic nucleus.

Decays Quickly

The antiproton was predicted and named in 1932. It was not actually discovered until 1955. But when it finally introduced itself, scientists had no doubt about its identification. Its mass was equal to that of its opposite twin, the proton. When its path was observed in a cloud chamber, it was seen to swerve in the opposite direction from a proton. This and other evidence proved it to be a negatively charged proton — a proton with the charge of an electron.

Scientists also had predicted that particles and antiparticles would be natural enemies. Both are particles of matter. But on close contract, matter and antimatter destroy each other. This can be observed in a special bubble that reveals the tracks of subatomic particles. Under normal conditions a proton can expect to exist indefinitely. But when it crosses the path of an antiproton, the collision results in their mutual destruction. Bits of subatomic debris fly from the scene of the accident. Some of the debris may be neutral lambdas and antilambdas. They may form another antiproton which decays after a split second into a fireworks display of tiny pion particles.

Many antiparticles have been found, but in very small numbers. Matter seems to be made of ordinary particles with a few stray antiparticles. At least this seems true in our part of the universe. Maybe other suns and solar systems are made of antiparticles with a few stray ordinary particles. In any case, the strays do not last very long. In a universe of opposites, they soon meet one of their opposite twins. And the two annihilate each other.

★ ★ ★

Andy send a 14" World Book Globe to Roger Mills, age 9, of Hobart, Indiana, for his question:

Does a snail have teeth?

Andy suspected that the snails who chew up the greenery in his garden had the best teeth in the county. And also the best dentists. But this was not so. Snails do not have teeth like those of cats and dogs. But they have amazing tongues that can be used to saw and scrape. This is what they use to chew up and devour the tenderest leaves and the most cherished plants in the garden.

A snail's eyes are on those two horns that poke up from his head. His mouth is a tiny opening where you would expect his chin to be. Inside the mouth is a long tongue called a radula. If you use a strong magnifying glass, you see that the radula is covered with neat rows of scaly bumps. There are hundreds of them. When the snail rubs his tongue on a leaf, these rough, hard little bumps act like a saw. There are many different snails in the world and most of them dine on plant food — either living or dead plants will do. Some snails eat meat, and most of these fellows like to dine on other snails. But even a meat eating snail has a rough radula tongue instead of real teeth.

Bastion Hit by Fund Lack; Actors to Carry On Unpaid

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Lack of financial assistance has forced Bastion Theatre to give up its position as a professional Actor's Equity group, director Peter Mannering said Tuesday.

The actors' union has a minimum pay scale for all professional actors.

Local performers have agreed to give up their salaries to enable the theatre to continue its production schedule.

"There have been no cast changes and we will be able to keep up our high standards of performance," said Mr. Mannering.

COUNCIL VIEW

"The Canada Council has told us that belonging to Actor's Equity does not necessarily imply that we are professional. We have decided to forget about equity rates until we can determine what the Canada Council means by professionalism."

But Bastion will not be on a strictly amateur basis. A hard core group of 12 management-acting staff will continue to be paid though not necessarily on Equity scale.

Jean Roberts, head of the theatre arts division of the Canada Council, is coming to Victoria in mid-October to get a first hand look at Bastion.

"She is one of the top people in Canada and I think it's wonderful that the Council has finally decided to send a woman of her calibre across the country to view regional theatres," Mr. Mannering said.

One of the reasons for the refusal of the grant was apparently the judgment of people "on the spot" — though they were never identified.

"How can they possibly discount the prejudices of people in the community?" asked Mr. Mannering. "The council has no way of knowing the motives behind criticism or that these persons had any clear idea of the total concept of what we are trying to do here.

"I think we are really going to become a test case for the Canada Council on how a regional theatre ought to be set up, how it can continue on a regional basis involving the community and still qualify for national recognition as a professional theatre."

BALLADEER Woody Guthrie, 55, a folk poet who said he wrote songs to make people believe in themselves, died in New York Tuesday after an illness of 15 years. Guthrie composed more than 1,000 songs, including "This Land is Your Land" and "So Long, It's Been Good to Know You."

Suspension Upheld Of Hippie Newspaper

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council formally approved the suspension of the business licence of the hippie newspaper Georgia Straight Tuesday in a 7-3 vote after three hours of debate.

The decision upheld action taken last Thursday by city licence inspector Milt Harrell who ordered the licence suspension effective at 12:01 a.m. Saturday.

BRITISH LORD SUGGESTS:

'Man Deserves Right to Die If He Wants'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British lord Tuesday suggested that a person should have the right to die if he so wishes.

Lord Ritchie Calder, 61, said in an interview he plans to ask the House of Lords to consider this when he returns to England next week after a lecture visit to the University of British Columbia.

The proposal would follow a recent controversy touched off when a doctor in a North London hospital advised nurses "not to resuscitate" elderly heart-attack victims who suffer certain diseases.

GRAVE CHOICES

It is likely progressive legislation to deal with the subject will come from the House of Lords, he said.

"Very grave choices have to be made between the young and the old," said Lord Calder.

"It is a cruel way to put it, but who would you save—the old man who is to be kept alive because he is eminent or because there is emotion or the family does not want him to die, or the young boy whose future is immeasurable?"

Lord Calder said he would like to be able today to go to his lawyer and outline conditions under which he would not want to be kept alive—something that is illegal in England.

He emphasized he is not endorsing euthenasia—mercy killing—but rather a passive means of death.

"What I need is something which allows me to make the decision while I am in sound mind," he said.

Salt Spring Rhodonite

1,000 Trooped Last Year To Rockhounds' Paradise

By JAN GOULD

You've just come from the ferry at Fulford Harbor, you are exploring Orchard Avenue and there's all these rocks cluttering up a garage and yard.

You glance at the mailbox and wonder whether Fred Hollings is starting a collection of specialized junk.

But wait!

●

You're looking at chunks of rhodonite, enough to bring a gleam to any ardent rockhound's eyes.

Much of the rhodonite is of such prime quality that it interests dealers and rockhounds all over the world. Last year it brought 1,000 visitors to Salt Spring Island.

It comes from a quarry on Mr. Hollings' 160-acre tree farm on Musgrave Mountain and it's a costly business to bring it out.

"You do some blasting but the best stuff you have to take by hand," explained Mr. Hollings, a logger for 50 years.

●

Holes are drilled in the large pieces along fractures, plugs are driven in these drill holes to split the large rock. It's also broken down by driving steel chisels in the fractures and seams.

Mr. Hollings used to think he had chunks of coal on his property until some Fulford friends, the Art Hepburns, showed him some jewellery they had made from rocks near his land. He took samples to the department of mines and learned he had manganese ore.

●

"Then I learned that rhodonite is a silicate of manganese — I knew nothing about minerals when I started. I thought the people who came to buy pieces of rhodonite were enjoying a fad. Now I can't meet all the orders which come mostly from the U.S. and Canada and some from Germany."

Prices vary. Rough, uncut rhodonite is 35 cents a pound and up but it's sold in slabs too. It's a matter of quality. Serious collectors want the pure, deep pink rhodonite. Others, interested in making jewellery, like the black, yellow or brown tints.

●

"Stuff I originally threw away because I didn't think anyone would want it," Mr. Hollings said.

He has a rocksaw with a diamond blade to cut the blocks. Rhodonite is fairly hard; small chips take some five or six weeks of tumbling before they're polished.

Mr. Hollings and his wife now have a collection of other minerals and gems. A chunk of argillite, agates, some deep mauve crystals of amethyst, slabs of Mexican honey onyx — you name it.

"Rockhounds seem to like to trade and swap," he said to explain his collection.

●

He swung some string ties decorated with attractive Mexican Crazy Lace and then a disc of petrified oak.

"I'm getting so many of these I don't know what to do. My wife says they don't match my hat, my shoes or my shirt."

Eventually, Mr. Hollings wants to display a selection of rhodonite and other minerals from his Salt Spring Island mine with the swap-and-trade minerals and gems he has collected. He'll build a special shed on his Orchard Avenue property.

He's not so serious about his hobby that he can resist a joke.

●

Recently, some earnest rockhounds dutifully admired a huge slab of deep pink rhodonite and then were shown four pink crystals. In all their travels, none of them had seen crystals like that. Positive identification proved negative.

They're still wondering what those rare crystals are. Mr. Hollings found them in his kitchen and sneaked them into the garage which houses much of his rhodonite.

They're four crystals from the sugar in some jam his wife made.

Councils Asked to Pay For Pioneer Park Plan

DUNCAN—North Cowichan and Duncan councils will be asked to pay $5,000 for a detailed plan on recreational development at Pioneer Park.

The joint recreation commissions meeting Tuesday evening passed the resolution after hearing from planning consultant John Sanderson.

Previously a critic of the idea, Coun. Gerry Smith proposed the hiring of A. B. Sanderson Ltd. to produce the plan.

Mr. Sanderson said first step would be site-mapping, then physical examination of the existing fields and buildings to estimate their useful life.

Thirdly, he would recommend what future facilities should be considered, plan the location of each, and suggest timing and priority.

END OF YEAR

North Cowichan and Duncan councils will be asked to approve and pay for this report which could be ready by the end of the year.

Long discussion of an area swimming pool which may be the first new project in the park showed Ald. Martin Lukaitis strongly in favor of it being financed by a regional district.

Councillors Smith and Dennis Hogan preferred fast action by Duncan and North Cowichan.

Reeve Donald Morton said the old curling rink should be included in the survey so that the value of the equipment and life expectancy of the building could be given by an unbiased assessor.

Ald. Lukaitis suggested much more liaison with school boards.

"School board thinking has changed and carpeted floors and television are no longer considered frills.

"Possibly a swimming pool could be a shared cost between the municipalities and the school board."

Commissioner Norman Bevan supported by Commissioner Ronald Price won approval for a resolution asking Duncan and North Cowichan to jointly hire a recreation director next year.

Mr. Bevan said this should be in addition to the manager being hired by the north end of the municipality to look after the new Fullers Lake arena.

2 KILLED IN MISHAPS

Industrial accidents have killed two men — one at Nanaimo and the other at Texada Island.

Gary Charles Patton, 22, was killed Monday when he fell 200 feet down an ore chute at Texada Mine.

Leslie Arnold Mason, 31, of 950 Cadogan, Nanaimo, was crushed to death in an accident at Harmac mill Tuesday.

Patton was working on an air-operated door at the head of the ore chure. Two other men were also working nearby but neither saw the accident.

Patton was married and the father of a six-months-old child.

Mason's job was to straighten lumber on a conveyor. He was caught by the moving wood and pinned aginst a guard rail.

REGIONAL MEETING OCT. 18

DUNCAN — Inaugural meeting of the regional district board for the Cowichan Valley will be held here Oct. 12.

Copies of the letters patent incorporating the regional district and the Cowichan Valley Hospital regional district have been sent to Duncan city clerk Gordon Berry.

Mr. Berry is interim clerk of the new board.

Director of fianance and statistics for the department of municipal affairs W. Kent Smith plans to attend the meeting at city hall.

Ald. James Saunders is the city appointee to the board and Herb Halliday will represent the village of Lake Cowichan.

Interim directors from the unorganized areas are Frank Martin, Shawnigan Lake; Steve Dougan, Cherry Point; John Bateson, Cobble Hill; Glen Spinks, Cowichan Bay; H. J Wilkinson, Cobble Hill; Allan Anderson, Lake Cowichan; John Dobell, Saltair; Alex Smith, North Oyster; and James A. Hunt, Lake Cowichan.

Vote Sought Nov. 4 On Expansion

DUNCAN — Residents of the unorganized territory immediately south of Duncan may vote Nov. 4 on whether they want to join the city.

City clerk Gordon Berry said Tuesday application has been made to Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell to approve a vote on that date.

Mr. Berry said it is not yet clear if only owner electors will vote or whether tenant and resident-electors will have a franchise.

Duncan's plan is to extend the city boundaries south to Bench Road and to take in part of Cowichan Bay, all of Koksilah and Eagle Heights subdivision.

Chief idea of Mayor Jack Dobson is to give Duncan an access to the sea.

Nanaimo Man Fined After Taking Shack

NANAIMO (CP) — Wulliam Pridge, 39, was fined $50 in magistrate's court Monday when he pleaded guilty to having a stolen powder shack in his possession.

He said he thought the shack had been abandoned in explaining why he took the structure from a mine site.

Speed Blamed In Death

COURTENAY—Excessive speed and lack of caution by a motorcyclist were blamed by a coroner's jury Tuesday for the death of his passenger.

Daniel Parkin, 20, of Courtenay, was the primary cause of the accident which killed Reinhart Schnurch, 18, the jury ruled.

Schnurch was thrown 40 feet when the bike ran into the rear of a pickup truck on Island Highway Aug. 15.

The jury also said the truck driver, Ronald Williams, 17, contributed to the accident by failing to signal he was going to turn, and by taking too long to make the turn.

TALKS NEXT WITH CPR

Coronation Crossing Set

DUNCAN — City council meeting in camera Monday night decided the third crossing of the railway tracks here should be at Coronation Avenue.

The decision paves the way for negotiation between council and Marathon Realty (for the CPR) for removal of tracks.

City clerk Gordon Berry said, "the price we will pay CPR is a matter for negotiation."

The taking out of five tracks from Station Street north to James Street will provide Duncan with land for parking purposes.

Only one track will remain — the one which skirts Duncan Street.

Once negotiations are complete, city council has a long-term plan to widen Ingram Street through to an intersection with Government Street and Cowichan Lake Road.

STRACHAN:

'Start Study Now' On Island College

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said today the provincial government should immediately begin a study to see if it is economically feasible to build an up-Island regional college.

He was commenting on Education Minister Peterson's statement that a regional college based on the participation of six, instead of all nine up-Island school districts may not be an ecomomic proposition.

'MORE THAN WONDER'

Mr. Strachan said, "He'll have to do more than just wonder if it is feasible. We will wait and see if he comes up with some statistics on the matter."

"I would expect him to get a study initiated right away and not waste any time."

Weldon Jubenville, president of Duncan local of the IWA, said Mr. Peterson "should realize six out of nine school districts want a college.

"He simply cannot disregard the large number of people who desire a regional college."

And the failure of three districts to approve the college idea should not affect the building of the college, according to Dr. Neil Dorning, chairman of Cowichan school board.

SMALLER COLLEGE

He said the answer might be to build a smaller college than originally considered.

But he was not optimistic that the issue would be resolved quickly.

"The college will probably proceed with typical government speed and it is more than likely they will take two years to have a referendum" (to approve the money-bylaw for college construction.)

Rescue of Survey Vessel Richardson Highlights Camsell's 91 Days at Sea

By TED GASKELL

The Camsell is back in port after being away just 91 days, to the minute.

At 10.05 July 5, she pulled away from the dock in Victoria and on Tuesday, 12,520 miles later, at 10:05 a.m., Captain John A. Strand rang off the engines.

For the crew of 50 it was a pretty memorable three months.

One thing they'll remember is the rescue of the ice-bound hydrographic survey vessel the Richardson in Alaska waters, and how the men from the Camsell changed her damaged propeller in only 90 minutes.

That doesn't sound like the most pleasant job in the world with cold winds and icy waters but work was made as comfortable as possible by using the Camsell's boom to lift the Richardson's stern out of the water.

It was July 22 when the Camsell's radio operator picked up the "Mayday" signal from the Richardson, locked in ice 250 miles away near Point Barrow.

The Camsell backtracked and two days later was within five miles of the ice-bound ship.

For the next 24 hours the Camsell struggled through thick ice, as did the U.S. Coast Guard ship the Northwind which had also picked up her distress signal.

Eventually the Camsell broke through and put a tow on the Richardson.

Again the ice piled up with pressure due to wind and the Northwind came to the rescue and the three ships in line astern, joined by tows, forced their way to open water. July 31 they parted company.

Out of the 91 days at sea, the crew only enjoyed "leave" for five days, and that means being at anchor while waiting for ships to unload.

There are no towns, no villages in that area and going ashore means trying a bit of fresh water fishing if there's a stream handy.

The crew's only contact with people is when the Eskimos come aboard to see a movie or when the men go ashore to phone home from any nearby department of transport office.

For the most part its pretty tedious work, breaking trail for the Dew Line supply ships.

There are better times ahead.

October 16, when the crews' two weeks leave is over, the Camsell will join the rest of the DoT fleet working local waters and making two-week trips with supplies to lighthouses and lightships.

Labor Party Repudiates Wilson's Vietnam Policy

Break With U.S. Backed in Vote

SCARBOROUGH, England (CP) — The ruling Labor Party today over-rode its leaders and called on the British government to dissociate itself from American policy in Vietnam.

In a startling defeat for Prime Minister Wilson and Foreign Secretary George Brown, the annual party conference gave a left-wing resolution a slim majority of 119,000 votes out of a total vote of more than 5,000,000.

The resolution, passed by 2,752,000 to 2,633,000, also urged the government to try to persuade President Johnson to stop bombing North Vietnam "immediately, permanently and unconditionally."

The vote is not binding on the government.

Delegates to the convention have blocks of votes. For example the delegates of labor unions can cast votes of the unions' entire memberships. This accounts for the high numbers of votes, although only 6,000 delegates are at the convention.

REBUFF FOR BROWN

The vote was seen as a major personal setback for Brown, who had vigorously defended the government's pro-American policy.

Reports before the voting indicated Brown, already under fire in the press for his personal conduct at a party Monday night, might offer to resign if the Labor leadership was defeated on Vietnam.

But there was no immediate indication whether he would do so.

He told delegates today he did not think there would be any value in condemning one side in Vietnam and not the other. He indicated any such move would only lessen British influence in Washington—where he talked with Johnson last week.

Angry shouts rose from the delegates when Brown said he was ready to reconvene the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina but that Russia, co-chairman with Britain of the conference, would not agree.

Brown blamed North Vietnam for failing to respond to repeated U.S. offers of negotiations, never after five separate bombing pauses.

To jeering hecklers Brown cried angrily:

"Ask the Russian co-chairman to reconvene the Geneva conference as I am ready to do.

On Vietnam the convention voted that the government should:

1. "Dissociate completely from the policy of the U.S. government in Vietnam."

2. Seek with other countries to persuade the Americans to quit bombing North Vietnam "immediately, permanently and unconditionally."

3. Aim at a settlement based on the 1954 Geneva accords which envisaged withdrawal of all foreign troops from a Vietnam reunited under a freely-elected government.

The convention also voted 3,-

DANIEL JOHNSON
. . . in Hawaii

JOHNSON:

No 'Wall' Wanted In Quebec

MONTREAL (CP)—La Presse, in a copyright story from Hawaii, quotes Premier Daniel Johnson as saying his Union Nationale government in Quebec has promised consistently "to work to obtain a new Canadian constitution made in Canada, by Canadians and for Canadians."

The newspaper's reporter, Martin Pronovost, located Mr. Johnson on "one of the Hawaiian islands" where he is recuperating from a bout of phlebitis and obtained a prepared statement from him.

The statement was issued in reply to a request for comment on the current debate in Canada on the possibility of Quebec becoming an independent state.

La Presse quotes him as saying that the "Union Nationale did not receive a mandate to build a Great Wall of China around Quebec" when it was elected to power. His statement added:

"We promised the people to exercise the rights recognized in the British North America Act and to put them to work to obtain a new Canadian constitution, made in Canada, by Canadians and for Canadians, by virtue of which every citizen, French-speaking or English-speaking, regardless of ethnic origin, would feel at home everywhere in Canada.

"This is the mandate that we

OTTAWA CONFERENCE ON HOUSING CALLED

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Invitations will go out in a few weeks from Labor Minister Nicholson to the provincial governments inviting them to a federal-provincial conference on housing, scheduled for the first week in December.

The minister was authorized to send out the invitations by a cabinet decision, it was learned today. He reports to Parliament for the Central Mortgage & Housing Corporation.

The decision was to summon the conference on housing and urban problems as soon as the current elections in three provinces are completed.

GRITS WIN VOTE

Absent 'Troops' Wreck Tories' Housing Attack

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Absenteeism was the undoing Tuesday night of the Opposition's determined drive to rock the government and shake it to its foundations — perhaps even toppling it.

The combined opposition looked "woefully weak" in its challenge of the Liberal minority government's right to stay in office, Conservative MPs conceded here today.

The Conservative caucus and New Democratic Party members were disturbed over the large number of absentee members when the vote was called Tuesday night. On paper the combined opposition has 130 members and the minority government has 130 members plus Mr. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

But when the opposition voted on its first motion of non-confidence in the administration Tuesday night, since the summer recess, it was only able to muster 98. The Liberal government was supported by 112 members.

Conservative MPs today were ruefully shaking their heads and agreeing that the new image of a "bold determined, aggressive opposition" under the new Conservative leader Robert Stanfield, has been "badly tarnished."

'Where Were They at Charge?'

As one unhappy Conservative put it today "Where were the troops when the charge was sounded?"

The Tories only were able to rally 71 of their 93 members to press home the attack on the administration. They were backed by 14 New Democrats. The NDP party has 22 members; its percentage of absenteeism was the greatest. Seven Creditistes also voted against the government along with two Social Credit members, three Independents and Steven Otto, the Liberal from York East who dislikes the government's housing policies. He broke ranks.

Even without Mr. Otto the Liberals had 110 of their 130 members in the House for the crucial vote. Some Grits had been arguing earlier in the day that it might be a good thing for the government if it was defeated and a general election precipitated by the opposition.

They contended that under such circumstances, Prime Minister L. B. Pearson leading the united Liberal forces into a quick fall election campaign would catch the Conservative and NDP groups off-balance and win easily. But their arguments did not carry the day—the government was determined to

GREAT THROW from Boston leftfielder Carl Yastrezemski to catcher Russ Gibson caught Julian Javier of St. Louis trying to score from second on Lou Brock single in fourth inning. Brock had record-tying four straight singles to lead Cardinals to 2-1 victory in opening game of world series.

IWA Strikes 44 Operations In Interior

VANCOUVER (CP) — Strike action at lumber operations throughout the southern British Columbia interior was endorsed today by the International Woodworkers of America.

Jack Moore, regional IWA president, said employees at "just about all" of the 44 operations where workers previously had voted to strike, now have walked off the job.

He said about 500 struck Tuesday night and another 2,500 today.

A meeting had been planned for later today to set a strike date.

Mr. Moore said the 1,500 IWA members who voted to strike at five northern operations remained on the job. He said strike action in the north has

Cardinals Win Series Opener

BOSTON (AP) — Lou Brock, the St. Louis Cardinals' speedy bullet, stroked a record-tying four hits, stole two bases and scored both runs in a 2-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox in today's opening world series game, while Bob Gibson struck out 10 in pitching a six-hitter.

Jose Santiago, first Latin American to pitch a series opener, walked on water for seven innings while the Cards banged out 10 hits and left eight on base.

Santiago did his best to win it alone with a 360-foot home run into the screen atop the left field wall at Fenway Park in the third inning.

Brock's fourth single, opening the seventh, finally started the National League champs on the way to the tie-breaking run.

The lithe outfielder, who led the league with 52 stolen bases, just barely beat Russ Gibsons's throw into second for a stolen base on Jose's first pitch to Curt Flood.

When Flood grounded out to first baseman George Scott, Brock sped to third. Roger Maris, the ex-New York Yankee who had driven in the first run with an infield out, did it again when he rapped sharply at second baseman Jerry Adair. Adair came up with the ball, looked at Brock nearing home plate and threw out Maris.

It was the same combination that produced the first Cardinal run in the third when Brock lined up his second single to centre, romped to third on Flood's double to the left field corner and scored when Maris bounced out to first baseman Scott.

Gibson, out of action with a broken right leg from July 15 to Sept. 6, came through with another gilt-edged performance as he had done in earning the star role in 1964 against the Yankees.

ELWORTHY

Elworthy Interim Bank President

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harold Elworthy of Victoria today was elected temporary president of the Bank of British Columbia, replacing Frank Trebell of Vancouver, whose resignation became effective Sept. 1.

Mr. Elworthy, one of the original provisional directors of the bank, will hold the office pending appointment of a permanent president.

A spokesman for the bank said applications are being taken for the position of the bank's chief executive officer.

Mr. Elworthy is chairman of the board of Island Tug and Barge Ltd., a director of Imperial Inn Ltd. and a member of the Victoria Advisory Board of the Royal Trust Co.

Mr. Elworthy said his appointment is effective immediately and will mean spending half his time in Vancouver. He did not know how long the interim would be.

Most of his energies will be devoted to final organization of the bank, enabling it to open for business early in the new year.

Rebel Capital Falls To Nigerian Troops

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI) — The Nigerian government said today its troops had captured Enugu, the stronghold capital of the eastern region which seceded and formed the "Republic of Biafra."

Fall of the city was announced by Radio Nigeria.

Enugu had been the target of a week long three-pronged advance by federal forces attempting to break the secessionist movement in which Lt. Col. Odumegwu Ojuku proclaimed independence for the region.

Sharp to Give Us Choice: Cut Back, or Hike Taxes

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Sharp in a major speech today was to lay it on the line for Canadians — either they go along with a billion-dollar cut in government spending or face a tax boost.

He will speak on the resumed debate on the budget. He will set out the government's financial policies and call for the support of the taxpayers.

There is mounting concern in Ottawa about the state of the economy.

The impact of the Vietnam war in the United States and the reluctance of the American administration to raise taxes to meet the costs of the war is having its fallout in Canada.

There are consequent higher costs and rising interest rates in Canada, forcing the government to cut back on spending.

The cabinet earlier this year agreed on a half-billion-dollar cut in government spending for the 1968-69 fiscal period. Involved are reductions in most departmental estimates for spending in the coming fiscal year.

This has led to the freezing of extra funds for housing, delays in CBC capital projects and a hold-up in the proposed $100 million Canadian equivalent of the American "pentagon".

The cutbacks however, while extensive, were not large enough. The reduced expenditures were expected to cut the anticipated deficit for 1968-69 from $1.25 billion to $750 million. More cuts will be needed.

But while spending is to be slashed, the proposed medicare program scheduled to start July 1, 1968, has not been touched, it is understood. Its start remains a decision for the provinces. The enabling legislation has been passed.

It now is up to the various provinces to announce whether they will agree to participate starting July 1, next year.

Jury Finds Neglect In Rectory Death

TORONTO (UPI) — A coroner's inquest jury declared today that it found "neglect" on the part of Canon G. Moore-Smith and his wife Violet in the death of 18-year-old Katherine Globe.

The jury recommended "further investigation" into the actions of the Smiths, and of assistant rector Rev. Douglas Tinsdall, as well as the activites of a faith-healing cult at St. Matthias Anglican Church and one of the cut's leading members, Mrs. Marjorie Rogers.

Gerald Soloway, an attorney for Canon Smith, said following the verdict that he did not expect any charges to be laid, since presiding coroner Dr. H. B. Cotnam had noted in summary remarks a lack of "intent" to do harm on the part of the Anglican rector.

Ontario supervising Coroner Dr. Cutnam had no immediate comment.

COSMONAUT MAKES HINT DURING SPUTNIK CELEBRATIONS

Orbiting Space Platform Next Feat for Russians?

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A Russian cosmonaut hinted strongly today that his country's next major space feat will be the launching of an orbiting space platform—a floating laboratory high above the earth.

Konstantin Foektistov, a member of the three-man crew of the Voskhod spaceship sent up in October, 1964, said in a newspaper article here that space stations now are in the realm o. possibility.

But he indicated a human landing on the moon still is five to 10 years away.

Feoktistov was one of many Soviet cosmonauts and scientists who today filled the pages of newspapers with articles commemorating the 10th anniversary of the first Sputnik.

The articles contained predictions about the future direction of Soviet space exploration, as well as assessments of the first 10 years

Feoktistov, in an article on the front page of the Young Communist League newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda, said construction of a space station is no longer a matter of new scientific discoveries, but of putting together various existing engineering achievements.

Feoktistov said a space station could be made of either metal or spun plastic, sprayed into the proper shape and allowed to harden.

Feoktistov said linkups could be done automatically, without human hands at the controls. A recent series of Cosmos satellites, all launched into closely similar orbits, may be part of such an attempt.

A space station, Feoktistov said, could be given artificial gravity by having it rotate around its axis. But he predicted the first platforms would have no gravity and their inhabitants would have to get used to weightlessness, he added.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1967--PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

On Tuesday I started to tell you about our beach book, which we set out as a passport for young ones who wished to go through our property to the cove below. We had bargained on perhaps half a dozen signers-in a day; but before summer vacation was far advanced, the names under each date were overflowing on to the next page.

The invasion would begin soon after daybreak with a clatter of bikes out back as the early-bird fishermen arrived. It peaked just past noon and tapered off with dusk when a somewhat elastic curfew went into effect.

One shimmering Sunday, the beach book registered 60 signatures.

Nor, once arrived at the beach did the kids necessarily stay there. We realized early in the game that we had been dragooned into the unsought role of playground supervisors, arbiters, and parent substitutes for the younger children.

Here's Joe, who yesterday let the air out of Bill's tires, beating on the screen door. He is bug-eyed and sputtering with righteous indignation:

"Oh boy . . . that rat Bill! What he did to my bike! Please can I borrow your tire pump?"

★

Between May and late September, Win applied at least 100 band-aids, dispensed countless tissues and drinks of water, mopped up tears, and laid down the law when necessary. We also operated a paging service for parents in search of their young, admired captured rock cod on demand, and supplied plastic bags in which to lug them home.

From the approximate 200 boys and girls who inscribed those 1,200 signatures in the beach book, we also got some new slants on child motivation and behavior.

As I pointed out earlier, we had laid down such rules as we felt were necessary. The signing in was one. We reserved the right to know who came and went on our property; and this, with only the occasional token argument or mischievous attempt to beat the system, the kids readily accepted.

Then one evening we looked at the day's page and discovered that something new had been added.

One of the boys, not content with merely signing, had marked his departure by placing a tick after his name. Several others had followed his example.

This checking out as well as in was an expansion we had never suggested or, indeed, so much as thought of. Amused and puzzled, we later saw that a number of our juvenile passers-through were also noting their check-out times . . . usually after peeking through the kitchen window at the wall clock.

★

Why this voluntary stiffening of requirements? All we got for our questions were shrugs and slightly embarrassed grins.

A hangover from school regimentation, perhaps; but we have wondered since if the young boy and girl is actually happier with reasonable guidelines and directives, and feels the lack when they are not applied.

Rough stuff? Theft? Vandalism?

Well, leaving litter-bugging out of the picture, the score when we took the beach book in consisted of one slashed bike tire and one broken bench, neither the work of the kids we came to regard as our 'regulars'.

It was quite a summer, rugged at times but rewarding, and even though we've taken the beach book in, now, we still get the occasional wave and grin from one of 'our' kids as we drive on our errands in October's rainy weather.

A final note before I return the battered orange-covered scribbler to its drawer.

Across the blank space under the last name, some young hand has scribbled a message that makes all the bother worthwhile.

It reads, "Thanks for everything."

Doctor Ban To Continue Says Haddock

The chairman of Royal Jubilee Hospital says the appointment of doctors to the hospital board is still a question for the future.

"I don't think the government is ready yet to change (the hospital's private act). The minister isn't opposed to it. But the matter is still under study," said J. Courtney Haddock.

He was referring to unofficial reports from the annual meeting of B.C. Hospitals' Association currently underway at Penticton.

The question of medical representation with voting rights on the board has caused inflamed discussion at the last two annual meetings of the hospital association.

NEVER OPPOSED

The board was blamed by some doctors for procrastinating on the issue, but Mr. Haddock said the board never opposed permitting doctors to serve as full board members.

Former health minister Eric Martin was thought to have opposed the step. The present health minister, W. D. Black does not.

Charges were heard at hospital annual meetings suggesting that doctors on a board might be in a position to gain from publicity or engage in empire building.

Dr. Scott Wallace led the fight for doctor representation, claiming that such charges were baseless.

He was incensed because he felt the present regulation against doctors and clergymen serving on the board was discrimination which abrograted their rights as citizens.

NOT INVOLVED

Mr. Haddock said it all boils down to a dispute between the medical fraternity and the government and the board has no involvement.

The hospital annual meeting asked the board to urge the government to relax the rules and the request had been made.

Mr. Haddock doubted that a busy doctor could spare the time required of board members.

Mr. Haddock also commented on a BCHA convention proposal by W. A. Street, past chairman of Vancouver General Hospital.

Mr. Street urged that all hospital board meetings be open to the public.

HARMFUL

At present all but annual meetings are closed and even minutes of board meetings are restricted from view by hospital association members in most hospitals.

Mr. Haddock said he thought open discussion at board meetings could be harmful to patients. Of necessity, discussions are forthright and life and death is discussed in a statistical manner which could upset sick people.

"It could do a great amount of harm," he added.

Chief Scout Loses His Hat, Wins Host Of New Friends

By ALAN WHITE

A dinner of moose soup, elk, venison and salmon greeted Commonwealth Chief Scout Sir Charles McLean when he arrived in Victoria Tuesday night to begin a five-week Canadian tour.

A two-hour delay in Sir Charles' flight from Vancouver held the dinner up but failed to dampen the chief Scout's spirits. He smiled broadly as he was piped into the den of the Fairfield Rover Crew, below the Gonzales Observatory.

There the kilted chief Scout was met by members of the Rover crews and Scout leaders of the Greater Victoria area.

The meal of wild game was prepared by members of the crew and carried from there homes to the den, an old wartime radio shack. Membes of the seventh and eighth Fort Victoria Scout troops acted as waiters.

After meeting the Rovers and leaders, Sir Charles studied the various trophies amassed by the crew over the years, including Scout and national flags and a massive moose head used as a hat rack.

ANOTHER HAT

Crew members had prepared for an addition to their hat collection — they discreetly placed Sir Charles' hat in a special showcase and hung it on the wall.

They had a replacement for him — a Mounted Police stetson obtained from the RCMP by special permission from Ottawa headquarters.

This switching of hats is a tradition with the crew which began when they obtained one from former Chief Scout Lord Rowallan on his 1958 visit to the den.

Sir Charles flew directly from London, England, for his visit and will have a busy round of activities before he returns Thursday afternoon.

Today he had an afternoon fishing trip and at the Bay St. Armoury at 7:30 p.m. a rally of 4,000 Greater Victoria Cubs and Scouts is scheduled. The rally will be followed by a reception at the Canadian Scottish Officers Mess for 400 adult Scout leaders.

SOLARIUM VISIT

On Thursday morning he will visit the Solarium Cub pack and then tour city hall. Following a luncheon hosted by the Saltire Society at Holyrood House Sir Charles will depart by plane for Vancouver.

Born at London, England, in 1916, Sir Charles first became associated with the Scout movement as a Wolf Cub in London in 1924. He was elected a member of the council of the Boy Scouts Association in 1953. He succeeded Lord Rowallan as Chief Scout of the Commonwealth in 1959.

Man Jailed 20 Months For Fraud

Tim Glover, 24, was sentenced to 20 months when he appeared in magistrate's court today after pleading guilty to 14 offences.

He had earlier pleaded guilty to 10 charges of obtaining food and lodgings by fraud and three charges of forgery.

The offences took place in Victoria, Prince George and Terrace over the summer.

Today he pleaded guilty to a fourth charge of forgery. Police reported on Aug. 18 he cashed a forged cheque in Vanderhoof.

The accused read a long statement to the court in which he said his activities were the product of "rational ambition."

OBSESSED

Magistrate Ostler told Glover "you became so obsessed with ambition you stopped at nothing.

"You looked upon this as a calculated risk and now see it as something that didn't work out.

"But had you secceeded, you never could have wiped out this record."

The magistrate said he would not send the accused to the penitentiary because of his past good record, but he warned "if you continue this conduct, you may find yourself there."

The sentence will be served at Oakalla Prison Farm in Burnaby.

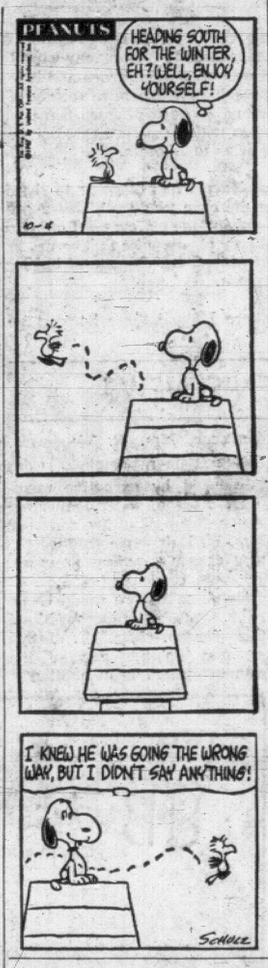
Youngster Fair After Car Mishap

A three-year-old girl was hit by a car when she wandered on to Fernwood Road Tuesday afternoon.

Theresa Garcia, 2533 Fernwood, was struck by a southbound car driven by Oliver Brunner, 2829-B Cedar Hill Road, city police said.

Her condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital is fair. She is suffering from possible concusion.

Police said no charges will be laid.



'Bring Back the Bobbies, Smarten Up Liquor Clerks'

Bringing the "bobbie" uniform back to Victoria police is one of six suggestions made by a Vancouver hotel operator to promote tourists in B.C.

"Visitors want to go where the action is," said William B. Pattison, president of Delta Properties Ltd., addressing the Provincial Tourist Advisory Counicl at a Prince George conference Tuesday.

In the winter, tourist promoters could take a leaf from Swinging London with its backdrop of rain and smog, he said.

Listing six "simple things" that could be done, he suggested:

Reinstatement of bobbie uniforms for Victoria police;

Knowledgeable liquor store attendants who care;

A reasonably proud pier for visiting P&O liners;

Customs officials who appear to be glad to see visitors;

A free port in British Columbia;

Lakes set aside for fly fishermen only, with gang trolls and motor boats prohibited.

'UNDERNOURISHED'

After a world-girdling junket, Mr. Pattison was able to compare B.C. tourist promotion to "an undernourished goose that is laying golden eggs."

The province can no longer rely on scenic attractions alone to bring visitors, he said.

Places with comparable scenery, such as New Zealand, Japan, India and Bolivia are becoming more accessible to tourists for as little as one cent a mile via jumbo jets.

COMPETITIVE

The world is a competitive market place for tourists.

"The day when Grey Owl was our best tourist ambassador is gone forever," Mr. Pattison said.

The department of travel industry sponsors two conferences per year to help business, community and government representatives exchange ideas.

Reacting to the suggestion of bobbie-type uniforms, Victoria deputy police chief Ray Maitland felt the idea had some merit as a tourist attraction, but he pointed to specific disadvantages.

"I don't think it should be foisted on the men. They shoud have a say in it and the police union has gone against it each time it has come up."

He said the police commission has not wished to force the uniform on policemen, and pointed out there would be "terrific cost" to fitting the men out.

The deputy said the bobbie uniform, with its choker collar is uncomfortable, especially in hot weather.

The traditional helmet is too high to be worn in patrol cars and would lie on the seat most of the time, he said.

Victoria police "fight the same kind of crime found across Canada and the present uniform is an acceptable one used universally across the country," the deputy noted.

Man Fined $100 For Shoplifting

Joseph Heral, 52, of 123 Bushby Street, today was fined $100 in magistrate's court for shoplifting.

Court was told Heral took three can openers from the Hudson's Bay Co. Tuesday. He was carrying $96 at the time.

Heral pleaded guilty.

City Mill Struck By IWA

'Conditions Unbearable' Says Picket's Placard

A sudden walkout this morning halted operations at the B.C. Forest Products plywood mill on Gorge Road.

The company, in a statement, called the walkout illegal and "wholly unjustified."

Outside the main gate, a picket carried a sign reading: "Working conditions unbearable in this plant."

He declined any elaboration except to say "it is something that's been brewing for a long time."

There was no word from the International Woodworkers of America, the union which represents the 400 mill workers.

Mill manager T. D. R. Humphreys said the work stoppage "is an illegal strike in direct contravention of both the Labour Relations Act and the master agreement. It is not only illegal but wholly unjustified. There has been no suggestion at any time that the company has breached the collective agreement in any way.

"The company has been seeking to achieve reasonable levels of efficiency in the operation in accordance with their right to do so, as provided by the master agreement.

400 AFFECTED

"The illegal strike, which will affect some 400 men, is evidently an attempt by union officials to interfere with the proper exercise of those rights.

"There are orderly procedures in the agreement for resolving legitimate grievance without the need for costly work stoppages and these procedures should be used.

"It is particularly regrettable coming at a time when the spokesmen from both labor and management have called for higher levels of responsibility in living up to the obligations of collective agreements."

Two weeks ago, the Victoria Labour Council was told that the plywood mill has hired efficiency experts and the move was "creating quite a havoc."

Union president Murray Drew said then "they are doing away with jobs and piling the rest. The crew in that operation has decided to ban overtime."

He said the efficiency experts "sneak around log piles and at the end of the day make a report on the employee."

Ma'ah Still Stirring Up Local Waters

Ma'ah, the 35-foot California grey whale, is still here.

Since Provincial Museum director Dr. Clifford Carl requested information on his movements and whereabouts, he has been spotted off Shoal Bay, Trial Island and around the Gulf Islands.

Lieut. Cmdr. A. E. Shirley, 1416 Beatty, reported the big mammal having a rollicking time in a kelp bed off the south end of Discovery Island.

Major Cuthbert Holmes spotted him from his 677 Beach Drive home.

RARE ONE

Dr. Carl is keeping a tab on Ma'ah because he is a rare specie and has never before been seen here.

The whale, protected by law, was first identified early in September near Smuggler's Cove but his disappearance Saturday concerned biologists who are studying his habits.

Ma'ah is the Indian name for the grey whale—once common off the Pacific Coast but nearly exterminated by hunters at the turn of the century.

$400 Fine Imposed On Impaired Driver

A Port Alberni man was fined $400 in magistrate's court today for impaired driving.

Dennis Hill, 27, was charged after police observed him driving erratically east on Bay Street early this morning.

OAK BAY DETAILS PROGRAM

$130,000 in Winter Works

Oak Bay public works department is preparing a $130,000 winter program which should bring in $13,200 in federal winter work aid.

The total is only $4,000 short of last winter's costs but then winter work money was available for a six-month period and this winter the grant period ends a month earlier on March 31.

The federal government pays 50 per cent of payroll costs for all extra help hired and the provincial government will provide 25 per cent of payroll costs of employing of people on welfare.

SMALLER GRANT

"We don't seem to have employable men on welfare in Oak Bay," said G. O. White, municipal engineer. "Consequently we don't get provincial aid and the grant portion of the labor costs is small."

Biggest item on the Oak Bay program is a $100,000 improvement to Windsor Road which includes surfacing and curbing. But only about two-thirds of this work can be done within the winter work period and the anticipated grant is $6,000.

The work covers about three-quarters of a mile from Victoria to Beach Drive.

SPRINKLERS

The department will spend $20,000 of municipal money and $3,000 from Ottawa to put in a boulevard sprinkler system on parts of St. David, St. Patrick and Monterey, south of Oak Bay Avenue.

Waterworks will take $24,000 for replacement of mains on McLaren, Uplands Road to the pumphouse, Bartlett and Lafayette and new mains on Dorset to improve pressure in that area.

Sewer work will cost $11,400 with $1,400 expected in grants. Storm sewers on Windsor will cost $4,400 with another $5,000 going for manholes. The Somass line will be replaced at a cost of $2,000.

Work on these projects will start sometime after Nov. 1.

OAK BAY FIREMEN lift Barry Goult, 64, of 3961 Smuggler's Cove, to a stretcher after an accident at Monterey and Windsor in heavy rain at 5 p.m. Tuesday. Goult was rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital with head lacerations and possible concussion. His car collided with the Hydro bus in the background and then hit the tree. The bus also struck a parked car. Goult is in good condition in hospital. (Robin Clarke photo.)

Drivers Suffer Head Injuries

Saanich police were called to Grange Road early Tuesday evening by a resident who reported a car had rolled into her yard.

Police found a car and a truck attempting to avoid colliding skidded off the road in opposite directions.

Drivers Spooran Dhanowa, 970 Market, and Alexander McDonald, 1071 Trans-Canada Highway, were both taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with head injuries. Ther condition is fairly good today.

Ask The Times

Q. What purpose is served by the two flashing lights in the box on a power pole at Blanshard and Johnson Street?

C.S.B.

A. They are signal lights for the fire department's benefit. The route to Victoria West or the industrial reserve is down Johnson Street and when these lights are flashing the crews know that the Johnson Street Bridge is up and the alternative Bay Street route is used.

Q. Is there an International Friendship Club and if so where can I get information on it? M.B.

A. There is an International Friendship League at 3 Creswick Road, London W, 3, England.

Potash Worker Gains Through Firm Incentives

By AB KENT
Business Editor

The use of incentive as a stabilizer for the labor force is a proven method but one which seems rarely used in this province.

To the contrary, B.C. has become from time to time a field for pitched battle between labor and management, where unions in major and vital industries reach stalemate in negotiations with companies.

Kent

But where a union member can see no other way of improving himself than by going for a wage increase, it can be seen that relations may become strained.

Alternatively, a company may make it attractive for an employee to climb to a higher wage bracket based on his improved capacity to help the firm in its business of making money.

Something along this line is being done with great success in Saskatchewan with the advent of the mushrooming potash mining and refining industry.

★ ★ ★

Victoria-based G. B. McGillivray, B.C. representative of the Canadian Petroleum Association, returned recently from a visit to International Minerals and Chemical Corp. (Canada) operation at Esterhazy.

He said he was amazed by the scope and methods used to produce the raw potash, basic ingredient for phosphate and nitrogen fertilizers.

But he was also impressed with the ease of operation and the apparent lack of effort by employees working underground or in the surface mill.

It is a highly automated development, requiring few employees, although the educational level is high and includes technical or mechanical inclination.

Starting pay for a young man with some technical background is $2.25 an hour. Immediately he can begin studying on his own for promotion, and even if there is no opening for him when he passes his tests, he is eligible for a higher rate of pay.

The result is a labor force interested in what it is doing, with clear incentive to do better. And according to Mr. McGillivray there is no labor problem.

In four or five more years, some of the young men who started with International when Saskatchewan potash began developing about four years ago will be in line for executive jobs, having worked their way up on the strength of incentive.

Can the pulp and paper industry, for example, learn a lesson from this?

★ ★ ★

Mr. McGillivray found his trip underground fascinating. It started with a 3,300-foot descent in the mine's main shaft a few miles outside Esterhazy.

So smooth is the operation of the skip there was little sensation of dropping into the bowels of the earth.

At bottom, in the 300 miles of tunnels that lace the fabulous 100-year deposit, potash crystals glitter on walls and roof like the Emerald City in Wizard of Oz.

There is nothing else to be seen — just miles of solid potash without waste rock or other ore.

Machinery is driven by electric motors, achieving a degree of quietness never encountered in the type of rock mining known in B.C.

The air is clean, fresh and a year-round comfort, providing a better working environment than the miners could have toiling on the surface in summer dust and heat or winter's blizzard.

Haulage is by conveyor belts and up the main shaft in skips to a 20-storey mill where all the machines are painted bright colors, again improving the atmosphere.

Miners get about underground by means of jeep-like vehicles rather than afoot or in narrow gauge cars as in conventional mines.

The tunnels link up with International's second Esterhazy mine-mill operation, but the two function independently under separate control.

Total outlay was $120 million, almost dirt cheap considering the 100-year potential of reserves.

GM Sales Up 61,000 Over September, '66

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., the biggest U.S. auto-maker, reported Tuesday its sales in September were 61,000 above those in the same month a year earlier.

The totals for September's last 10 days were 206,532 cars and 22,872 trucks, compared with 118,753 cars and 20,151 trucks sold in the last 10 days of September, 1966, GM said.

GM's top marketing executive, H E. Crawford, said that the two periods were not comparable however.

"This year all General Motors car divisions introduced 1968 models on Sept. 21, giving us nine selling days with new models," he said. "Last year, Chevrolet, Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac introduced 1967 models on Sept. 29, giving us only two days with new models in September, 1966."

Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler have not yet reported their sales figures.

Oil Reserves 'Will Begin To Decline'

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A California oil consultant said Tuesday that U.S. petroleum reserves will start a gradual decline within the next several years.

E. C. Babson of South Pasadena, Calif., told the annual meeting of the Society of Petroleum Engineers that projecting such trends is a hazardous business because "the unexpected happens with great frequency."

Babson said his studies indicate not only that U.S. reserves are likely to begin a gradual decline but that Western Hemisphere reserves probably will reach a plateau shortly after 1975.

He added that no slackening of reserves growth is indicated for the Soviet Union, Africa and the Middle East.

Babson said the Eastern Hemisphere now holds 63 per cent of the world's crude oil reserves but the United States is retaining its important position as a primary world oil producer.

Although the trend of U.S. reserves is likely to be downward, he said, the U.S. can increase production for some years due to present excess capacity.

High Arrow Coffer Dam Dynamited

CASTLEGAR (CP) — The dynamiting of a 4,000-foot coffer dam Tuesday marked an important stage in the construction of the High Arrow Dam near this eastern British Columbia community.

The coffer dam was dynamited following completion of a 12,000-foot-long discharge works.

The explosion was designed to crack the coffer dam, which will now be removed by draglines and scrapers.

The next stage in the building of the dam is a 1,650-foot earth fill dam across the Columbia River, expected next February.

The High Arrow Dam is one of three in the Columbia River Power Project. The Duncan Dam is already finished, and the majority of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority work force is now concentrating on the huge Mica Creek Dam.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Do Conditioning Exercises

Was it ex-President Harry Truman who said, "If you can't stand the heat get out of the kitchen?" Many women suffer from the self-consciousness and awkwardness and damage to their appearance which overweight brings them but do nothing about remedying the situation. They stay right in that kitchen of discontent rather than getting out with self-discipline and self-improvement.

However, not all figure defects are due to overweight. Many are caused by the unattractive distribution of weight even when there are no extra pounds. Then, of course, flabbiness is a major foe we must fight constantly.

The following exercise is a good general conditioner and is insurance against flabbiness. It is also slimming to the abdomen, thighs, hips and waist. What more can you ask?

Lie on your back, legs straight and arms extending straight out from the shoulders, resting on the floor. Bend both knees up close to the abdomen as you roll over onto the left side of your hips. As you roll back onto your back straighten your legs. This time bend your knees as you roll onto the right side of the hips. Keep your hands on the floor as you roll from side to side, straightening your legs as you roll onto your back.

Here is a workout for your legs. Sit on the floor with your legs straight and lean back on your hands. Bend the left knee up close to your abdomen. Thrust the left leg forward until the knee is straight. Point the toe. As you do this bend the right knee up close to the abdomen. Straighten right knee and bend the left. In other words, one knee bends as the other straightens. Do this exercise briskly.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Why Not Take Steps Toward Beauty?" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. This covers all of the most usual defects in leg contour. Address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. C. Smith, 1567 Athlone Drive, announce the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter, Julia Dell Lawrance, to Mr. Fred Wirth Fieldhouse, Jr., younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Fieldhouse, of Scottsburg, Indiana. The wedding will take place on Saturday, October 14, at 8 p.m., in First United Church. Rev. R. J. D. Morris will officiate. SHOPPING GUIDE

By PENNY SAVER

Darning socks is not my favorite task at any time. I usually try to avoid it as long as possible. What happens is that I find myself faced with an enormous pile of socks all needing mending. My New Year's resolution this year was to once a week sit down and do a little mending before it piled up. Sometimes I have kept this promise to myself but most of the time the socks have mounted up as they always have. I had just started on the pile the other day when a neighbor phoned. She was going downtown for lunch and would I like to come with her? I needed no other excuse to leave the perpetual chore.

For somebody who has to darn socks in a hurry the little kit I found is the perfect solution. For bachelors and students it would be a large saving in time. I found it very good for those last-minute rushes in the morning when Junior finds his sock has a hole in it and the school bus leaves in one half hour. To repair a hole is very easy. Put the darning knob under the spot where the hole is, draw the edges of the hole together then place a patch over the drawn-in edges. Press down firmly with a hot iron and wait 10 or 15 minutes until everything is cool before handling the sock. The cost is only 29 cents.

My cosmetic bag was becoming very worn and the need of a new one was urgent. I was lucky to be able to find exactly what I wanted. The one I finally selected was vivid gold, green and blue plastic with a zipper opening. These bags come in a variety of sizes and shapes with both flower and checked designs. Some of the bags are like small clutch purses with snap openings instead of zippers. They're priced from 39 cents to 77 cents.

If you have ever had the experience I had of going to show my identification card and having the case practically fall apart you will like my newest find. By slipping the old case out of your wallet and replacing it with a fold-over plastic case that comes in two sections the problem is solved without the expense of buying a new wallet. It's a bargain at 29 cents.

If you would like to know where I found these items, give me a call at 382-3131.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

WEDDING DILEMMA

My future daughter-in-law informs me that since her mother will be wearing a long dress to the wedding, which is to take place at 11 o'clock in the morning, she wishes me to wear one as well. Inasmuch as my relatives and friends are simple people of middle class background, I would not like to look overdressed. Is it a MUST that I buy a long dress?—Mrs. J.H.

Since your daugher-in-law is planning a formal wedding, it would be best if you conform with her wishes. You will make her happy and 'match' her mother as well.

It is considered proper for both mothers to be similarly attired. Compromise by selecting a gown that you can successfully shorten after the affair.

BOTHERSOME BLACKHEADS

I'm so enthused over your column, and know you can help me.

What can I do about small blackheads which accumulate on my upper cheeks? I have even gone so far as to squeeze them, but even that doesn't help.—Carlyn S.

Start with a facial scrub. Ask your druggist for a MILD grain and use as directed. Never scrub too hard as this area is rather sensitive.

In addition, wash your face twice daily with hot water and a medicated soap (such as PHisohex). Rinse with hot water at least 30 times (rubber gloves will protect your hands). Follow with a clear cool rinse and finally pat with chilled witch hazel.

Dab calamine lotion or milk of magnesia on the blackhead areas at bedtime.

Never, and I mean NEVER, attempt to squeeze blackheads. You will not only encourage more but permanently destroy the delicate surface of the skin. Incidentally, steer clear of using a creamy type makeup base.

PEACHY BLEACHY

I have read about skin conditioners that lighten the skin. Are these products effective?—Mrs. G.W.

There are many preparations on the market claiming to do wonders. The results, however, depend primarily upon your individual skin chemistry. You can always play it safe by using a freshly cut cucumber or lemon for a mild skin bleach.

Emily Wilkens welcomes letters, but cannot undertake to answer each one. She will use questions in her column of general interest. Address your letters to Emily Wilkens, c/o this newspaper.

CLUBWOMEN'S NEWS

New Season — The Victoria Ladies' Curling Club began its new season with a coffee party in the Victoria Curling Club on Monday. President Mrs. J. N. McDonald greeted guests, assisted by the membership convener, Mrs. E. Woodward. Fourteen new members were introduced by executive members. At the general meeting which followed, draw convener Mrs. W. Dalrymple outlined the new season's curling program. Bonspiel convener, Mrs. L. C. Cleland, said there would be an inter-club daytime bonspiel held this season. Mrs. T. Leech reported on the tour of the women curlers from Scotland.

DEAR ABBY . . .

So, Everyone Had Good Time

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Here's the situation: A woman, her daughter and her daughter's boy friend went to Expo 67. They travelled and lived together in a one-bedroom trailer for the entire week that they were at the fair.

The woman is separated from her husband. The daughter and her boy friend are both over 21, but they are not officially engaged. They are just going together. No marriage plans have been mentioned. What do you think?

EAST LAKE, O.

DEAR EAST LAKE: I think they probably had a wonderful time. Now what's YOUR problem?

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it's all right for a little boy, say around four or five years old, to see his mother undressed? I have a friend who thinks it's perfectly all right to let her little boy hang around and watch her dress, from the skin out. And she thinks nothing of letting him come into the bathroom while she is in the tub. He comes in to ask her questions or to just sit and visit while he gets his eyes full.

Maybe I am wrong, but I don't approve of this. My friend says it is better to let the boy KNOW than to have him curious. What is your opinion?

DAILY READER

DEAR READER: Maybe I'm old-fashioned, but I still believe in modesty. A mother shouldn't make a federal case out of it if her four-year-old son were to accidentally catch a glimpse of her in the altogether, but the bathroom door should be LOCKED while Mother is bathing.

Laverne Christensen Becomes Bride of James Beesley

VOWS EXCHANGED IN CATHEDRAL

Baskets of autumn-toned chrysanthemums were at the altar of Christ Church Cathedral when Laverne Karen Christensen and James Thomas Beesley exchanged rings and vows. Rev. R. A. Hoult and Dean Brian Whitlow officiated at the service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a slim gown of crystal charm fashioned with a lace bodice and sleeves ending in lily points. Her scalloped train swept back from two small bows at the shoulders and a petalled seed pearl headpiece held her chapel-length veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow rosebuds, white stephanotis and ivy.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. P. Christensen of Port Alberni and Mr. and Mrs. J. Beesley, 1147 Pandora Avenue. Mr. Christensen gave his daughter in marriage.

The choir boys sang "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" as the register was signed in the presence of the congregation.

The bride's attendants wore matching gowns of lime green crystal charm styled on empire lines and fashioned with lace bodices. They wore self-fabric rosettes with tulle as headpieces and carried crescent bouquets of white gladioli.

Mrs. Bev Peverelle was matron of honor, Mrs. Pearl Cozens was bridesmatron and Miss Karen Smith, bridesmaid.

Patrick Whalen acted as best man and Gale Sullivan and Barney Spaven ushered the guests.

At the reception following in the Cathedral parish hall a three-tier wedding cake which was made by Mrs. R. A. Hoult and Miss Shirley Humphries centred the head table. It was topped with yellow roses and flanked by bowls of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums. Wes Hunter, Alberni, proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon to the provincial interior, the new Mrs. Beesley chose a pale green wool suit which she accented with brown accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Brilliant Style Show Ushers in New Season

An instant psychedelic trip into fall "Fashion Nouveau" was on stage at MacPherson Playhouse Tuesday evening, complete with bowers of op art flowers, a mind-spinning light and sound show, and the most "turned-on" fashion parade in town.

The exciting liveliness of this fall's color tones were found in a mix-and-match wardrobe of electric shades of cerise and purple, green and blue. Spice and camel came into their own when black was the accent.

Setting the theme for autumn was a pumpkin-toned three-piece suit with a broad salt-and-pepper lynx collar extending down the lapels. The jacket was long, cut off below the hipline—a design that is setting the pace for the new season. This ensemble was worn with an Australian roller-brim hat that fastened with a tiny strap under the chin.

ENGLISH IMPORT

But fashion doesn't go always to the sophisticate. For the young tripper with a yen for color and stand-out-in-a-crowd mode, there was an English import of purple bodiced dress with a dazzling cerise, purple and pink plaid midget of a skirt attached at the low-slung waistline. Worn with toning pink hose and an over-the-eye purple tam-o-shanter, this was a show-stopper.

The high style, go-anywhere pant suit comes into its own this season with a black and white checkerboard look. One shown on Tuesday had a jacket that was long and slightly flared and nipped in at the waist. The pant legs were straight and slim.

A black and camel rain or shine coat seemed a "must" for Victoria weather. One with a softly tailored collar and bracelet sleeves could be worn about-town or for travelling in Europe. The serviceable beauty was worn with a black fedora hat set over the forehead.

CERISE TWEED

Shades of cerise are for every age and, for the young at heart, there was a dream of a cerise tweed suit, worn with a toning chiffon shell, and a flare of cerise and vermillion in a wrap-around velvet turban.

At-home wear promises to be the most elegant in years. One eye-catcher in Paris pink nylon tricot was styled with a pair of full-sweeping culottes, topped with a skimmer of nylon overdress, slit at the side to the waist. Deep bands of lace flattered the hemline and side opening of the skirt.

You'll be a one-woman light show in the black and white harlequin print djellaba which proved to be a dazzling optical illusion of chiffon over taffeta.

For evening after-five wear one of the most versatile was a taupe and slate toned brocade cocktail suit. Styled with a short-cropped jacket that ended just below the waist, it was trimmed with a circlet of pastel mink at the collar, matched by a stunning mink toque.

'FABULOUS FAKES'

Furs are the "fabulous fakes" for fall, and a show-stopping pelt of ocelot, or a make-believe black and white calf jacket had all heads turning.

For evening formal occasions the look is definitely "San Francisco" with formal gowns a kaleidoscope of color and design. Once again, cerise is "in the know". A long floating tent of chiffon was dazzling with jewel-encrusted bands across the shoulder.

Or in contrast, there was a dress of black chiffon styled with shift-like simplicity but highlighted by two chiffon capelet layers draped over one shoulder to give the hint of a sleeve.

The show was opened by Mrs. B. Stuart, president of St. Louis College Parent-Teacher Organization, the show's sponsors. Mrs. Joan Fraser was commentator, representing Woodward Stores, who supplied the fashions.

NINE MODELS

Modelling were Rosalie Essihos, Charlotte Biggs, Michaelle Green, Joan Thompson, Robin Pettit, Kip Wallis, Verniece Bevis, Maude Parks and Lorraine Haslam.

The Teen and Twenty Fashion Council performed at the intermission breaks, staging a "salute to vaudeville," and "a trip" rounded out, with the singing of Roy Silver, accompanied by Ken Peaker. Proceeds of $800 were realized. Conveners were Mrs. C. Baier and Mrs. William Finley.

Another show will be staged this evening at 8 p.m. under the sponsorship of Omicron Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Slip an animal into the plot and you've got a built-in audience. Make the lead man in the story a former child television star who captivated the young and old fry in the past and you've got a winner.

Stephen

The animal is the elephant "Maya" in the production of the same name. The fry, now 16 years old, is Jay North who captivated audiences with shenanigans surrounding Mr. Wilson.

The Saturday evening hour-long production has managed to gain quite a few fans. First of all, it is shot in India. The color scenery is out of this world, or beyond the border of the ordinary run - of - the - mill Hollywood product. Secondly, it revolves around two boys and an elephant.

The second boy is Sajid Khan of India. He doesn't add much to the plot except to steer young North out of language difficulties and keep things interesting by referring to the elephant as his "mother."

The explanation of that line is that both his parents died in a flood and the elephant reared him.

Don't snigger. Romulus and Remus were the mythical founders of Rome, and they were reared by a wolf. Anything is possible in this world of television and mythology.

But even the producers are in doubt for North and entourage, minus elephant, are esconced in Hollywood waiting word on whether to go back to India for more episodes of Maya.

The network went along with a number of episodes, but like all others involved in high finance want to wait to see if ratings warrant any follow-ups.

TIDBITS: Bing Crosby will help Shirley Temple Black in her congressional campaign as a member of her finance committee . . . Mala Powers has signed to co-star with Roger Smith in "Rogues' Gallery" . . . Joyce Jillson will replace Leigh Taylor-Young in television's Peyton Place.

YOUR HEALTH

Twiggy Diet Dangerous

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Any physicain with a large practice will, in the course of years, see a number of patients—nearly always young women—who have starved themselves until they are down to about 80 pounds in weight.

Alvarez

Sometimes, perhaps, a girl became stout and when she found it hard to get a beau, she started reducing.

But when she got down to a normal weight she couldn't stop — and on down she went until she was skin and bones a[illegible] hunting.

Only rarely does one see this sort of starvation in a man. I had one man, about 40, who starved himself until he died.

A while ago Mrs. E. L. Bliss and C. Hardin Branch, able psychiatrists, reported in a book a series of cases of nervous refusal to eat and said that in practically every case the person was on the edge of a psychosis.

I remember two girls whose self-starvation came with an unhappy situation if life.

One of them was a nun who very much wanted to get out of the convent. I cured her by getting the Mother Superior to let her go.

The other girl had been shut up in a lonely home with a half-crazy mother, I cured her by getting her father to set her free to go out and marry her beau.

Another girl I cured was trying to commit suicide by starvation because with her quick temper she had lost three beaus in succession.

When I talked her into giving herself another try, she called for her clothes, got up and went back to her job as a secretary. She started then to eat and to gain back her weight.

★ ★ ★

I just read a paper by Drs. O. Lundberg and J. Walinder of Sweden, who found that four out of five young women who were starving themselves had an epileptic type of electroencephalogram. Sometimes such a person can be much helped with drugs like Dilantin, Deaner or Phenobarbital.

Usually, if a physician is kind and puts one of these girls in a hopital, he can induce her to eat, and can fatten her up. Unfortunately, some of these girls will later go back to starving themselves again.

★ ★ ★

In the Journal of the American Medical Association Dr. Doris H. Milman reported the case of a five-year-old girl who, one morning, ate a sugar tablet she found in the refrigerator. Unfortunately, it belonged to her 18-year-old uncle, and had 100 micrograms of LSD in it.

Shortly after eating this, the girl began to scream, and soon she was actually psychotic.

She was in a panic and did not know where she was. She felt she had lost her personality; she was mentally slowed up, and she showed signs of injury to her brain; she had trouble with vision, and her electroencephalograms (records of the tiny electric currents which are constantly running through the brain) had become abnormal.

After some days the worst of the disturbances had quieted down, but the disorders in thinking, the distortion of the body image, and the depression of intelligence persisted for several months.

At the end of five months the only remainders were the abnormal electric records and the difficulties with sight. At the end of nine months only the visual functions remained somewhat impaired.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Eneyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Paul Gilchrist, age 12, of Smith Falls, Ont., for his question.

What is an antiproton?

The proton was one of the first atomic particles to introduce itself to the world of science. It is a nucleon, one of the major particles in the nucleus of every atom. The atomic number of a chemical element is defined to be the number of protons in the nucleus of its atom. With one proton more or less an atom becomes another element. We now know of 35 other subatomic particles. But the proton remains the key particle in the structure of the atom.

And this key particle is very identifiable. As subatomic particles go, it is massive — 1,836 times more massive than an electron. It carried a positive electrical charge equal to the negative charge carried by the electron. These atomic charges have some interesting properties. The positive and negative charges attract each other, as you would expect. And positive and negative atomic particles can be swerved in opposite directions by a magnetic field.

In the 1930s physicists were probing the secrets of subatomic particles and their thoughts ran ahead of their actual discoveries. If their theories of relativity and quantum energy were correct, then there must be equal and opposite particles for all the known particles of matter. Though still undiscovered, they were named antiparticles. Some expected to find an antielectron with a positive charge and antinucleons to match the particles of the atomic nucleus.

Decays Quickly

The antiproton was predicted and named in 1932. It was not actually discovered until 1955. But when it finally introduced itself, scientists had no doubt about its identification. Its mass was equal to that of its opposite twin, the proton. When its path was observed in a cloud chamber, it was seen to swerve in the opposite direction from a proton. This and other evidence proved it to be a negatively charged proton — a proton with the charge of an electron.

Scientists also had predicted that particles and antiparticles would be natural enemies. Both are particles of matter. But on close contract, matter and antimatter destroy each other. This can be observed in a special bubble that reveals the tracks of subatomic particles. Under normal conditions a proton can expect to exist indefinitely. But when it crosses the path of an antiproton, the collision results in their mutual destruction. Bits of subatomic debris fly from the scene of the accident. Some of the debris may be neutral lambdas and antilambdas. They may form another antiproton which decays after a split second into a fireworks display of tiny pion particles.

Many antiparticles have been found, but in very small numbers. Matter seems to be made of ordinary particles with a few stray antiparticles. At least this seems true in our part of the universe. Maybe other suns and solar systems are made of antiparticles with a few stray ordinary particles. In any case, the strays do not last very long. In a universe of opposites, they soon meet one of their opposite twins. And the two annihilate each other.

★ ★ ★

Andy send a 14" World Book Globe to Roger Mills, age 9, of Hobart, Indiana, for his question:

Does a snail have teeth?

Andy suspected that the snails who chew up the greenery in his garden had the best teeth in the county. And also the best dentists. But this was not so. Snails do not have teeth like those of cats and dogs. But they have amazing tongues that can be used to saw and scrape. This is what they use to chew up and devour the tenderest leaves and the most cherished plants in the garden.

A snail's eyes are on those two horns that poke up from his head. His mouth is a tiny opening where you would expect his chin to be. Inside the mouth is a long tongue called a radula. If you use a strong magnifying glass, you see that the radula is covered with neat rows of scaly bumps. There are hundreds of them. When the snail rubs his tongue on a leaf, these rough, hard little bumps act like a saw. There are many different snails in the world and most of them dine on plant food — either living or dead plants will do. Some snails eat meat, and most of these fellows like to dine on other snails. But even a meat eating snail has a rough radula tongue instead of real teeth.

Salt Spring Rhodonite

1,000 Trooped Last Year To Rockhounds' Paradise

By JAN GOULD

You've just come from the ferry at Fulford Harbor, you are exploring Orchard Avenue and there's all these rocks cluttering up a garage and yard.

You glance at the mailbox and wonder whether Fred Hollings is starting a collection of specialized junk.

But wait!

●

You're looking at chunks of rhodonite, enough to bring a gleam to any ardent rockhound's eyes.

Much of the rhodonite is of such prime quality that it interests dealers and rockhounds all over the world. Last year it brought 1,000 visitors to Salt Spring Island.

It comes from a quarry on Mr. Hollings' 160-acre tree farm on Musgrave Mountain and it's a costly business to bring it out.

"You do some blasting but the best stuff you have to take by hand," explained Mr. Hollings, a logger for 50 years.

●

Holes are drilled in the large pieces along fractures, plugs are driven in these drill holes to split the large rock. It's also broken down by driving steel chisels in the fractures and seams.

Mr. Hollings used to think he had chunks of coal on his property until some Fulford friends, the Art Hepburns, showed him some jewellery they had made from rocks near his land. He took samples to the department of mines and learned he had manganese ore.

●

"Then I learned that rhodonite is a silicate of manganese — I knew nothing about minerals when I started. I thought the people who came to buy pieces of rhodonite were enjoying a fad. Now I can't meet all the orders which come mostly from the U.S. and Canada and some from Germany."

Prices vary. Rough, uncut rhodonite is 35 cents a pound and up but it's sold in slabs too. It's a matter of quality. Serious collectors want the pure, deep pink rhodonite. Others, interested in making jewellery, like the black, yellow or brown tints.

●

"Stuff I originally threw away because I didn't think anyone would want it," Mr. Hollings said.

He has a rocksaw with a diamond blade to cut the blocks. Rhodonite is fairly hard; small chips take some five or six weeks of tumbling before they're polished.

Mr. Hollings and his wife now have a collection of other minerals and gems. A chunk of argillite, agates, some deep mauve crystals of amethyst, slabs of Mexican honey onyx — you name it.

"Rockhounds seem to like to trade and swap," he said to explain his collection.

●

He swung some string ties decorated with attractive Mexican Crazy Lace and then a disc of petrified oak.

"I'm getting so many of these I don't know what to do. My wife says they don't match my hat, my shoes or my shirt."

Eventually, Mr. Hollings wants to display a selection of rhodonite and other minerals from his Salt Spring Island mine with the swap-and-trade minerals and gems he has collected. He'll build a special shed on his Orchard Avenue property.

He's not so serious about his hobby that he can resist a joke.

●

Recently, some earnest rockhounds dutifully admired a huge slab of deep pink rhodonite and then were shown four pink crystals. In all their travels, none of them had seen crystals like that. Positive identification proved negative.

They're still wondering what those rare crystals are. Mr. Hollings found them in his kitchen and sneaked them into the garage which houses much of his rhodonite.

They're four crystals from the sugar in some jam his wife made.

Councils Asked to Pay For Pioneer Park Plan

DUNCAN—North Cowichan and Duncan councils will be asked to pay $5,000 for a detailed plan on recreational development at Pioneer Park.

The joint recreation commissions meeting Tuesday evening passed the resolution after hearing from planning consultant John Sanderson.

Previously a critic of the idea, Coun. Gerry Smith proposed the hiring of A. B. Sanderson Ltd. to produce the plan.

Mr. Sanderson said first step would be site-mapping, then physical examination of the existing fields and buildings to estimate their useful life.

Thirdly, he would recommend what future facilities should be considered, plan the location of each, and suggest timing and priority.

END OF YEAR

North Cowichan and Duncan councils will be asked to approve and pay for this report which could be ready by the end of the year.

Long discussion of an area swimming pool which may be the first new project in the park showed Ald. Martin Lukaitis strongly in favor of it being financed by a regional district.

Councillors Smith and Dennis Hogan preferred fast action by Duncan and North Cowichan.

Reeve Donald Morton said the old curling rink should be included in the survey so that the value of the equipment and life expectancy of the building could be given by an unbiased assessor.

Ald. Lukaitis suggested much more liaison with school boards.

"School board thinking has changed and carpeted floors and television are no longer considered frills.

"Possibly a swimming pool could be a shared cost between the municipalities and the school board."

Commissioner Norman Bevan supported by Commissioner Ronald Price won approval for a resolution asking Duncan and North Cowichan to jointly hire a recreation director next year.

Mr. Bevan said this should be in addition to the manager being hired by the north end of the municipality to look after the new Fullers Lake arena.

2 KILLED IN MISHAPS

Industrial accidents have killed two men — one at Nanaimo and the other at Texada Island.

Gary Charles Patton, 22, was killed Monday when he fell 200 feet down an ore chute at Texada Mine.

Leslie Arnold Mason, 31, of 950 Cadogan, Nanaimo, was crushed to death in an accident at Harmac mill Tuesday.

Patton was working on an air-operated door at the head of the ore chure. Two other men were also working nearby but neither saw the accident.

Patton was married and the father of a six-months-old child.

Mason's job was to straighten lumber on a conveyor. He was caught by the moving wood and pinned aginst a guard rail.

REGIONAL MEETING OCT. 12

DUNCAN — Inaugural meeting of the regional district board for the Cowichan Valley will be held here Oct. 12.

Copies of the letters patent incorporating the regional district and the Cowichan Valley Hospital regional district have been sent to Duncan city clerk Gordon Berry.

Mr. Berry is interim clerk of the new board.

Director of fianance and statistics for the department of municipal affairs W. Kent Smith plans to attend the meeting at city hall.

Ald. James Saunders is the city appointee to the board and Herb Halliday will represent the village of Lake Cowichan.

Interim directors from the unorganized areas are Frank Martin, Shawnigan Lake; Steve Dougan, Cherry Point; John Bateson, Cobble Hill; Glen Spinks, Cowichan Bay; H. J Wilkinson, Cobble Hill; Allan Anderson, Lake Cowichan; John Dobell, Saltair; Alex Smith, North Oyster; and James A. Hunt, Lake Cowichan.

Vote Sought Nov. 4 On Expansion

DUNCAN — Residents of the unorganized territory immediately south of Duncan may vote Nov. 4 on whether they want to join the city.

City clerk Gordon Berry said Tuesday application has been made to Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell to approve a vote on that date.

Mr. Berry said it is not yet clear if only owner electors will vote or whether tenant and resident-electors will have a franchise.

Duncan's plan is to extend the city boundaries south to Bench Road and to take in part of Cowichan Bay, all of Koksilah and Eagle Heights subdivision.

Chief idea of Mayor Jack Dobson is to give Duncan an access to the sea.

Nanaimo Man Fined After Taking Shack

NANAIMO (CP) — Wulliam Pridge, 39, was fined $50 in magistrate's court Monday when he pleaded guilty to having a stolen powder shack in his possession.

He said he thought the shack had been abandoned in explaining why he took the structure from a mine site.

Speed Blamed In Death

COURTENAY—Excessive speed and lack of caution by a motorcyclist were blamed by a coroner's jury Tuesday for the death of his passenger.

Daniel Parkin, 20, of Courtenay, was the primary cause of the accident which killed Reinhart Schnurch, 18, the jury ruled.

Schnurch was thrown 40 feet when the bike ran into the rear of a pickup truck on Island Highway Aug. 15.

The jury also said the truck driver, Ronald Williams, 17, contributed to the accident by failing to signal he was going to turn, and by taking too long to make the turn.

TALKS NEXT WITH CPR

Coronation Crossing Set

DUNCAN — City council meeting in camera Monday night decided the third crossing of the railway tracks here should be at Coronation Avenue.

The decision paves the way for negotiation between council and Marathon Realty (for the CPR) for removal of tracks.

City clerk Gordon Berry said, "the price we will pay CPR is a matter for negotiation."

The taking out of five tracks from Station Street north to James Street will provide Duncan with land for parking purposes.

Only one track will remain — the one which skirts Duncan Street.

Once negotiations are complete, city council has a long-term plan to widen Ingram Street through to an intersection with Government Street and Cowichan Lake Road.

STRACHAN:

'Start Study Now' On Island College

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said today the provincial government should immediately begin a study to see if it is economically feasible to build an up-Island regional college.

He was commenting on Education Minister Peterson's statement that a regional college based on the participation of six, instead of all nine up-Island school districts may not be an ecomomic proposition.

'MORE THAN WONDER'

Mr. Strachan said, "He'll have to do more than just wonder if it is feasible. We will wait and see if he comes up with some statistics on the matter."

"I would expect him to get a study initiated right away and not waste any time."

Weldon Jubenville, president of Duncan local of the IWA, said Mr. Peterson "should realize six out of nine school districts want a college.

"He simply cannot disregard the large number of people who desire a regional college."

And the failure of three districts to approve the college idea should not affect the building of the college, according to Dr. Neil Dorning, chairman of Cowichan school board.

SMALLER COLLEGE

He said the answer might be to build a smaller college than originally considered.

But he was not optimistic that the issue would be resolved quickly.

"The college will probably proceed with typical government speed and it is more than likely they will take two years to have a referendum" (to approve the money-bylaw for college construction.)

B.C. TEL BRITISH COLUMBIA TELEPHONE COMPANY

C. J. FINCH

E. R. LUTKE

New Appointments Announced

The appointment of C. J. Finch as Director of Marketing and of E. R. Lutke as Sales Manager is announced by the British Columbia Telephone Company.

Mr. Finch began his telephone career in 1946 following service overseas with the Royal Canadian Signal Corps. After several years in clerical and sales positions in Vancouver, he became Commercial and Traffic Manager in the Company's Terrace District. Later, he served as District Manager in Terrace and in Dawson Creek and as Vancouver District No. 2 Commercial and Traffic Manager. He has been the Company's Sales Manager since November, 1965.

Mr. Lutke joined B.C. Telephone as a Plant Department clerk in June, 1953. In December, 1956 he became a salesman in the Marketing Department in Vancouver. In 1960, he moved to Kamloops as District Sales Manager. He has been Manager of the Company's Dawson Creek District since December, 1963.

Bastion Hit by Fund Lack; Actors to Carry On Unpaid

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Lack of financial assistance has forced Bastion Theatre to give up its position as a professional Actor's Equity group, director Peter Mannering said Tuesday.

The actors' union has a minimum pay scale for all professional actors.

Local performers have agreed to give up their salaries to enable the theatre to continue its production schedule.

"There have been no cast changes and we will be able to keep up our high standards of performance," said Mr. Mannering.

COUNCIL VIEW

"The Canada Council has told us that belonging to Actor's Equity does not necessarily imply that we are professional. We have decided to forget about equity rates until we can determine what the Canada Council means by professionalism."

But Bastion will not be on a strictly amateur basis. A hard core group of 12 management-acting staff will continue to be paid though not necessarily on Equity scale.

Jean Roberts, head of the theatre arts division of the Canada Council, is coming to Victoria in mid-October to get a first hand look at Bastion.

"She is one of the top people in Canada and I think it's wonderful that the Council has finally decided to send a woman of her calibre across the country to view regional theatres," Mr. Mannering said.

One of the reasons for the refusal of the grant was apparently the judgment of people "on the spot" — though they were never identified.

"How can they possibly discount the prejudices of people in the community?" asked Mr. Mannering. "The council has no way of knowing the motives behind criticism or that these persons had any clear idea of the total concept of what we are trying to do here.

"I think we are really going to become a test case for the Canada Council on how a regional theatre ought to be set up, how it can continue on a regional basis involving the community and still qualify for national recognition as a professional theatre."

BALLADEER Woody Guthrie, 55, a folk poet who said he wrote songs to make people believe in themselves, died in New York Tuesday after an illness of 15 years. Guthrie composed more than 1,000 songs, including "This Land is Your Land" and "So Long, It's Been Good to Know You."

Suspension Upheld Of Hippie Newspaper

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council formally approved the suspension of the business licence of the hippie newspaper Georgia Straight Tuesday in a 7-3 vote after three hours of debate.

The decision upheld action taken last Thursday by city licence inspector Milt Harrell who ordered the licence suspension effective at 12:01 a.m. Saturday.

BRITISH LORD SUGGESTS:

'Man Deserves Right to Die If He Wants'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British lord Tuesday suggested that a person should have the right to die if he so wishes.

Lord Ritchie Calder, 61, said in an interview he plans to ask the House of Lords to consider this when he returns to England next week after a lecture visit to the University of British Columbia.

The proposal would follow a recent controversy touched off when a doctor in a North London hospital advised nurses "not to resuscitate" elderly heart-attack victims who suffer certain diseases.

GRAVE CHOICES

It is likely progressive legislation to deal with the subject will come from the House of Lords, he said.

"Very grave choices have to be made between the young and the old," said Lord Calder.

"It is a cruel way to put it, but who would you save—the old man who is to be kept alive because he is eminent or because there is emotion or the family does not want him to die, or the young boy whose future is immeasurable?"

Lord Calder said he would like to be able today to go to his lawyer and outline conditions under which he would not want to be kept alive—something that is illegal in England.

He emphasized he is not endorsing—euthenasia—mercy killing—but rather a passive means of death.

"What I need is something which allows me to make the decision while I am in sound mind," he said.

St. Louis Wins Series Opener

Brock, Gibson Share Honors

BOSTON (AP) — Lou Brock, the St. Louis Cardinals' speedy bullet, stroked a record-tying four hits, stole two bases and scored both runs in a 2-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox in today's opening world series game, while Bob Gibson struck out 10 in pitching a six-hitter.

Jose Santiago, first Latin American to pitch a series opener, walked on water for seven innings while the Cards banged out 10 hits and left eight on base.

Santiago did his best to win it alone with a 360-foot home run into the screen atop the left field wall at Fenway Park in the third inning.

Brock's fourth single, opening the seventh, finally started the National League champs on the way to the tie-breaking run.

The lithe outfielder, who led the league with 52 stolen bases, just barely beat Russ Gibsons's throw into second for a stolen base on Jose's first pitch to Curt Flood.

When Flood grounded out to first baseman George Scott, Brock sped to third. Roger Maris, the ex-New York Yankee who had driven in the first run with an infield out, did it again when he rapped sharply at second baseman Jerry Adair. Adair came up with the ball, looked at Brock nearing home plate and threw out Maris.

It was the same combination that produced the first Cardinal run in the third when Brock lined up his second single to centre, romped to third on Flood's double to the left field corner and scored when Maris bounced out to first baseman Scott.

Gibson, out of action with a broken right leg from July 13 to Sept. 6, came through with another gilt-edged performance as he had done in earning the star role in 1964 against the Yankees.

Although Yastrzemski went hitless, the Red Sox's candidate for the most valuable player honors did himself proud in left field with his fine defensive plays.

Yaz threw out Julian Javier, trying to score from second on Brock's single in the fourth with a perfect peg to Russ Gibson. In the fifth inning he made a leaping one-handed stab of Flood's hard smash for a spectacular out of what would have been a sure double and a possible triple.

Ironically, the two big hitters failed to hit. In addition to Yastrzemski, Orlando Cepeda, the Cards' MVP candidate went hitless. He never hit the ball out of the infield. Orlando rapped into an inning-ending double play, fouled out, popped up and then fanned.

WERE MANY THRILLS

The first Series game played at Fenway Park since 1946, provided plenty of thrills for the standing room crowd of 34,796 as Santiago made more escapes than a Houdini handcuffed in a trunk at the bottom of the bay.

Santiago had men on first and second with one out in the first, getting out of it on Cepeda's double play. St. Louis had the bases loaded in the second with one out when Bob Gibson slapped into a double play. There were men on second and third with nobody out in the third but Jose got out of it with only one run.

In fact, the Cards had a hit in every inning during Santiago's seven-inning stay but were blanked by relief man Ole John Wyatt, another Kansas City refugee, in the eighth and ninth.

3,000 Join IWA Strike In Interior

VANCOUVER (CP) — Strike action at lumber operations throughout the southern British Columbia interior was endorsed today by the International Woodworkers of America.

Jack Moore, regional IWA president, said employees at "just about all" of the 44 operations where workers previously had voted to strike, now have walked off the job.

He said about 500 struck Tuesday night and another 2,500 today.

A meeting had been planned for later today to set a strike date.

Mr. Moore said the 1,500 IWA members who voted to strike at five northern operations remained on the job. He said strike action in the north has been deferred pending a meeting with the Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association.

Workers at 12 other northern interior operations and 14 in the south rejected strike action in government-supervised votes and cannot legally walk off the job.

The walkouts began after employers rejected a union request for further negotiations on the grounds that IWA's demand for a 50-cent hourly increase is unreasonable.

The union wants a 50-cent hourly boost to give interior workers a base rate of $2.76 an hour and parity with coastal woodworkers.

The employers have refused to give more than the 44-cent hourly increase recommended in an industrial inquir. report by Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe of the B.C. Supreme Court.

Horace Simpson, chairman of the southern interior operators' negotiating committee, said Tuesday the union has been informed the 44-cent increase in a two-year contract is the limit.

Labor Party Rejects Wilson's Viet Policy

SCARBOROUGH, England (CP) — The ruling Labor Party today over-rode its leaders and called on the British government to disassociate itself from American policy in Vietnam.

In a startling defeat for Prime Minister Wilson and Foreign Secretary George Brown, the annual party conference gave a left-wing resolution a slim majority of 119,000 votes out of a total vote of more than 5,000,000.

The resolution, passed by 2,752,000 to 2,633,000, also urged the government to try to persuade President Johnson to stop bombing North Vietnam "immediately, permanently and unconditionally."

The vote is not binding on the government.

Delegates to the convention have blocks of votes. For example the delegates of labor unions can cast votes of the unions' entire memberships. This accounts for the high numbers of votes, although only 6,000 delegates are at the convention.

The vote was seen as a major personal setback for Brown, who had vigorously defended the government's pro-American policy.

Reports before the voting indicated Brown, already under fire in the press for his personal conduct at a party Monday night, might offer to resign if the Labor leadership was defeated on Vietnam.

But there was no immediate indication whether he would do so.

He told delegates today he did not think there would be any value in condemning one side in Vietnam and not the other. He indicated any such move would only lessen British influence in Washington—where he talked with Johnson last week.

Angry shouts rose from the delegates when Brown said he was ready to reconvene the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina but that Russia, co-chairman with Britain of the conference, would not agree.

Brown blamed North Vietnam for failing to respond to repeated U.S. offers of negotiations, even after five separate bombing pauses.

To jeering hecklers Brown cried angrily:

"Ask the Russian co-chairman to reconvene the Geneva conference as I am ready to do.

On Vietnam the convention voted that the government should:

1. "Dissociate completely from the policy of the U.S. government in Vietnam."

2. Seek with other countries to persuade the Americans to quit bombing North Vietnam "immediately, permanently and unconditionally."

3. Aim at a settlement based on the 1954 Geneva accords which envisaged withdrawal of all foreign troops from a Vietnam reunited under a freely-elected government.

The convention also voted 3,-

Quebec Won't Build Wall Around Province

MONTREAL (CP)—La Presse, in a copyright story from Hawaii, quotes Premier Daniel Johnson as saying his Union Nationale government in Quebec has promised consistently "to work to obtain a new Canadian constitution made in Canada, by Canadians and for Canadians."

The newspaper's reporter, Martin Pronovost, located Mr. Johnson on "one of the Hawaiian islands" where he is recuperating from a bout of phlebitis and obtained a prepared statement from him.

The statement was issued in reply to a request for comment on the current debate in Canada on the possibility of Quebec becoming an independent state.

La Presse quotes him as saying that the "Union Nationale did not receive a mandate to build a Great Wall of China around Quebec" when it was elected to power. His statement added:

"We promised the people to exercise the rights recognized in the British North America Act and to put them to work to obtain a new Canadian constitution, made in Canada, by Canadians and for Canadians, by virtue of which every citizen, French-speaking or English-speaking, regardless of ethnic origin, would feel at home everywhere in Canada.

"This is the mandate that we

Elworthy Interim Bank President

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harold Elworthy of Victoria today was elected temporary president of the Bank of British Columbia, replacing Frank Trebell of Vancouver, whose resignation became effective Sept. 1.

Mr. Elworthy, one of the original provisional directors of the bank, will hold the office pending appointment of a permanent president.

A spokesman for the bank said applications are being taken for the position of the bank's chief executive officer.

Mr. Elworthy is chairman of the board of Island Tug and Barge Ltd., a director of Imperial Inn Ltd. and a member of the Victoria Advisory Board of the Royal Trust Co.

Mr. Elworthy said his appointment is effective immediately and will mean spending half his time in Vancouver. He did not know how long the interim would be.

Most of his energies will be devoted to final organization of the bank, enabling it to open for business early in the new year.

Satins Kin Wins First

Satins Kin, with Ted Johnson in the saddle, won the opening race at Sandown Park this afternoon before a good-sized crowd.

The horse lay back and made its bid on the top turn. It won in the clear with Seven L and Royal Chic trailing.

Satins Kin paid $14.30, $8.40 and $5.30; Seven L paid $13.20 and $5.70, and Royal Chic $8.50. Time for the six and one-half furlongs was 1:23.

The one-two paid $83.10.

Absent 'Troops' Wreck Tories' Housing Attack

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Absenteeism was the undoing Tuesday night of the Opposition's determined drive to rock the government and shake it to its foundations — perhaps even toppling it.

The combined opposition looked "woefully weak" in its challenge of the Liberal minority government's right to stay in office, Conservative MPs conceded here today.

The Conservative caucus and New Democratic Party members were disturbed over the large number of absentee members when the vote was called Tuesday night. On paper the combined opposition has 130 members and the minority government has 130 members plus Mr. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

But when the opposition voted on its first motion of non-confidence in the administration Tuesday night, since the summer recess, it was only able to muster 98. The Liberal government was supported by 112 members.

Conservative MPs today were ruefully shaking their heads and agreeing that the new image of a "bold determined, aggressive opposition" under the new Conservative leader Robert Stanfield, has been "badly tarnished."

'Where Were They at Charge?'

As one unhappy Conservative put it today "Where were the troops when the charge was sounded?"

The Tories only were able to rally 71 of their 93 members to press home the attack on the administration. They were backed by 14 New Democrats. The NDP party has 22 members; its percentage of absenteeism was the greatest. Seven Creditistes also voted against the government along with two Social Credit members, three Independents and Steven Otto, the Liberal from York East who dislikes the government's housing policies. He broke ranks.

Even without Mr. Otto the Liberals had 110 of their 130 members in the House for the crucial vote. Some Grits had been arguing earlier in the day that it might be a good thing for the government if it was defeated and a general election precipitated by the opposition.

They contended that under such circumstances, Prime Minister L. B. Pearson leading the united Liberal forces into a quick fall election campaign would catch the Conservative and NDP groups off-balance and win easily. But their arguments did not carry the day—the government was determined to rally all its members and beat back the challenge to its continued existence.

Frank Howard, the NDP member from Skeena, supported the government. He has given his constituents a pledge not to bring on another election. Bert Leboe, Social Credit from Cariboo, also supported the administration.

The inscrutable Robert Stanfield, new leader of the Conservative Party, watched from his perch in the galleries as the opposition failed dismally to defeat the government. He was expected to have something to say about "absenteeism" when he spoke to his caucus today. It was "absenteeism" that plagued his predecessor John Diefenbaker whenever the Tories sought to defeat the government before the leadership convention.

Mr. Diefenbaker has urged more than once that newspapers should publish the list of all those voting in Commons divisions along with those absent. He believes it would "encourage" MPs to attend.

167,000 to 2,898,000 for a resolution urging Wilson to seek the expulsion of Greece's military government from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. It also demanded a complete cut-off of all military aid and other contacts with the Greeks until a civilian government is restored.

It was the second year in a row that the left-wingers swung the conference against government policy on Vietnam.

Brown's defence of the government stand was his first speech from the conference platform since his political future was put in question by a dance-floor argument with photographers Monday night.

The conference turned down a left-wing demand for drastic cuts in defence spending and foreign military commitments.

DRAWS CHEERS

Before the voting, Wilson drew a standing ovation with a fighting speech in defence of his economic austerity program, evidently aimed at reasserting his personal authority in the party.

Observers regarded his hour-long survey of the government's record as the most important speech for his own standing since he became party chief four years ago.

He apparently succeeded, at least temporarily, in reviving support among delegates who met here in a mood of disillusionment with government economic policy.

But observers said it remained to be seen how far Wilson's claim that the economy was at a turning point for the better would boost the party's morale and standing in the country.

He told the party his government would "resist pressures to embark on irresponsible inflationary policies."

The government narrowly won a vote of confidence in its economic policies at the conference Tuesday.

Wilson drew cheers with a promise to free British industry from "American domination."

"Basically now there is an upturn in the economy," Wilson said.

He said national production and output a man are rising, the rate of unemployment increase is levelling off and Britain's overseas trade is balancing out.

"I believe more than ever now," Wilson said, "that if socialism had never existed the challenge and opportunities of the new scientific revolution would have brought it into being."

He emphasized some of his government's economic aims, including switching men and factories from military research to the fight on "our economic and social problems," and reducing "our humiliating inherited dependence on industry overseas" for supply of modern machinery.

Wilson spoke with feeling of Britain's nearly 600,000 unemployed, the highest number for 27 years, to the delegates. He argued that "there was no alternative" to the harsh measures his government had taken in deflating the economy in mid-1966.

A fighting speech by James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, Tuesday won a standing ovation and persuaded the convention to endorse Wilson's wage-price freeze and other stern economic measures.

. . . JOHNSON

received and we have not changed our attitude."

Mr. Johnson had been reported holidaying on the Pacific Coast after his office in Quebec City announced he had cancelled all engagements until mid-October to undergo a medical examination and take a rest.

La Presse quotes Mr. Johnson as saying in Hawaii that the "constitutional position of the party is clearly established in documents, all of which have been made public."

His statement continues:

"In our striving for equality for the French-Canadian nation, Quebec—the principal home of the nation—has a preponderant role to play, but each of the provinces and the federal government has its part to play.

"For some time, in several provinces, authorities have shown greater comprehension of this new dimension which must be given to the constitution.

"The conference called by the Ontario premier marks a real turning point in our history and could be the most fruitful initiative ever taken since the conferences at Charlottetown and Quebec City which gave birth to Confederation.

"However, the federal government must realize that federalism can only work in co-operation with the provinces and not without them.

"It is a disservice to the country to label as separatists all those who are looking for democratic and peaceful ways to achieve the emergence of the French-Canadian nation."

Mr. Johnson left Quebec City for his holiday Sept. 17.

LIEGE, Belgium (AP)—Three trains were involved in a crash near here, police reported. First reports said nine persons were killed and 30 injured.

Sharp to Give Us Choice: Cut Back, or Hike Taxes

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Sharp in a major speech today was to lay it on the line for Canadians — either they go along with a billion-dollar cut in government spending or face a tax boost.

He will speak on the resumed debate on the budget. He will set out the government's financial policies and call for the support of the taxpayers.

There is mounting concern in Ottawa about the state of the economy.

The impact of the Vietnam war in the United States and the reluctance of the American administration to raise taxes to meet the costs of the war is having its fallout in Canada.

There are consequent higher costs and rising interest rates in Canada, forcing the govefnment to cut back on spending.

The cabinet earlier this year agreed on a half-billion-dollar cut in government spending for the 1968-69 fiscal period. Involved are reductions in most departmental estimates for spending in the coming fiscal year.

This has led to the freezing of extra funds for housing, delays in CBC capital projects and a hold-up in the proposed $100 million Canadian equivalent of the American "pentagon".

The cutbacks however, while extensive, were not large enough. The reduced expenditures were expected to cut the anticipated deficit for 1968-69 from $1.25 billion to $750 million. More cuts will be needed.

But while spending is to be slashed, the proposed medicare program scheduled to start July 1, 1968, has not been touched, it is understood. Its start remains a decision for the provinces. The enabling legislation has been passed.

It now is up to the various provinces to announce whether they will agree to participate starting July 1, next year.

Heresy Charge in N.Z.

DUNEDIN, N.Z. (Reuters)—Professor Lloyd G. Geering, prominent New Zealand Presbyterian theologian, who questioned the bodily resurrection of Christ, will be charged with heresy, it was announced Tuesday.

Rebel Capital Falls To Nigerian Troops

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI) — The Nigerian government said today its troops had captured Enugu, the stronghold capital of the eastern region which seceded and formed the "Republic of Biafra."

Fall of the city was announced by Radio Nigeria.

Enugu had been the target of a week long three-pronged advance by federal forces attempting to break the secessionist movement in which Lt. Col. Odumegwu Ojuku proclaimed independence for the region.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Skies were mainly cloudy along the coast this morning but extensive clearing took place over parts of the interior. Frost was reported in the Cariboo and in the south at Princeton and Kimberley. The large storm area continues to be stationary off the B.C. coast and will send surges of moisture over southern B.C. for the next few days. This will result in mainly cloudy skies and periods of showers to most of the province today and Thursday.
